TOM SAWYER TRICK AT U.S. AIR BASE?

ANCHORAGE (AP) — The Air Force says it is investigating allegations that a contractor used Tom Sawyer tactics to dupe job applicants into painting part of an Elmendorf air force base building.

An Anchorage woman, who declined to be identified, said the company advertised for painters. She said applicants were tested by having them paint small sections of the building and then they were all rejected.

"The air force labor adviser stated that the air force is aware of the allegations against Empire Painting Co., and the matter is being investigated," said Maj. Ken Barker of the Elmendorf information office.

Company representatives have been unavailable for comment.

In the book Tom Sawyer, the hero avoids the task of painting a fence by telling his friends that the job is too difficult for them. Because they are told they cannot do the work, they vie with each other to do it.

SMALL-SCALE FORCE—LEVESQUE

Que. Wants Own Army

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque says an independent Quebec would need "at least a small-scale armed force" to deal with such emergencies as police strikes and to take part in United Nations peacekeeping work.

The one dangerous thing for any independent country to have is police forces without any counterbalance, he said in an interview Sunday on CFCF radio.

"If you have a police strike or anything else that goes on, where else can you turn."

The government of an independent Quebec would not throw Canadian Armed Force personnel currently at bases in Bagotville and Valcartier out of jobs for the sake of pacifist ideals.

"A more positive pacifist outlook" would be to ask to participate in U.N. peacekeeping work, he added, noting "small countries can be very useful with very small, very modest armed forces."

Levesque also said Sunday one of the lynchpins of his government's proposed association between an independent Quebec and the rest of Canada would be the protection of minority language rights.

He denied that his Parti Quebecois government would use language rights as a lever to persuade the other provinces to negotiate economic links with an independent Quebec "but I think it would be eventually part of . . . any healthy association if and when it comes."

"Economics are basic, some political give and take, joint ventures and things like that would be basic also," he said in an interview of CFCF radio.

"But one of the most basic of all things is the respect for each other's identity and that requires . . . equitable treatment of minorities on both sides."

The premier was discussing an offer he made last week to his nine provincial counterparts to modify a language bill to allow Canadian coming from other provinces to send their children to English-language schools, in exchange for similar guarantees for French-speaking Quebecers moving to English Canada.

CONTROLLERS STAGE VOTE ON STRIKING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commercial flights in Canada could be grounded by Thursday following a vote by air traffic controllers.

The control tower men in Canada's airports are conducting a strike vote today and Tuesday and executives of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association expect an overwhelming mandate to back contract demands.

Controllers are seeking an improved retirement program, reclassification of jobs and the maximum eight per cent pay increase allowable under federal guidelines, according to a spokesman.

All-Canada Mail Strike 'Speculation'

HALIFAX (CP) — Any talk of a wildcat strike which started in Ottawa spreading across the country "is merely speculation at this stage," Joe Davidson, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said today.

Davidson said the Ottawa strike will likely be discussed in the union's five-day convention, which opened today.

Postal clerks and mail sorters in the Ottawa local walked off their jobs Thursday night to protest the use of casual, non-union labor.

The post office said today it will ask the Federal Court for an injunction to end the walkout.

David Carter, an eastern Ontario post office spokesman, said some mail is being delivered today but some post offices around the city are closed.

Meanwhile, the CUPW convention in Halifax delivered a blistering attack today on leaders of the Canadian Labor congress (CLC) for their participation in economic talks with the federal government and business representatives.

But Davidson said the militant postal union must continue to operate within the CLC despite its violent opposition to some congress policies.

The postal union must guard against becoming isolated from the rest of the labor movement. Instead, it must take every opportunity to explain its position against three way consultation to other unions "and to convince them that only strong and militant unions can represent their members and fight for their rights and needs."

Robert Andstein, president of the Halifax local of CUPW, said CLC president Joe Morris "is nothing but a traitor to the labor movement."

"Morris doesn't have any faith in the labor movement, he believes in selling out," Andstein said at the opening of the union's five-day national policy convention.

The executive board of the 22,000 member union said in its report to delegates that increased union consultation with government and business amounts to "a betrayal of the principles of the trade union movement."

CLC leaders say labor should have a greater role in drafting federal decisions that affect workers.

NAKED KIDS FROLICKED AT GUNPOINT

PARKSVILLE (CP) — RCMP are seeking a man with a large nose who Saturday forced four children to undress and frolic at gunpoint while he took photograps.

The four boys and girls, aged 12 to 14, were playing in the Englishman River when the man, armed with a sawed-off rifle and camera, emerged from the bushes and approached them.

Police said the children described the man, who wore a flowered pillowcase over his head during part of the incident, as 5'10" tall, slim, with dark skin, brown hair and a large nose.

After the incident, the man fled back into the bushes.

Ottawa Launches World War

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is planning a new information program to countaract "subversive propaganda" by the Parti Quebecois government, Prime Minister Trudeau said today.

Answering Opposition questions in the Commons, Trudeau said the Parti Quebecois has set up between 10 and 15 offices to spread its propaganda.

He said the federal government has responded to that action by forming a group of 10 bureaucrats from various federal departments to work on a counter-propaganda program with the new office on national unity under Paul Tellier.

The new group intends to find ways to make available to Canadians information about Canada and subvert Quebec's separatist propaganda, Trudeau said.

But he ducked questions from Allan Lawrence (PC — Northumberland - Durham) about the precise terms of reference, cost and procedures "of this new propaganda machine," as Lawrence described it.

Truedeau's announcement about the formation of the new group came when Lawrence asked about reports suggesting the government is looking into reviving Information Canada, which was scrapped last year in a government austerity move.

Asked what has happened in the past year that would make the government change its mind about the usefulness of Information Canada, Trudeau said the election of the separatist Parti Quebecois government last November and the subsequent setting up of its propaganda offices.

Truedeau said he assumed that the Progresive Conservatives would welcome Ottawa's plans to "counteract that subversive propaganda."

U.S. DOLLAR HITS NEW LOW

FRANKFURT (Reuter) — The United States dollar, which has been weakening for several weeks, fell to a record low today as dealers switched to the stronger currencies of West Germany and Japan.

The U.S. currency slipped to less than 2.25 marks, the level at which many had expected the authorities to step in and help it.

CAIRO and Libya have accepted .. ceasefire in the bloody border conflict which erupted six days ago, a spokesman for Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat said today.

He said the agreement contained three points, but declined to disclose the details.

Palestinian sources said earlier that Arafat was proposing a temporary ceasefire, an end to the long-time propaganda warfare between the two North African Arab neighbors and negotiations aimed at achieving a permanent halt to the conflict.

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne helped in negotiations, holding talks Sunday with Arafat and Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy. Boumedienne then flew to Alexandria to consult Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

There was no immediate independent confirmation that hostilities had ended in the embattled border region, which has been off limits to reporters.

But Sadat had ordered a cease-fire Sunday night, after a day of heavy Egyptian bombing of military installations inside Libya.

If the Egyptian accounts of the day's events are correct, it appears that Sadat first sent his air force to destroy Libyan installations that posed a threat to Egypt, then called a halt to the bombing.

A communique from Egypt's military spokesman said Egyptian bombers struck Kufra airfield in southeastern Libya, because Libya had sent planes there that might endanger Egypt if "the Libyan regime used the base in committing one of its follies."

The communique acknowledged "our forces took the initiative in attacking the airport" and said that the runways and some buildings had been destroyed.

Earlier, the Egyptians claimed to have virtually destroyed the Libyan air base at Adem, near Tobruk. In that action two of Egypt's Soviet-built Sukhoi bombers were shot down by the Libyans, the first losses acknowledged by Egypt since the outbreak of bombing and shelling along the border four days ago.

Egypt also claimed to have destroyed two radar installations in eastern Libya.

Second Suspect Freed

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A second suspect in the week-old slaying of two teenagers as they sat with friends beside the Fraser River was picked up Sunday in a Vancouver park but later released when his alibi checked out.

Vancouver police released a Calgary man who had been picked up because he resembled an artist's sketch of the wanted man, the sketch being based on observations of the lone young person who escaped when the rifleman opened fire on them. Two other teenagers are still missing.

A police spokesman said the man, 19, had apparently been travelling between Calgary and Vancouver about the time of the killings. A North Vancouver man apprehended Wednesday was released the following day.

On Sunday, police were flying over the river in a helicopter in the continuing search for John Den Hertog and Leola Guliker. Police divers have been unable to search the river since Friday because of high water levels.

"Most of it now is leg-work, interviews and so forth—nothing dramatic," said an RCMP spokesman.

The two victims, Evert Den Hertog and Bert Menger, were buried Saturday after 500 mourners packed Chilliwack's Netherlands Reformed Church for the funeral.

Bill Menger, father of one of the boys, thanked the hundreds of friends he said had extended sympathy to the family. "We've only been in Canada a few years, but have already learned here the meaning of real friendship," he said.

The burial took place under the watchful eye of at least a dozen RCMP officers at the services and in a nearby surveillance truck.

Laetrile Harmful to Patients—Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown University cancer specialists say they watched two cancer patients develop adverse reactions from using Laetrile and that the controversial substance might be dangerous.

Dr. Philip Schein, chief of the Georgetown's medical oncology division, said Sunday that he and three colleagues seem to have found the first reported incidents of harmful effects to cancer patients who used Laetrile, a fruit derivative which some hail as a cure for cancer.

The Georgetown physicians have submitted a report on their findings to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In their report, the Georgetown University doctors said: "It cannot be assumed that Laetrile is non-toxic or that this compound has not already contributed to the death of patients with malignant diseases."

Dr. Schein said the doctors based their findings against Laetrile on this finding: When patients used the substance they experienced reactions. When they stopped, the reactions disappeared.

One patient was a woman suffering from lymphoma—a tumor of the lymph nodes that usually responds to chemotherapy, Dr. Schein said. The patient was treated with Laetrile in Mexico and later came to the Georgetown University Medical Centre with fever, a skin rash and abdominal pain. The symptoms cleared up after she was taken off Laetrile, Dr. Schein said.

The doctor said the woman then left the hospital, decided to begin taking Laetril again and returned with the same ailments. She returned to Georgetown a second time with the same symptoms, Dr. Schein said.

The second patient, a man, has lung cancer that spread to his brain. He was receiving conventional cancer treatment at Georgetown while also taking Laetrile without the doctors' knowledge, Dr. Schein said.

He developed difficulty with eye movements and a weakness in his arm and leg muscles. After doctors learned he was taking Laetrile and persuaded him to stop, the ailments disappeared, Dr. Schein said.

75 Demonstrators Chant Outside Mill

MONTREAL (CP) — About 75 chanting demonstrators marched in front of Robin Hood Multifoods Ltd. today to protest the shooting of eight workers during a demonstration at the flour mill Friday.

Several police vans waited in the vicinity of the mill the scene of a bitter six-month strike to guard against a renewal of Friday's violence.

There was no sign of private security guards on company property today. Three of the guards were charged Saturday with discharging a firearm with intent to wound.

Released on $1,000 bail each, they were ordered not to return to the mill site on Notre Dame Street West and not to contact any of the victims or their families. A fourth guard arrested by police and ordered to appear in court Saturday failed to show up.

Police also announced they have seized 34 12-gauge shotguns and 23 boxes of ammunition belonging to Detectives Industrielles Enrg., the security firm which hired out the guards.

Meanwhile, the strikers showed reporters what they said were listening devices planted during the weekend in a nearby trailer they have been using as strike headquarters.

In a gesture of support for the Robin Hood strikers, workers at two other mills — Phoenix Flour Ltd. and Ogilvie Flour Ltd. — failed to show up for work, saying they may return Tuesday. Workers at Maple Leaf Mills Ltd. also continued their strike.

About 500 workers at the four flour mills walked off the job Feb. 2 to protest a wage rollback by the federal Anti-Inflation Board. Phoenix and Ogilvie workers reached a settlement two weeks ago and had been scheduled to resume work today.

The shooting Friday began after some participants in a demonstration by Robin Hood workers squeezed through the mill's main gate and threw rocks at security guards.

The guards wore police style riot helmets and carried chains, riot clubs and police style plastic shields.

Witnesses said protesters grabbed a fire hose in the plant yard and sprayed water at the guards. At that point, some of the guards allegedly went to cars parked by the mill and brought out shotguns which they trained on demonstrators.

900 JOIN DERBY

The sun was shining and the fishing was just a little crowded as an estimated 900 youngsters tossed in their lines along Ogden Point breakwater Sunday in the Victoria junior fishing derby.

And of the 11 prizes in the event, sponsored by C-FAX, Eaton's and Victoria Parks, only one was based on weight. For the others, all that was needed was to land a fish of any size and the young fisherman's name was eligible for the prize draw.

Dave Beecroft, 4121 Carey, won a 10-speed bike when his name was drawn first. His fish weighed in at 2½ ounces.

A transistor radio was won by Gail Price, 8, of 177 Superior with her entry, a 10¾-ounce fish.

A $15 Eaton's certificate was won by Meiching Tsoi, 2201 Spring.

Diana MacKinnon, 12, of 477 Lampson entered two fish whose total weight only reached two ounces, but they both won prizes, fishing rods from Eaton's.

Her six-year-old sister, Angelia, won a tackle box and a fish net.

Other draw prizes of fishing rod sets went to Jason Steele, 8, of 655 Richmond. He also shared the trophy with David Van Hoeke for the largest fish caught with their one-pound, 10-ounce entry; Richard Knight, 5; Rudy Vanderbrooke, 13, of 930 Terrace and Wendy Barry of 633 Nelson.

Hiker Slides At 60 mph

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP) — A 28-year-old hiker from Coquitlam was airlifted Sunday from Lions Mountain northwest of here after falling down an ice slick to the edge of a precipice.

Brad Price waited for six hours before an Air-Sea Rescue helicopter from Comox on Vancouver Island arrived to transfer him to Lion's Gate Hospital for treatment of cuts and bruises.

"I'm just lucky to be alive," sail Price, who had taken a shortcut while racing his hiking companion down the mountain. "I jumped onto what I thought was snow and then I started slipping.

"I went down at about 60 miles an hour and when I stopped and got up my hip was open and so was my chest.

"If I'd have gone another 20 feet I would have been killed."

In another hiking accident, James Savanko, 18, of New Westminster broke an arm and leg Sunday when he fell down a ravine on Burnaby Mountain.

His rescue was stalled when a support on a stretcher brought to the scene by Burnaby firemen broke. A mountain rescue team from North Vancouver was called in to make the rescue.

Superport Future Questioned

SEATTLE (AP) — The president of Northern Tier Pipeline Co. says the outcome of two court cases could influence company proposals to build an oil superport at Port Angeles, Wash.

D. Michael Curran said, however, that "for the time being," Northern Tier is "pretty much locked into" the Port Angeles location.

The reasons for the Port Angeles preference over a Cherry Point location, near Bellingham, are a state law prohibiting supertankers from plying more inland waters and the state's coastal-zone management plan restricting oil-port development at or west of Port Angeles, he said.

There also is strong environmental opposition to a Cherry Point superport.

But Curran, a Montana pipeline builder and head of the consortium of railroad and pipeline interests backing the Northern Tier proposal, said the situation could change — if the supertanker prohibition were removed, if there were no coastal-zone management plan and if the threat of environmental suits evaporated.

12 Hanafis Found Guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hanafi Moslem Leader Hamaas Abdul Khaalis was convicted Saturday on second-degree murder, kidnapping and conspiracy charges stemming from the siege of three Washington, D.C., buildings last March.

His 11 Hanafi Moslem followers also were convicted of conspiracy and of eight counts each of armed kidnapping. Two of the 11 were found guilty, along with Khaalis, of the second-degree murder of Maurice Williams, a radio newsman killed in the take-over of Washington's city hall.

Khaalis also was convicted of three counts of assault.

The all-black jury of 10 men and two women deliberated 19 hours before bringing in its verdict.

The 12 had been tried on a total of 31 counts each. Under U.S. law, all 12 might have been found guilty of Williams's death and of 24 counts of armed kidnapping each.

However, Khaalis was the only defendant convicted of crimes at all three sites.

Sentencing was set for Sept. 6.

Tornado Claims Baby's Life

WINNIPEG (CP) — A tornado that touched down last Monday night in an area about 50 miles south of Winnipeg has claimed a third life.

Tara Grenier of Winnipeg, age 14 months, died late Friday in St. Boniface General Hospital of injuries suffered in the mishap.

Her grandparents, Michael and Katherine Klem of St. Malo, died when the twister picked up their farm house and smashed it down several hundred yards away.

Her mother mother, Jo-Anne Grenier, who was also in the house at the time, was listed in good condition in hospital Sunday.

NEW YORK GETS $11.3M

WASHINGTON (WP) — The Carter administration Saturday announced an $11.35 million grant and loan package to help New York City, its people and its businesses recover from the damage done during the July 13-14 blackout.

The package falls far short of the "major disaster area" declaration that New York Mayor Agraham D. Beame and New York Governor Hugh D. Carey asked for.

But Beame welcomed it at a joint news conference with U.S. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall in New York, and said he will continue to press for additional federal assistance.

Coastal Rules Working—Lang

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister Otto Lang says voluntary anti-pollution and navigational controls on shipping entering all Canadian waters are so effective it may not be necessary to make them mandatory, as had been planned.

The minister adds that the controls soon will cover the 200-mile fishing zone off the West Coast, as they now do off the East Coast. At present they cover only the 12-mile western territorial limit.

The minister was commenting in an interview on new marine bulletins issued by the coast guard Friday creating a new control area covering the Arctic and the Hudson, Ungava and James Bays as of Aug. 1.

Earlier External Affairs Minister Don Jamieson had said in the Commons that progress is being made in negotiations with the United States on control of American tankers carrying Alaskan oil through the Strait of Juan de Fuca.

But he said there is some question about control of foreign tankers in the 200-mile area. The transport and environment departments are working on it, he said.

The transport department created an eastern control zone a year ago that also covered much of the Arctic.

It sought to prevent disasters such as the running aground of the oil tanker Arrow in 1972.

A western zone was created later but because of the lack of communications equipment it was restricted to the 12-mile zone.

Lang said Friday it will be extended to 200 miles shortly when equipment is put in place.

Welfare Future For Town

SQUAMISH (CP) — Workers at B.C. Railway's railcar plant here say the government's decision to close Railwest will turn Squamish into a welfare town.

"I was lured up here by the government who promised me a good steady job," said employee Raghbir Rurewal. "Now I'm stuck with a house I can't sell without losing $12,000 and a wife and two kids who don't want to move again.

"What are we going to do here?" asked Purewal. "The only industry in Squamish is going to be welfare."

He and other workers said in interviews that government promises of secure jobs had prompted them to move their families and homes to this town on Howe Sound 50 miles north of Vancouver.

They said the termination of their Railwest jobs will force them either to uproot their families and leave or commute to jobs in Vancouver — if they can find them.

The alternative, they said, is welfare.

Purewal said he quit work at the Aluminum Co. of Canada smelter in Kitimat, sold his house at a loss of $2,000, and headed south, lured by the promise of a steady job at Railwest.

"The government encouraged us to invest in Squamish," he said. "When we went to the bank for a mortgage, the company gave us a paper guaranteeing we would have permanent employment.

"Today I'm just a transient. And I'm going to lose $12,000 on my house, if I can sell it."

The Railwest closure was announced Thursday by B.C. Railway head J. N. Fraine, who said the company had decided to shut the plant in order not to "extend the period of uncertainty over the plant's future, which would merely prolong the agony for the employees involved."

Fraine said he hoped the Railwest employees, down to 40 from the original 260, would be able to find employment elsewhere.

NO ONE TO RUN TRAINS?

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the union representing 500 B.C. Railway trainmen says that implementation of the Shime Report's overtime recommendations for his members could leave B.C. Rail with no one to run the trains.

Glen Bowles, of the United Transportation Union, was commenting on a binding arbitration award on overtime handed down by arbitrator Owen Shime earlier this week.

The award calls for overtime payments after 40 hours of work in one week and after 80 hours of work within a two-week period.

Bowles said union and company officials will meet Wednesday to try to work out a contract based on the award.

"We are going to try very hard to make it work," he said.

The contentious issue of daily overtime has been largely responsible for trainmen being without a contract for nearly two years. The previous agreement between the two parties expired July 31, 1975.

Stolen Goods?

The plain brown envelope, the anonymous tip via the telephone — these are frequent and efficient couriers of front-page newspaper stories and big exposes by politicians. Someone on the inside with personal knowledge of an apparent scandal or wrongdoing leaks it to those who have the wherewithal to shine the full glare of publicity upon it.

Often the disclosures are highly embarrassing to those in power, sometimes they are malicious and just plain wrong. But mostly they are therapeutic: frequently some outrageous injustice is prevented or repaired. In the absence of freedom of information legislation or an ombudsman with some clout, such is the only avenue for a conscientious civil servant or low-level employee who believes sincerely that justice is not being done.

With the increasing size and complexity of modern bureaucracies—both government and the corporate variety—opportunities for such malfeasance have multiplied in geometric progression. What's a person to do? Blow the whistle, in our view.

It should be considered a citizen's duty to go as far as he possibly can to try to remedy a wrong. Government employees take an oath of secrecy but they should consider it a higher responsibility when concealment and cover-up threaten to bury some egregious wrongdoing.

So what has been the provincial government's reaction to several well-publicized examples recently? It does not initiate investigations into how these alleged travesties were perpetrated, oh no. Instead it sticks the bloodhounds on the anonymous individuals who spilled the beans and accuses those who relayed the facts to the public of a criminal offence, receiving stolen goods.

Somewhere the Social Credit administration has lost its sense of balance, indeed its memory. As opposition party, it made very good use of similar "stolen goods"—John de Wolf's misplaced briefcase containing some very hot items. It enabled now Premier Bill Bennett to steal former premier Dave Barrett's thunder and denounce a northwestern rail agreement as a poor deal.

At other times the Social Credit opposition made good use of documents that came its way by underground channels, tip-offs from disgruntled citizens and ordinary letters of complaint from constituents containing some nugget of information not known in Victoria.

But nobody put the police on their trail. In the current ICBC controversy involving MLA George Kerster, the minister in charge of the corporation, Education Minister Pat McGeer's main concern is that a definite criminal act has been committed by someone who removed confidential ICBC files and gave them to the NDP. Far down his list of concerns seems to be the very fishy circumstances surrounding Kerster's intervention with ICBC on behalf of friends and his auto dealership.

Similarly, Environment Minister Jim Nielsen demanded an investigation in the spring when a photocopy of a so-called blacklist of left-leaning civil servants in his department surfaced in the legislature via an NDP member. But it was a probe of how the document got out, not of the original compilation of the list. Nor did Nielsen or the premier seem too concerned about the distribution of the list by a member of the premier's personal staff.

The comment of NDP member Alex Macdonald (Vancouver East) on Friday is appropriate: "Instead of addressing itself to the evils that have been revealed, they attack the messenger." The government seems to have a distorted sense of values on the subject. Ignore the bad news and instead shoot the man who brought it.

Turning Out the Lights

The citizens of Victoria have reacted with horror to an idea by a city hall engineer to conserve energy (and hence money) by turning off the cluster lights on Victoria streets except during peak tourist periods and at Christmas. The cluster lights, the citizens say firmly, are part of Victoria's heritage and unique character and should not be turned off.

We have to agree with them, at least for the time being. The money saved must be weighed against the costs, and it doesn't seem at the moment that the savings would amount to very much at all.

The engineer pointed out quickly that the lights should be turned on during the tourist season as part of Victoria's proper atmosphere for tourists. But surely one of the main aims of all the current tourist promotion campaigns should be to extend the tourist season to take in spring, fall and winter months, not just the period from May 24 to Labor Day.

A longer tourist season would surely improve the stability of many local tourist-dependent businesses.

But tourists are not going to come in the off-season if there is nothing to attract them, and already many attractions are shut down after September. Need we turn off the lights too?

It is possible that in the future, if the energy crisis becomes more severe, if electricity costs ever more, the costs of keeping the lights on will outweigh the benefits. Then the subject could be brought up again.

But in the meantime, let's not send out the September message: will the last tourist please turn out the cluster lights?

PETER HADEKEL

Who Will Run Quebec TV?

QUEBEC CITY — Four months ago, Quebec Communications Minister Louis O'Neill was calling Ottawa "a foreign power" while announcing he would boycott a federal-provincial conference of communications ministers in Edmonton.

Attending the conference would mean Quebec accepts Ottawa's claim of jurisdiction in the telecommunications field, O'Neill argued at the time. While the controversial minister has not dropped his demands that Quebec must have complete control over radio, television, cable and telephone operations within its borders, O'Neill now appears to be ready to co-operate with the federal government in some areas.

A fragile truce was reached here last week when federal communications minister Jeanne Sauve met O'Neill for the first time since the Parti Quebecois was elected last November.

The two ministers agreed to put aside their jurisdiction quarrel for the time being and study ways of co-operating to provide better communication services for Quebecers.

Sauve couldn't resist scolding O'Neill for his behavior, however. "I find it strange that three months ago it wasn't useful for you to co-operate with us and now it is," she told him as the TV cameras rolled at a joint news conference.

Backing Off

One thing is clear. The tough and uncompromising attitude taken by O'Neill on the communications question has gotten him nowhere and he's been forced to back off.

Ever since he was sworn into the cabinet, O'Neill has been saying that the differences between Ottawa and Quebec over communications jurisdiction cannot be resolved until Quebec becomes an independent country.

Complete control over communications is essential to Quebec's goal of cultural sovereignty but the Trudeau government shows no signs of compromising, he says.

O'Neill has outlined a long-term communications strategy for Quebec which clearly cannot be accomplished under the current federal structure. He envisions a broadcasting system "which would foster the formation of a national collective consciousness" in Quebec by "presenting, propagating and stimulating the development of Quebec culture."

For example, Quebec media should participate in the debate over Quebec's future political status, O'Neill says. His opponents have attacked this philsophy as an attempt to turn the broadcast media into a vehicle of political propaganda.

At a time when national unity is at stake, O'Neill's conception of communications collides directly with the federal government's views as expressed in Sauve's recent telecommunications bill (Bill C-43).

The federal bill makes it clear that Ottawa has no intention of ceding direct responsibility to the provinces in the telecommunications field, although the legislation does contain a clause which allows the federal government to "delegate" some authority to the provinces if it wishes.

By allowing the federal cabinet the right to make policy directives to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission (CRTC), the legislation seems to go even farther in centralizing control of communications at the federal level.

Sauve makes no secret of her own belief that federal control over telecommunications is essential to national unity and cultural integrity in Canada, even though she is ready to satisfy provincial demands for more responsibility in some areas. Quebec has not been fighting the jurisdictional battle alone. Other provinces, most notably Saskatchewan, have been seeking control over cable television and pay TV for some time.

But Quebec's demands, dating back to the Union Nationale government in the late 1960s, have always linked control over communications with the survival of the French language and culture in Quebec.

The Liberal government of Premier Robert Bourassa escalated the pressure on Ottawa in 1972 when it created its own version of the CRTC—the Quebec Public Service Board — and began issuing cable TV permits.

This led to inevitable conflicts, such as the one in Rimouski in 1975 when federal officials placed a seal on the antenna of a cable operator licensed only in Quebec.

But the biggest blow to Quebec's demands came shortly after the Parti Quebecois government was elected when the Quebec Court of Appeals ruled in January that the provincial cable TV legislation is unconstitutional. The government is appealing the decision to the supreme court of Canada.

"The cultural dimensions of the litigation have been set aside," O'Neill complained after the court judgment was announced. "The fathers of confederation would never have imagined how much communications would develop or the future links between communication and culture."

Quebec Content

Quebec's position is that cable TV cannot be considered the same as standard television broadcasting since it does not use the airwaves and its signal can be confined to provincial boundaries.

The government wants to harness the educational and cultural potential of a Quebec-controlled cable TV system. It argues that the current hodgepodge of American and Canadian programming brought in on cable is irrelevant to the Quebec experience.

But the cable TV problem is just the tip of the iceberg as far as Quebec's communications demands are concerned. O'Neill wants full control to accomplish several immediate goals.

He wants to reduce the number of English language radio stations in the Montreal area, introduce more "Quebec content" in radio and TV programming and bring the Quebec telephone system under full provincial regulation.

The differences between Ottawa and Quebec are so fundamental in the communications field that it is hard to imagine the current truce as anything more than temporary.

The only encouraging sign for the Quebec government is that an increasing number of politicians across the country-like Conservative leader Joe Clark—are saying communications should become a provincial responsibility.

Incredible

Since the departure of George Oake I've detected a distinct change in the tenor of the Times' editorials. It's beginning to appear that one objective metropolitan daily is too much for the corporate establishment of B.C. to tolerate. I refer specifically to your editorial Innocent Bystanders in which you place most of the blame on the NDP for the crime of exposing one of the most blatant examples of patronage yet perpetrated by this Socred government. And that's saying something. But in your self-righteous attempt to cover up the fact that the press wallows in and encourages political vendettas, you conveniently ignore and distort a few salient points.

First, the reference to Alex Fraser's daughter was entirely his own doing. His big sob-sister act was an utterly needless (except for political gain) exposure of his foster daughter's private life. Second, your argument that the fact of being the husband of one's foster child removes the stigma of nepotism is cheap nit-picking. Would you seriously have us believe this gentleman was just a guy named Joe to Fraser? Thirdly, your attempt to equate NDP and Socred performance on appointments is dishonest. The Socred party got a lot of mileage out of the NDP appointing, after 101 years of right wing government, a number of public servants who weren't dedicated to the century-old ripoff philosophy. The media went along with this phony attack. Now, when there are genuine cases of Socred favor-dispensing, the NDP is rebuked by the Times for raising the issue publicly.

Fourth, Fraser made the appointment without posting the job so that other qualified personnel could apply. This is $29,000 of taxpayers money, a $10,000 bonus for a man who is being elevated from his purely political position as executive assistant to the minister. Fifth, Fraser awarded a contract of $395,000 to Peat Marwick to find the right people to staff the B.C. Buildings Corporation. Yet the minister, ignoring the experts, made his own ministerial appointment. Nevertheless the Times choose to lay most of the blame for this mess at the NDP's door. Incredible! — Ray Brasseur, 701 Esquimalt Road.

Economic Problems

May I offer your readers the following inflationary facts:

In 1962, Canada's gross public national debt was $22 billion.

In 1968, Canada's gross public national debt $37.7 billion.

In 1976, Canada's gross public national debt was $71 billion.

In 1968, Canada's unmatured debt was $11.7 billion.

In 1976, Canada's unmatured debt was $37.7 billion.

In the financial statement of Finance Minister Donald Macdonald for 1977-1978, the budgetary estimate projects that an additional deficit will be incurred, above revenues, of $5.35 billion. These figures are the little talked about legacy of wasteful, secretive, bureaucracy swollen Liberal spending habits, habits that have been the worst internal cause of Canada's inflation rate.

Speaking recently with Vancouver's Jack Webster, Mr. Trudeau "explained" that his Liberals were forced to bring in wage and price controls to break the inflationary psychology of the Canadian people. A few days later, our prime minister was playing financial games: giving $100 million to B.C. in another political inspired, federal-provincial aid pact. There is an irony in this sudden federal government generosity towards B.C., after years of B.C. sending $500 million plus in aid to Ottawa's Liberals. Of course B.C.ers do not begrudge equalization payments that are meant to bring about some rough equality of living standards across our country and help promote national unity. But it brings tears to one's eyes to realize, that after 10 expensive Trudeau years, little, other than the incurring of huge debt, has been accomplished.

The wild increase in our nation's public debt is reflected not only in the inflation rate, but in unemployment. A prime feature of the Trudeau years, the transfer of productive resources, both in terms of increased personal taxation and manpower, from the private sector into government has directly eroded Canada's competitive position abroad. A reduced capacity to compete has produced unemployment.

Is the universe unfolding as it should when Pierre Trudeau, and his revolving-door Liberal cabinet, are determined, at whatever cost to Canada, to obscure their mismanagement behind a smoke screen of maple leaf flags and maple syrup? Despite Liberal histrionics, all federal political parties are for a united Canada and bilingualism. The greatest threat to Canada's future is the government's mishandling of economic questions and planning. The federal cabinet does not have any answer for the truth; thus to survive, it must keep Canadians looking elsewhere.— Jill Schine, West Vancouver.

Mr. Gradgrind

In his letter published in your July 16 edition headed Queen No Canadian Mr. Skelton reminds me somewhat of the schoolmaster, Mr. Gradgrind in Charles Dickens' Hard Times. (Some of your readers may have watched the recent TV presentation.) This gentleman, it will be recalled, would entertain nothing but facts" and would not tolerate "wonder" or other imponderables which form such a large part of human experiences, with the sad results related in the story.

It may be unwise to sell Britain short at this seemingly low ebb in her fortunes and influence. She has staged many revivals in the past to the confusion of her critics and delight of her friends.

My last return to Britain was in the fall of 1975, when I visited not only London, but many other parts of the country as well. I observed a number of changes, some for the better, some not, but none as discouraging as those related by Max Low. I am tempted to question with Sir Walter Scott: "Lives there the man with soul so dead?" etc.

I spoke with many old friends, all very interested in Canada and all slightly envious. The idea of Canada having a "colony image" is rather laughable and at least a quarter of a century out of date.

I was not shocked out of any world of fantasy by Low's article, as I have never lived in one, being an engineer by profession. I was shocked, however, by Mr. Skelton's lack of any sense of history or of appreciation of the ties and binding power of traditions, and his suggestion that we should jettison them lightheartedly just at a time in Canada's history when their preservation, both British and French, are so important. — T. V. Lironi, 908 Deal St.

Bomb Detection

Early one morning last week it was reported on the news that the post office in Vancouver has been considering the introduction of mechanical letter bomb detectors. Do you suppose that inside postal workers will now rise up and demand that this function be done manually? — Patrick Healy, Brentwood Bay.

Great Credit

It was interesting to read of the retirement of Don Gain as church editor of the Colonist and Times, but I feel no little concern over the loss it represents to those of us who have had the pleasure and very real benefit of association and dealing with him through the years.

I am impelled to testify publicly of my deep appreciation of and best thanks for all of the kindly, courteous and generous consideration faithfully given in my many contacts with him, mainly on behalf of the Gideons, Christian Business Men's Association, summer evening gospel services in Beacon Hill Park, and the annual community Easter sunrise service. Consistent with his personal qualities, the material he has written and published has been invariably a great credit to himself and the newspapers, and certainly most satisfying and helpful to me and to associates in the promotion of worthy causes.

Gain retires with the warm esteem and gratitude of people on every hand. — M. Frank Hunter, 1320 Dallas Road.

No Finer Man

It is with shock and sadness that I read your report on Scott Wallace's retirement from political activity. This is a real tragedy. There never was, to my memory, a finer man, a gentleman of impeccable integrity and form in the public eye. And yet, our society allows him to feel unwanted. Fine men from all walks of life don't gather around him. Instead, we support so many loudmouths and demagogues, phonies and opportunists, incompetents and charismatics, unrealistic dreamers and dreaming realists. But if we only would send home half of our legislators, aldermen and assorted politicians and put one Scott Wallace in their stead, we would enjoy social, political and economic stability and sanity as never before.

It is the hope of many that Scott Wallace takes a goood holiday and, despite what he says now, will be available again to the people of Victoria, British Columbia and — yes — Canada. Nothing would ever be of more benefit to all of us than to wake up and decide to put him and people like him in charge of our affairs as soon as possible. There is no need for any political ideology or label. With people like Scott Wallace it is the man who counts. Thank you, Scott Wallace, for your honest and good work. God bless you, and we'll see you soon. — Eberhard Schulenburg, 121 Government Street.

Rub-a-dub-dub

Oh goody, Victoria is going to have a body rub parlor for men. Can we have one too?

Think of all the tired businesswomen, jaded housewives and frustrated widows who would queue up for their own private cubicle with a handsome young muscleman to give them a "massage and body shampoo."

Why not? If it's a "clean" operation why reserve such sensuous, titillating pleasure for men only? — Ruby Pearson, 2085 Avondale Road.

So-called Progress

Re: your Editor's Notebook article about newspaper computers:

With our competitive adversary system, the goal is greater efficiency and reduced manpower. Automation is simply an economy measure to make more profits for corporation owners and stockholders. It's fine also for the few fortunate employees who will operate new equipment, but there's another side of the coin.

In the back shops of various businesses the skills of many tradesmen will become redundant and the electronic age will render their mechanical tools obsolete.

So-called progress is great — except for the displaced personnel. Where do they fit into the scheme of things? Just throw them on the scrap heap? With much of today's industrial world becoming computerized, will surplus labor in the future become a recipe for more social problems?

Politicians and corporate executive say business expansion and increased production are solutions to our economic ills. That sounds fine, but when companies install modern technology requiring less labor, it is apparent that capital investment doesn't automatically mean more people will be employed. It seems that the human resource side of the equation isn't being tackled by society's leaders. New technology demands new ideas. J. K. Galbraith says successful economic policy in the future must include a more equal distribution of income.—J. E., Victoria.

Hong Kong Defies Future With Building Program

By DENNIS BLOODWORTH

HONG KONG — With a theoretical life-expectancy of only two more decades before the 99-year lease on the New Territories of Hong Kong expires and Peking should logically reclaim most of the 404 square miles that make up this British colonial anomaly, the roar and dust in the streets as machines rip out its stony heart for an ambitious new underground railway seem to express defiance of both the theory and the logic.

The multi-million dollar rapid transport system is the immediate eyecatcher, but the entire enclave is undergoing costly cosmetic surgery.

A road tunnel is to be driven under the Peak that dominates Hong Kong island to link up with the cross-harbor tunnel. A mile-long bridge has been mooted to join the mainland to the archipelago's biggest island, Lantau, where a second international airport may be built. Highways are being cut through the obstinate rock of the New Territories, new railway lines are being laid, mountains levelled, bays filled in, and new satellite towns raised to rehouse hundreds of thousands.

This is not just the last fling of the forlorn. To the Chinese leaders, the treaties whereby Britain acquired Hong Kong were imposed under duress, they have no validity, and they are not even listed among the official international accords that China recognizes. In principle, therefore, the Chinese can demand the surrender of the entire enclave at any time, not just part of it in 1997. But they themselves have declared that the question should be settled only "when conditions are ripe."

Uneasy capitalists may look for a quick return within five years on any investment they risk today, but in order not to frighten these moneyspinners in Hong Kong further, the Communists have already refused an offer from Lisbon to hand back to China the neighboring Portuguese enclave of Macao.

Pragmatic

The Communists and the Hong Kong administration have settled down to a more relaxed and permissive relationship since the ideologically prudish "Gang of Four," led by the radical Madame Mao, fell into disgrace in China. The regime of Chairman Hua Kuo-feng has quietly subordinated revolutionary prejudices to a pragmatic program for the long-term development of the People's Republic into a major modern state.

As the more sanguine Hong Kong officials point out, that not only augurs greater political stability across the border, but also means that for an indefinite period China will badly need the $1.7 billion — up to 40 per cent of Peking's annual foreign exchange earnings — that it makes out of the free-for-all British market-place on its margin.

China is careful not to discourage Hong Kong's expansion investment

The Chinese themselves become major investors and entrepreneurs in Hong Kong, where their interests include 13 banks and the control of companies whose projects range from shipbuilding and machine-tool-making to marketing Chinese petrol, paintings or pianos.

However, it is hard to believe at times that this prodigal "pearl of the orient" so beloved of tourists is not — even now — a painful pinch of grit to the close, proletarian Chinese oyster. In China rice and cooking oil are rationed, for example, while in Hong Kong one reads of "a glorious-sounding repast" which began with foie de canard au poivre vert, flown in direct from Perigord." Admittedly, the first applies to 900 million people, the second refers to 24 privileged diners; nevertheless, values are totally different — even when they comically reflect each other, as if in a distorting mirror.

In class-conscious China, men scan the pictorial magazines carefully for indications as to who is on the way up in the Party and who on the way down. In what order do the captions to the group photographs list the personalities? Have any of their titles been dropped? Who is on the right and who on the left of the Chairman? Whose photo has been touched up, whose is unflattering, and whose has been cut out altogether?

Life at Top

In post-Mao reproductions of pictures when Mao still lived, for instance, the notorious Gang of Four have been ingeniously excised and the gap they have left has been neatly closed, for they are now non-persons.

In class-conscious Hong Kong, The Hong Kong Tatler, like its counterpart in London, is also concerned with life at the top and — above all — good, reliable party men: men to be seen at this cocktail party, that champagne party, the other "romantic party," and even "a super party."

Furthermore, where in the Peking Review Chairman Hua would be caught in an informal moment with some "foreign friend," in the beautifully produced Tatler before me we have the leader of Britain's "Opposition party," and this must in turn knit brows among the Hong Kong-watchers in the Chinese capital. Why has the word "Conservative" been dropped? Mrs. Thatcher looks faintly Russian and is dressed in a rather revisionist number. Is that relevant?

Again, the commander of British forces in Hong Kong is standing on her left, not her right, and unhappily holding his hand to his stomach, as if unwell. Will he be on the way out if the Tories come to power? If so, the confidently smiling battalion commander in the foreground could be a fast-rising politico-military "helicopter" and a man to watch.

Doomed Quartet

The Tatler is as meticulous as the Peking Press about listing the full titles of a celebrity, so we have "Dr. Henry S. Y. Fang OBE, MB, BS, MCh (Orth)., FRCSE, FACS, FRACS? JP . . ." But observe that the queen's own surrogate is merely listed as "His Excellency the Governor, Chancellor of Hong Kong University", and there is no photograph of him. As in the Communist press, moreover everyone is smiling, but one apparently doomed British quartet looks as glum as the Gang of Four. Speculation runs rife.

At this point the expert in Peking would start listing the names of unfortunates whose names did not appear in this edition of the magazine at all, and check the background to see that none of the photographs had been printed the wrong way around in case, in fact, the general had been standing on Mrs. Thatcher's right all the time.

Far-fetched? But the watchers in Peking must automatically assume that if there is any object to this parade of party faces, it must be to show the world who stands where in the hierarchy, as in China. And in this, of course, they are absolutely correct.

'Press Has Double Standard on Privileges'

By LAURA FOREMAN
New York Times

Envision this scene:

In a press room provided by the government, a newspaper reporter leans back in his government-owned chair and props his feet up on his government-owned desk. He reaches for the telephone, also paid for by the taxpayers, and calls his office with an article. It is an account of a public official who has been using government money for private business. The ironies of the vision are not lost on Rep. David Obey, chairman of the Commission on House Practices, which is trying to bring order to congressional housekeeping, including the keeping of the House press gallery.

Obey says he has no complaint with the press in general, just with "cheap shot" reporters who neglect substance in favor of scandal in covering the news. But in drawing his narrow bead, Obey has discomforted a wide segment of the Washington press corps by spotlighting a question that has nagged some journalistic consciences for years:

How does the press justify criticizing government officials for enjoying certain perquisites of office when reporters themselves have job-related perquisites also paid for by taxpayers? In principle, for instance, is it wrong for cabinet members to have free limousine services, but right for reporters covering Congress to use free desks and free typewriters and to have their telephones answered by government employees?

Obey contends that the press is applying a double standard and that it might do well to look to its own integrity — perhaps by paying its own way.

Those who disagree argue that government practice of providing the press with space and facilities serves the public by giving it, through the press, access to its own government. The cost to taxpayers is relatively minuscule, they contend.

In its current incarnation, the issue began to take shape last Christmas Eve with a report by Roger Mudd, a CBS News correspondent.

Mudd told television viewers about the perquisites allowed congressmen — office space, travel allowances, franked mail and medical services, their private dining room, barber and beauty shops and five free parking places each.

What he did not say was that he and 3,000 other accredited members of the Hill press corps also have free office space, access to the same dining rooms, the option of having their hair cut in the same shops and hunting privileges, at least, for Hill parking spots.

Although Obey never mentioned Mudd by name, the report was clearly still very much on the congressman's mind on May 27 when he made a speech in Eau Claire, Wis., to the Western Wisconsin Press Association.

"I don't mind serious stories about congressional waste," he said. "What I do mind is the misplaced sanctimony of some of the reporters who have populated the House and Senate press galleries in increasing numbers the last few years. What I do mind is the national TV reporter who does a three-minute network clip on congressional 'perks' such as free parking without ever getting around to telling his viewers that he himself has a free space on the same Capitol Hill."

MUDD
. . . sanctimony?

Obey said it was costing taxpayers more than $1 million a year to maintain the two Hill press galleries. He detailed some of the costs as follows:

- Salaries for 24 gallery employees, plus special doorkeepers and messengers, $592,517.
- One hundred eight-one free parking places on the Capitol grounds, $130,000.
- About 180 free telephones with annual bills totalling $23,000.
- Desks, chairs, typewriters and other equipment, $40,000.
- Access to the same office supplies, meals, barbers, subways and cheque-cashing facilities available to congressmen.

Richard L. Madden of The New York Times is chairman of the standing committee of correspondents, the internal governing body of the two Hill press galleries. Madden said he believed Congress was obligated to provide space for reporters covering its operations but he added, "I think there are legitimate expenses that the press could pay on its own — some form of reimbursement on the typewriters, the paper that you use and even the access to the telephones. We should also reimburse them for parking.

"The problem is trying to devise a formula that is equitable," Madden said. "A big paper is going to pay whatever you have to pay to cover up there and nobody's going to get outraged about it. But what do you do about a small paper that runs a marginal operation here in town? That correspondent shouldn't have to pay the same as The Washington Post or The New York Times."

A correspondent now pays $5 for a gallery press card. Madden said that if the numerous other press rooms in Washington — at the White House, the Pentagon, the Supreme Court and elsewhere — also charged enough to cover expenses, the costs could run into the hundreds or even thousands of dollars.

Benjamin C. West, superintendent of the House gallery for 35 years, said such costs would mean that medium-size papers of 60,000 to 70,000 circulation would probably have to close their Washington operation. He noted that the galleries have existed since 1896, have always offered the same basic services and have always been free to accredited reporters.

Obey reiterated that his concern was not perquisites but hypocrisy, and whether the public was fully and fairly apprised of the news.

Meanwhile, Obey said he was also looking into the possibility of having reporters make financial disclosures, just as congressmen are now required to do.

The Late, Late, Late Movie

russell baker

There is a time in the depth of night, somewhere between the hour of euphoria and the hour of the wolf, in which one sinks as listlessly and inexorably into the pit of hopelessness as a spoon falling through a barrel of molasses. This is the hour of the car dealer.

It is known only to insomniacs and night people who, as if those two afflictions were not sufficient curse, are also addicted to post-midnight television and particularly to television reruns of old movies. For reasons known only to the cash-register keepers in charge of television programming, the good movies are almost always held back until the hour of the car dealer, when all of life's winners are sound asleep.

The good movies rarely start before 12:30 a.m., and the true greats most commonly cannot be seen before 2:20. Is this because persons of taste and discernment spend the early hours of night doing such interesting things that they have no time for television until the pit of night?

I do not know. What every movie lover does know, however, is that the stuff available before midnight is usually low quality. On the other hand, the commercials that intersperse the early-night trash are high quality, often higher quality than the movie they are disrupting.

Lavishly produced, cleverly acted, smartly written, beautifully photographed, the early-night commercials often provide a fresh breath of entertainment to relieve the air of heavy labor emanating from the movie. True, these uptown commercials are repeated until the viewer feels like an imbecile in the power of an automaton determined to teach him the multiplication tables.

After the 50th or 60th exposure to the bacon commercial, one wants to shout to the picture-book wife, "Yes, honey, this really is great bacon," to show that the lesson has been learned before the picture-book husband can say, "Honey, this is great bacon."

You shout the line. The husband goes ahead and repeats it anyhow. "Honey, this is great bacon." All right, he may still be treating you like a boob, but you know you have passed a test, have made progress, have mastered the lesson. Great bacon.

Now, the great old movie begins, and for a few minutes television is esthetically balanced. The movie is high quality; the commercials are high quality. "Honey, this is great bacon." Yes, this miserable wife is guilty of inflicting unclean collars on her husband. And this intolerable seizure of gastric distress — is it not amusing to see it so ingeniously foiled by the perfect stomach alkalizer?

One settles back, feeling television a complete harmony of acquisitory impulse and art, as beguiling salesmanship matches Cary Grant, Fredric March and Katharine Hepburn flawlessly with great bacon, marvelously laundered collars and chastened gastric distress.

Then — the hour of the car dealer. The elegant commercials retire for the night and Gary Cooper's scene is followed abruptly by a man strolling among his automobiles howling about upholstery. This man is to Gary Cooper as Soupy Sales is to Charles de Gaulle.

His whole commercial is illuminated with a five-watt bulb. His voice is on loan from a bus-station loudspeaker. But the terrible thing about him, the truly terrible thing which begins to eat into the soul, is the knowledge that he will be back after this commercial. Lord, will he be back!

You could endure him once, twice, three times, as the price of seeing Miriam Hopkins, Carole Lombard, Irene Dunne. But he's going to put patience to the trial of rack and bastinado before this night is out. Not only will he reappear time and time and time and time again, but these reappearances will happen at increasingly closer intervals.

The car dealer, of course, is only a metaphor for the entire plague of pitchmen who infest the movie. There is the carpet king, incessantly walking to his gigantic warehouse. The suit salesman. The party with the fantastic new vegetable slicer. It dices, slices, cubes, chops, peels, and all for the incredibly low price of —.

And now, back to Gary Cooper after this fantastic record bargain. The 87 greatest hits of the Ozone Beach Accordion Choir, yours today on this two-record set for only —.

I never make it to the end of the great movies. It's a case of low tolerance to torture. At 1:15 a.m. you may get 10 minutes of movie and two minutes in the bargain basement. By 2 a.m. you get two minutes of the movie and 10 minutes of the world's most resistible salesmanship.

It may be that the movie never ends, but simply fades away into unbroken hours inhabited only by the car dealer, the carpet king, the suit salesman, the vegetable slicer, the suspiciously underpriced records.

It is safer to surrender before the hour of the wolf arrives. This leaves time for a morning which gives you the chance to say, "Honey, this is great bacon."

De Gaulle Talk Replay

MONTREAL (UPI) — The voice of Gen Charles de Gaulle echoed hollowly through a half-full square Sunday as Quebec nationalists re-enacted the famed "Vive le Quebec Libre" speech that soured Franco-Canadian relations for most of the past decade.

A sparse crowd of some 2,000 cheered and applauded wildly as Cultural Development Minister Camille Laurin used de Gaulle's words to open a brief speech on the 10th anniversary of the French president's address.

De Gaulle's cry of "Vive le Quebec Libre" awakened the world to Quebec's nature as a French people and the "injustices" to which they had been subjected, Laurin said.

The re-enactment, sponsored by Quebec's French heritage guardians the St. Jean Baptiste Society, was staged under a thin drizzle from gray skies in the small Vauquelin Square next to city hall where de Gaulle originally spoke.

Sprinkled among some ardent supporters were American tourists who watched in bemusement as a band of cadets, garbed in the 18th-century regalia of a French regiment, struggled with muskets before finally getting off one sputtering fusillade to put the show on the road.

MIGHTY LEAP by a fully - clothed Billy Carter, rose clamped in his mouth, highlighted the annual Belly flop and Cannonball Diving Contest in Richmond on Saturday. Carter was one of the judges but decided on the urging of the crowd to try it himself. 325-pound Jake Decker, 28, of Vancouver won and Victoria's Ted MacKenzie placed — but where no one would tell him.

Horner Explains Why He Switched

EDMONTON (CP) — Jack Horner says he was promised an important cabinet post by the Liberals before he left the Progressive Conservative party last April.

In an interview with the Edmonton radio station CJCA broadcast Sunday, Horner, now a minister without portfolio in the Trudeau cabinet, recalled the events leading up to his decision to become a Liberal.

He said on March 10, James Coutts, Trudeau's principal secretary, 'caught up with me at home and said he had wanted to talk to me, that the prime minister had a message on how I could particularly help Canada."

"I met with him in Ottawa a few days later ... they were rather quick in dropping the whole bombshell on me.

"They said: 'We want you to join us. We guarantee you a cabinet post. We guarantee an important portfolio by summer.' I was very surprised and my immediate reaction was to turn it down. But I thought I owed it to my country to consider it."

Horner said he told Conservative leader Joe Clark about the meeting but "he at first didn't take me seriously."

"On March 22, Joe and I met ... it was an unsatisfactory meeting ... when I left I didn't have a good feeling about it."

Horner said after the meeting with Clark, he went to see John Diefenbaker — and the former Conservative prime minister "didn't advise me not to do it."

Horner said he talked to Clark again on April 3 and "told him I was going to meet with Trudeau before making up my mind."

Clark tried to dissuade Horner from meeting with Trudeau but Horner told Clark that he didn't want to turn down Trudeau's offer without talking to Trudeau.

Horner said he had "a very good meeting with the prime minister" and "I came away quite impressed with his concern for a fuller representation of all the people of Canada at his cabinet table."

"Joe phoned me the next day, quite angry, and told me he was going to strip me temporarily of my role as transportation critic in the opposition party. Then he issued a press release which I heard about immediately afterward which never mentioned the word temporarily. And that annoyed me ...

"I went into caucus the next day, the 5th or the 6th of April, and told them the whole story. I said it was becoming clear to me that I was not wanted in the Conservative party."

Horner said on the morning he announced that he was switching parties, "Joe Clark phoned and wanted me to come into caucus and pledge allegiance to him."

"I was very annoyed with Joe and I told him so, and told him he could do what he liked with his caucus."

Horner said he had considered the alternative of staying with the party to "remove Joe Clark" at the next leadership convention — but decided against it.

"I would have been persecuted across the country as the terrible Jack Horner who can't get along with anybody."

Asylum Sought

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Fifteen East Europeans vacationing in Greece have sought political asylum in Greece over the past week, police said Sunday. A spokesman confirmed the defections, first reported by a Greek newspaper Acropolis, a conservative Athens daily. The spokesman would not elaborate on the reports.

If your client leaves his briefs in your bedroom... what do you tell your wife?

Normally, a hotel room is not a very attractive place for a business meeting. Two big beds, a couple of uncomfortable chairs and a TV table...not much room to hold a pre-conference briefing.
At the Chateau Granville, on the other hand, you get a suite for the price of a room. So you and your client can flop on the comfortable chesterfield and easy chair, spread your papers out on the coffee table, take a couple of cool ones out of the fridge, and get down to business.
When your wife gets back from shopping, she can go into the separate bedroom, take a nap and freshen up for dinner and the nearby theatre without ever disturbing you or your papers.

MANY FACTIONS of Vancouver citizens were represented Sunday in the march and public meeting in support of saving the Vancouver Resources Board. Further protests are planned.

2,000 Marchers Protest Bill 65

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 2,000 people from organizations as diverse as trade unions and pensioners' groups marched through the heart of the city Sunday to protest the provincial government's plan to abolish the Vancouver Resources Board.

Under Bill 65, introduced in the legislature by Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm, the board would be dissolved and its services taken over by the provincial ministry.

The VRB is the last of a series of decentralized social service agencies set up under the former New Democratic Party government to handle welfare administration and other services.

But Sunday's protesters voted during an enthusiastic rally in a downtown theatre to take to the streets again Aug. 13 to petition for withdrawal of the bill.

"As a continuing protest, we will make Aug. 13 a "Support VRB Petition Day," collecting signatures at every major intersection in Vancouver," said Libby Davies, co-chairman of the committee organizing the rally.

The 60 organizations which form the Save The VRB joint committee, called on citizens to "support the effective, humanitarian and democratic way the VRB has delivered statutory and other needed social services."

Board chairman Ron Fenwick said later the protesters "can't just be dismissed as a group of radicals. They represented every faction of the city from east to west, north to south.

The marchers included a Social Credit Party member who carried a placard stating "Socred Member Says Kill Bill 65."

Alderman Harry Rankin, rally chairman, termed it "clients and friends day" and urged protesters to deal with other members of the provincial cabinet legislature to "see if we can't make Mr. Vander Zalm obsolete in the process."

Rankin, a former VRB chairman, said Vander Zalm's proposal is simply "a matter of money, it's a matter of saving money."

"If Vander Zalm takes over the resources board in Vancouver, he will save money and there will be six to eight month waiting periods for decisions and a return to the ugly scenes of 600 to 800 people lined up in the rain for welfare because there are only two social workers in a room without doors (for privacy)," he said.

"It's really a question of fighting for the people who need our board, those who cannot fight for themselves — the friendless and the helpless."

Fenwick said the elimination of the VRB contradicts recent steps the government has taken to have citizen committees supervise Crown corporations. The seven VRB directors, drawn from civic bodies and appointed by the provincial government, had the same function, he said.

"My resentment turned to deep resentment and now quiet anger," Fenwick said. "A quiet anger that is growing in the city . . . and will not abate until this bill is withdrawn."

UNEMPLOYED ON MARCH

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Eighteen placard carrying members of the Cape Breton Committee of Concern for the Unemployed marched into the lobby of the Canada Manpower Centre here today.

It was the second federal building the committee has occupied in its campaign of peaceful civil disobedience to protest high unemployment in Cape Breton.

Between 20 and 25 committee supporters set up housekeeping in the main lobby of the federal post office building Friday morning and remained there for 48 hours before leaving at 9 a.m. Sunday.

Gerald Yetman of North Sydney, president of the Nova Scotia Federation of Labor, led the latest group.

He said it will remain in the building for at least 24 hours, "then we'll see what we'll do."

Ladysmith Rafter Missing

LAKE COWICHAN — A search was to continue today for a 21-year-old Ladysmith man who fell into the Cowichan River after a raft in which he was riding overturned about two miles downstream from Skutz Falls Sunday.

Lake Cowichan RCMP said Craig Olin was travelling with a companion, Allan MacKay of Duncan, when their raft struck a rock in the middle of the river and turned over. The accident occurred at about 1:45 p.m.

MacKay grabbed a rock and pulled himself ashore but Olin disappeared.

RCMP co-ordinated a search Sunday afternoon but there was no sign of Olin, who is presumed to have drowned.

Thousands Flee

AVELLINO, Italy (AP — An earth tremor Sunday sent thousands of residents fleeing into the countryside around the town of Ariano Irpino, 30 miles east of this southern Italian city, officials said. The seismological station in Avellino said the tremor lasted a few seconds and was of medium intensity. No injuries or damage were reported.

Cablevision Pirating On Increase

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Devices used for illegally hooking up TVs and radios to cablevision are selling briskly in Victoria despite a law that could make both buyers and sellers liable to criminal prosecution and a two-year jail term.

The devices include splitters (units that split electronic signals into two or more equal parts), transformers, and coaxial cables of the kind used by cablevision companies. All are standard items carried at almost any TV or electronics store.

Cablevision companies are concerned because they contend buyers are using the devices to make covert additional connections to their cablevision.

And as far as Len Charlish, general manager of Victoria Cablevision is concerned, that's theft, no different from shoplifting.

Pirating signals for additional outlets is nothing new. It's been going on for years, but the practice seems to be growing.

One electronics store owner said demand for the devices is well up over last year while another said splitters are one of his best-selling items.

"They're going like hotcakes . . . we can't get enough in stock," he said.

The cablevision companies have no way of knowing how many of their customers are using illegal connections.

Gerry Davis, co-owner of Urban Cablevision which serves the western communities, says that while technically it might be possible to develop a method of monitoring signals to detect illegal hookups, the cost of such a system would be prohibitive.

For years, the only protection the companies have had is a section of the Criminal Code (287) covering theft of telecommunication.

Only a handful of people have been charged under this law, none locally. The only case law — and there are very few examples — comes from Eastern Canada.

Davis explains his reluctance to take criminal action against a subscriber: "It's simple. It's bad public relations."

The industry has long felt the only effective way of tackling the problem is to control the devices that make illegal hookups possible.

Parliament obviously agreed with this line of reasoning, passing an amendment last year to the criminal code that makes it an offence to manufacture, possess or sell devices used for illegal hookups.

Few people seem to be aware of the law which is contained in section 287 of the code. None of the electronics store owners the Times contacted knew of the law's existence, nor did the cablevision company spokesmen.

The law reads: Every one, who without lawful excuse, the proof of which lies upon him, manufactures, possesses, sells or offers for sale or distributes any instrument or device or any component thereof, the design of which renders it primarily useful of obtaining any telecommunication facility or service, under circumstances that give rise to a reasonable inference that the device has been used or is or was intended to be used to obtain the use of any telecommunication service or facility without payment of a lawful charge therefor, is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

Regional crown counsel Wally Anderson says the law could have far-reaching implications if it was enforced, but knows of no instance where it has been.

Ken Salt of the provincial attorney-general's ministry says he believes the law was made more as a result of lobbying by telephone companies than by the cablevision industry and the toughness of the law is directed more to infractions against the former.

In any event, both Salt and Anderson agree the law applies equally to cablevision and they note that certain features of it are uncommon to criminal law.

The first is the onus on the accused to prove he has a lawful excuse to own one of the devices. Normally, the onus of proof rests with the Crown.

The second is that the law only requires there be a "reasonable inference" that the devices will be used for an illegal purpose. Normally, the law requires evidence beyond any shadow of doubt.

Local electronic store owners say until the amended law has been tested in court, they will continue to sell the devices.

"How do we know the buyer's going to use these things for an illegal purpose?" said one store owner, who asked not to be identified. "He may need them for his own antenna system or may be an apartment owner putting in a system. We don't know and we don't ask."

It's unlikely the cablevision companies will press for action.

"I wouldn't do it," Davis says. "And I doubt any other operator would, either. It's too serious a penalty.

"I feel there has to be a deterrant but I think it's too severe for someone making a second outlet. I mean sending a person to jail for two years for trying to get out of paying a $60 rental charge. That's ridiculous.

"But if a person steals a drop by climbing a pole and running a line to his home, well, that's another thing.

"Then I think he should get just what he deserves."

Appeal Planned

One of the groups opposed to the construction of a 1,200-foot outfall off Esquimalt Lagoon has filed notice of its intention to appeal the issuance of a permit by the Pollution Control Branch, a branch spokesman confirmed today.

The organization in question is the so-called Concerned Citizens of B.C. whose president, Frank Heinrich, lives at 3504 Happy Valley Road.

Today was the final day for notifying the branch of intention to appeal, and the would-be appellants now have another 30 days in which to submit the appeal itself to the Pollution Control Board.

Heinrich could not be reached for comment. In the past he has declined to give any details of the organization's membership.

Sharp controversy has surrounded the proposed outfall since last September, when the Capital Region Board decided that it was the solution to the problem of leaking sewage from a 76-lot subdivision overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon.

Prison Reform Pressure Urged

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Reforms at William Head and other federal prisons will come about only through public pressure, says Sharon MacBain, penitentiary reform committee chairman of the Victoria Justice Council.

She said Vancouver MP Art Lee made it clear at a weekend meeting that the federal government will not act on prison reform unless it is pushed.

Lee attended a meeting in Vancouver of groups interested in getting action on a parliamentary committee report on prison reforms. The report was handed down in the spring but has not been acted on.

The meeting was called by the Victoria Justice Council.

MacBain said the meeting was informed that federal Solicitor-General Francis Fox will make his first statement to the Commons on the report within a week, but it is not clear whether any legislation is planned. Lee is parliamentary secretary to Fox.

MacBain said Lee made it clear that Ottawa was in no hurry to get into the controversial questions raised by the report. It was not regarded as a vote-getting document and action could only be expected if community groups continued to put pressure on the government.

Although the Victoria Justice Council does not agree with all recommendations in the report, it believes action is needed on at least some of the issues raised, she said.

"The report says there is a crisis situation in our prisons that needs to be dealt with immediately," she said. "Despite this urgent statement, nothing has been done so far."

The only decision taken by Fox has been to reject a suggestion by the parliamentary committee that it continue its existence to help get the report implemented, MacBain said.

The meeting, called by MacBain, was attended by the Vancouver Prisoners' Right Group, Native Court Workers Association and the Lower Mainland Justice Council.

Leaking Fumes In Boat Cabin Hospitalize Six

Six persons were taken to hospital in Sidney Sunday night after deadly carbon monoxide gas fumes filled the cabin of a 24-foot pleasure craft.

Sidney RCMP said the six had been on a day excursion and were returning to Bosun's Marina at about 8:50 p.m. when some of them became dizzy and one passed out.

A police spokesman said the skipper of the boat, William Dewhurst, 52, of 2603 Prior, managed to dock the boat in the marina and call out for help.

Dewhurst, his wife Patricia, 32; Edward Dewhurst, 78, his father; Thomas Dewhurst, 80, an uncle, and family friends Elvinas Margalikas, 49, and Norma Joyce Margalikas, 45, were taken to Resthaven Hospital for treatment and kept overnight for observation. They were expected to be discharged today.

Police said a check of the boat, a 24-foot Fairliner, showed nothing mechanically wrong.

It is believed, however, the cabin had been closed which cut off cross-ventilation and allowed fumes from the engine to slowly build up to a dangerously high level.

FIRE DOUSED FROM AIR ON GALIANO

Air tankers and a helicopter fitted with a "monsoon bucket" were needed to bring a forest fire on Galiano Island under control this morning.

The fire burned about three acres on the southern end of the island. No private property was endangered by the blaze.

An A-26 converted Second World War fighter-bomber carrying 850 gallons of fire retardant made six runs over the fire.

The helicopter was brought in later to clear up some hot spots. It carries a 110-gallon bucket that picks up sea water and releases it through a trap door.

Between 20 and 30 men, including the Galiano volunteer fire department, battled the fire on the ground.

Robbery Nets $810

A brazen daylight robbery of a city gas station Sunday netted a bandit $810.

Victoria police said the man, described as in his early 20s with dark, frizzy hair, entered the Imperial Esso station at Hillside and Shelbourne at 3 p.m. and approached attendant Douglas James Schuman, 19.

Schuman, alone at the time, told police the robber said only "the money" and opened the left side of his jacket to reveal a black revolver.

IT WAS HOT BUT NO RECORD

Sunday was the hottest day of the year in Victoria.

But it wasn't a record, the weather office said today.

Temperature reached 26.7 degrees Sunday. This compared with the previous high for the year of 25.2 degrees, set June 7.

The record temperature for July 24 was set in 1965 — 28.3 degrees.

The outlook, meanwhile, is for more of the same for the next few days — hot and dry.

Wallace, Will Ye No Come Back Again?

ALTHOUGH SCOTT WALLACE may believe that he is saying goodbye to politics, I hope that politics isn't through with him. Not because British Columbia's Tory chieftain and lone Progressive-Conservative legislator is a good politician. He isn't, which is precisely why the House can ill afford to lose him.

Good politicians abound. Our legislature can boast its quota of them — wily strategists effective in debate, strictly governed by their party lines and capable of charming the voter off his perch when campaign time rolls around.

The political process demands them. Without them, the complex business of steering a province or a country under the free election multi-party system would be impossible.

But a healthy diet calls for roughage along with the bland, and Dr. Wallace supplies that ingredient in faithful measure. He has proved himself to be one of God's rarest creatures, an honest man in a kinky world. Politics in general and the Progressive Conservatives in particular would be poorer without him.

For some years past, the B.C. Tory has placed high on the endangered species list. I suspect that he might even have joined the great auk and the passenger pigeon in extinction by now, if Wallace hadn't flown over the Social Credit fence on the wings of his strong convictions.

His shift to the Progressive Conservative camp may have been viewed with misgivings by some of its old grey heads, but it has kept the party represented in the House. How long, I wonder, will that representation continue if Wallace can't be persuaded to change his mind?

Admittedly, that could call for a very powerful brand of persuasion, if it's possible at all.

In spite of his legislative score as Oak Bay MLA — first as Social Credit member, then Independent and finally Progressive Conservative — the outspoken doctor is no weathervane. It is abundantly plain from the record that he is motivated by his beliefs rather than by party, as witness his early and politically naive attempts to reform Social Credit from within the W. A. C. Bennett ranks.

The Scottish-born are stubborn beyond the ordinary run, and Scott Wallace impresses me as an extra-obstinate representative of his race. He is also a rocker of boats and a disturber of hornets' nests, for which more power to his elbow.

He was embattled when I first met him. British Columbia was about to move into state medicine, the doctors were in an uproar, and Scott Wallace was not willing to see government intrude on the strictly medical aspects of his profession without a fight.

A doctor, he maintained, was not to be turned into a civil servant. Armed with convictions arrived at in the United Kingdom, he hammered to drive his point home. He was vocal, stubborn and undaunted, and if our Medicare has largely escaped the errors and excesses that might have crippled it, he deserves a solid share of the credit.

In politics, he has displayed a complete disregard for where the chips may fall. If he sees the approach to a problem as wrong, he has at it. In an assembly that has seen good men as well as rascals, he has been much more than a minority party leader in opposition. He has been the conscience of the House.

Far be it from me to disagree with his estimate of himself as a misfit in politics! What the man apparently fails to realize is that his value as a legislator lies in that very three-corneredness which he deprecates.

The Scott who has wi' Wallace bled to arrive at what must surely have been a painful decision has amply earned the right to return to private life.

But I trust for the sake of decency in politics that he will reconsider . . . and I'm certain that more British Columbians than the dour non-diplomat dreams of will back that sentiment with a loud amen.

Esquimalt Holds Library Meeting

Esquimalt aldermen were to meet in special session at 5 p.m. today to consider a revised long-term lease proposal for Greater Victoria Public Library.

The meeting was called in order to secure a quorum of council, which could not otherwise be expected until the next regular meeting in August.

Three of the four core municipities turned down an earlier rental scheme proposed by B.C. Building Corp. for premises being built on Broughton.

A revised proposal would provide for a longer term — 10 years — with option to expand the space required, and for a reduced rental per square foot to $8.25 a month, of which the provincial library commission will pay $2.

STACY SURVIVES CHARGE TO CAPTURE OPEN CROWN

CHASKA, Minn. (AP)—Tenacious Hollis Stacy withstood an early charge by newly-turned professional Nancy Lopez to capture the 1977 U.S. Women's Open golf tournament Sunday.

The 23-year-old Stacy, who held the lead throughout four rounds at the 6,313-yard Hazeltine National Golf Club course, shot a final-round 74 to finish with a four-over-par 292, two strokes ahead of Lopez.

Playing in her first tournament as a pro, the 20-year-old Lopez moved into a share of the lead on the Sixth hole with a birdie after Stacy had bogeyed No. 5.

They remained tied until Lopez took a double-bogey six on the 12th hole when she hit a tree on her second shot, went over the green on the approach shot, chipped back on and then two putted.

Stacy, who had never finished higher than 13th in eight previous Open appearances, increased her season's earnings to over $45,000 on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour with Sunday's $1,000 winner's cheque.

Lopez, who finished in a three-way tie for second as an amateur at the Open in Atlantic City two years ago, pocketed $7,000.

The victory was Stacy's second during her four-year LPGA career.

Defending champion JoAnne Carner finished in third place, three strokes back, at 295 while Jan Stephenson, who began the final round just one shot off the lead, fell into a three-way tie for fourth at 298 following a disastrous 79.

Amy Alcott and Pat Bradley, who fired a 70 Sunday to match the best round of the tournament, finished at 298.

Ron Grahame Signs Autograph During Celebrity Golf Tourney

HOST PRO SHOWS THEM HOW IN CELEBRITY GOLF EVENT

A team captained by host professional Don Billsborough captured top honors in the third annual Celebrity golf tournament but the big winner appears to be the B.C. Heart Foundation.

Tournament chairman Bill Wakeham said Sunday's benefit tournament at Uplands is expected to realize "about $9,000".

He emphasized, however, it may be two or three days before a final figure will be available.

Billsborough, hockey star Dennis Maruk of Cleveland Barons, Gary Kelly, Bill Thomas and Dave Moffatt posted a net 44, 26 under par to tie another team captained by Vancouver professional Alvie Thompson.

Billsborough's team, however, won out on a countback.

Thompson's squad included Andre Boudrias of Quebec Nordiques, Al Davies, Bill Mayzes and Gord Ritchie.

Three teams captained by Mike Parker, Neil Murray and Lyle Crawford were next with net 74s. Colwood pro Bob Hogarth's team was sixth with a net 48 followed by entries headed by Jay Wilson of Jasper Park Lodge and Vancouver Canuck's Dennis Kearns.

Vancouver professionals Bob Cox and Richie Leisen topped the low gross scorers with one-under-par 69s, two strokes better than Billsborough, Doug Robb and Murray. Uplands assistant Bruce Rands followed with a 72 while Gorge Vale's Earl Davies was seventh low pro with a 74.

Pittsburgh Penguin goaltender Dunc Wilson and Vancouver's Rick Blight topped the hockey players with 79s. Montreal Canadien's Peter Mahovlich was next with an 81, followed by Ron Grahame, the one-time Victoria Cougar who recently was signed by Boston Bruins Grahame had an 83, one stroke better than Jerry Korab of Buffalo Sabres. Rick LaPointe, another Victoria native now playing with Philadelphia Flyers, was sixth with an 87.

Each of the 35 five-man teams was to have included a pro, a hockey star and three amateurs, each of whom paid an entry fee of $50.

Ten hockey players listed in the pre-tournament draw failed to show. They were Jack McIhargey, Don Murdoch, Wayne Bianchin, Brad Maxwell, Greg Boddy, Pierre Larouche, Gerry O'Flaherty, Tracy Pratt, Grant Mulvey and Kurt Brackenbury.

Tournament officials filled in with Uplands members.

NANAIMO GIRL FOURTH IN PENTATHLON TEST

WINNIPEG (CP) — Diane Jones-Konihowski won all five of her pentathlon events on the weekend at the Canadian inter-regional decathlon-pentathlon championships.

Jones-Konihowski was the best of 10 women competitors in the two-day meet with 4,361 points, well ahead of runner-up Ann Crump of Vancouver, who collected 3,718 points, and third-place Liz McBlain of Montreal who had 3,702 points. Laurie Hirst of Nanaimo finished fourth with 3,589 points.

In the decathlon, Zenon Smiechowski of Burnaby led 14 men competitors with 6,953 points. Alain Luzier of Montreal was second at 6,862 and Andy McGregor of Maple Ridge, was third at 6,520.

Matuszak Arrested

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Defensive tackle John Matuszak of Oakland Raiders was arrested Sunday on a one-year-old marijuana possession charge as he visited friends near his alma mater.

Matuszak, a former University of Tampa star, was released on $502 bond and planned to leave today for the Raiders National Football League training camp in Santa Rosa, Calif.

The six-foot, eight-inch, 275-pounder was charged with possession of marijuana, a misdemeanor, after a traffic accident July 3, 1976 in Tampa. Police said they found four grams of marijuana in the trunk of his car.

A warrant was issued for his arrest Feb. 24 when he failed to appear at trial, but a prosecutor said the charge was not serious enough to extradite Matuszak, 26, from California.

No court date has been set.

Too Expensive As an Amateur

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Canadian amateur golf is losing another of its fine performers to the pro ranks — Jim Nelford, the 22-year-old from Burnaby, B.C.

"It's too expensive to play amateur," said Nelford, Canadian amateur champion in 1975 and 1976. He'll compete in the Western amateur at Benton Harbor, Mich., and the Canadian amateur at Ancaster, Ont., in early August. He'll close out his amateur career in the British Columbia Open.

Burnaby Angler Wins Sun Derby

VANCOUVER — Sandy McLellan of Burnaby landed a 34-pound, five-ounce chinook to capture the top prize in the 38th annual Sun salmon Derby Sunday.

Fine Effort By Kostiuk

COLUMBUS, Ohio (CP) — The Canadian national volleyball team was defeated 17-15, 12-15, 14-16, 9-15 by the United States national team in an exhibition match Saturday night.

The Canadian team, however, received outstanding performances from rookies Al Kostiuk of Victoria and Tom Jones of Mission, as well as veterans Garth Pischke and John Paulsen, both of Winnipeg.

The Canadian team's tour continues with a match tonight in Cincinnati.

Lee's Tough Struggle Produces 20th Crown

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — It's been a long, tough struggle for Lee Trevino these last six months, but the 37-year-old veteran of the professional golf tour believes he's a better man because of it.

"When you've been knocked down, you realize that what got you there was hard work," Trevino said Sunday after winning the Canadian Open championship, culminating a comeback from major back surgery last November that left his golf future in doubt.

"You want to prove you're not washed up. You have to work hard."

And work hard he did, leading the $225,000 tournament from start to finish and picking up the winner's cheque of $45,000 and the Peter Jackson Trophy. He shot a two-over-par 74 on Sunday for a four-round total of 280, eight strokes under par on the demanding Glen Abbey Golf Club course.

Trevino, who increased his money winnings this year to $71,235 with the victory—his 20th since joining the Professional Golfers Association tour in 1967—finished four strokes ahead of Peter Oosterhuis, a native of Britain who now makes his home in California.

Oosterhuis finished with a 70 for a 284 total, winning $25,650. Another stroke back at 285 was Tom Kite, who shot a final-round 73 to take home $15,975.

There were six golfers another stroke back at 286—Charles Coody, Mike McCulloch, Bill Kratzert, Ray Floyd, Mike Morley and Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus, who along with Kite and Floyd trailed Trevino by six strokes going into the final round, had a 74 Sunday—a disappointing finish for the man who designed the 7,129-yard course.

Tom Shaw finished at 287, Andy Bean and Bob Shearer were at 288—even par—and Billy Casper, Howard Twitty, Andy North and Tom Weiskopf finished at 289. Defending champion Jerry Pate finished with a 77 for a 299 total.

George Knudson, despite bogeying the last three holes of the final round, finished at 291, including a 76 Sunday, that earned the Toronto golfer $2,700. Jim Nelford of Burnaby, B.C., the only amateur to make the cut and who, along with Knudson, were the only survivors of a 19-man Canadian contingent, shot a final-round 79 for 311.

Trevino, who won the 1971 Canadian Open at Richelieu Valley in Montreal, underwent surgery Nov. 23 to correct a herniated disc. He injured his back moving a large pot filled with dirt at his home in Santa Teresa, N.M.

The road back was a tough one, filled with pain, stretching exercises, a special diet that has him eating breakfast as his only meal of the day, and constant worry.

"You can't believe what pain I'm in when I get up in the morning," Trevino said. "The doctors didn't want me to start playing until July, but I started in February.

"I was in pain, but the doctors told me I couldn't hurt myself by playing."

Trevino, who last won in mid-May of last year at the Colonial Invitational, rejoined the tour at the eighth event—Inverrary. He has made the cut in 13 of 14 events this year and his best previous finish was a tie for seventh in the Memorial.

Trevino's victory earned him an exemption into the World Series of Golf at Akron, Ohio, in September and came before a total attendance of 85,500, a Canadian Open record.

Kite and Oosterhuis were the only ones to threaten. Kite moved to five-under for a while as Trevino dropped to nine under, but the outcome was never in doubt after Trevino birdied the fifth and sixth holes—the fifth when he dropped a 25-foot putt.

Bate Woes Mount As Underwood Hurt

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — The problems continue to mount for Victoria Bates.

On a 14-game exhibition tour through the U.S., the defending Canadian senior men's softball champions are without victory after six outings.

While he's concerned about it, the sour, on-field performance isn't manager Joe Patterson's only problem.

He may be forced to forget Reg Underwood for the rest of this season.

The fleet, hard-hitting outfielder, one of the bright lights of Victoria's so-far dismal journey, suffered a broken bone in his right hand Saturday and may be lost to the team for the balance of the season.

Underwood suffered the injury when he fell after making a spectacular catch in the first game of a Saturday doubleheader in Aurora, Ill.

To further compound Patterson's woes, centre fielder Ken Bate aggravated a groin injury. Bate's injury is not believed to be too serious.

Underwood is scheduled to undergo a more detailed examination in a Springfield hospital today.

Aurora and Springfield didn't make things any easier on the field.

Aurora swept Saturday's twinbill, 5-1 and 7-1, while Springfield extended Victoria's winless streak to six by taking 8-5 and 3-0 decisions Sunday.

Bates are to face Springfield again tonight before moving on to Cedar Rapids, Iowa, for two more games Wednesday. Victoria concludes the four-city tour with a series in Santa Rosa, Calif., on Thursday.

Afield, Patterson's worry has been his team's fielding. It has been far below the form Bates have shown while emerging as the powerhouse in Canada over the past three seasons.

In their six games on tour, Bates have committed 20 errors. They were charged with seven bobbles Saturday and another six Sunday.

Bates, despite Underwood's absence, seemed headed for a slump-ending victory in Sunday's first game here. Playing in temperatures that reached 99 degrees, Bates struck quickly and were on top by a 5-2 score after 5½ innings.

Then disaster struck again. Five singles, a walk and a hit batter led to six Springfield runs.

Ray Burelson, Springfield's winner in a relief role, then stuck around to check Victoria on two hits — singles by John Green and Pete Songhurst — in the second game.

Bates now have a 35-16, won-lost record for the season but have lost 13 of their last 17 games.

Whitecaps Subdue Silvers In Overtime Soccer Duel

Midfielder Gary Ayre scored in sudden-death overtime to give Vancouver Whitecaps a 2-1 win over Las Vegas Quicksilvers in North American Soccer League action Sunday at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

While Vancouver had the edge in the tight game before 11,200 fans, hot weather kept play at a slower pace than usual.

Las Vegas defenceman Brian Joy took advantage of slow play early in the second half and moved quickly to open the scoring at 63 minutes. He was assisted by Axel Neumann and Jose Diamantino.

Vancouver tied the score four minutes later with a goal by forward Derek Possee on assists from Bob Lenarduzzi and Brian Bason.

Ayre broke the 1-1 tie at one minute, 21 seconds into the first sudden-death period.

Vancouver fired 25 shots on the Quicksilvers goal, compared to six for Las Vegas. Quicksilvers' goalie Peter Thomas made seven saves while Arnie Mausser turned back three for Vancouver.

Whitecaps earned eight points with the victory that keeps them in second place in the western division, 12 points back of the Minnesota Kicks and 11 ahead of third-place Seattle Sounders.

Both the Kicks and Sounders were shutout victims during weekend matches.

Fred Binney scored twice at St. Louis to lead the Stars to a 4-0 triumph over the Kicks on Sunday and the Sounders dropped a 3-0 decision to Fort Lauderdale on Saturday.

San Jose Earthquake clipped Chicago Sting 1-0 and Connecticut Bicentennials got a brilliant goaltending effort from Eugene Duchateau as they blanked Rochester Lancers 2-0 in other Sunday games.

Toronto Metros-Croatia was bounced 2-0 by Tampa Bay Rowdies in a Saturday contest.

Burnaby Cinches Top Junior Rung

BURNABY — There really wasn't much doubt but Burnaby Cablevision removed the final mathematical possibility about its order of finish in the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League.

Now with a 23-1, won-lost record, Burnaby nailed down first place Sunday by clipping second-place New Westminster Salmonbellies 16-13 before about 1,100 fans.

The 'Bellies have 36 points and trail Burnaby by 10.

Dan Wilson, Eric Cowieson and Dan Perreault led Burnaby with three goals each, while Paul Dalmonte added two. Mat Aitken, John Purdon, Alan Kirk, Loyd Symons and Terry Bingley rounded out the Burnaby effort with singles.

Bob Zannusso, Ken Brown, Jack Fulton and Ivan Tuura paced New Westminster with two goals each. Mark Tuura, Mario Gavorchin, Bruce Turris, Bruce Shipley and Shane Spring tallied singles.

Jim Poelzer stopped 52 shots in New Westminster nets while Greg Pryde turned aside 55 shots.

Victoria Riflemen Reach Final Round

BISLEY, England (CP) — J. C. Roy of Montreal was the top-scoring Canadian in the semi-final stage of the Queen's Prize at the Bisley rifle matches Saturday and went into the final 100 with 146 to count out of a possible 150 at the short ranges.

Paul Mullin, the 16-year-old from Mississauga, Ont., who has been putting up top-class performances during the week, won himself one of the coveted Queen's 100 badges when he qualifiel for the final with the 145, and Bob Barwise from Charlottetown, got in with the same score.

Clive Cross, of Saanichton, got in with 144. So did one of the young cadets, Mark Alexander, of Windsor, Ont., also with 144.

Ian Whitehead of Victoria, another of the Canadian cadet team, got into the Queen's 100 final the hard way, after a tie shoot between 26 competitors with a 143 qualifying score to fill the last 21 places.

Juan de Fuca, Saanich Collect Crowns

Two teams from Greater Victoria captured British Columbia Tier II titles and five others earned berths in provincial Tier I championship finals during round-robin minor lacrosse tournament in various locations at the weekend.

Saanich Peninsula won the Division III, Tier II title with a better goals-for-and-against record after finishing in a three-way tie with Nanaimo and Burnaby Norburns with 3-2 records.

In the Division VII final at Coquitlam it took three overtime periods before a goal by Shawn Coutts gave Juan de Fuca the crown with a 6-5 win over second-place New Westminster. Juan de Fuca finished with a 4-1 record.

Saanich finished third in the Division I tourney at Port Coquitlam, which was won by Norburns; another Saanich squad placed fourth in the Division II tussle at Abbotsford, won by the host club; Juan de Fuca was fourth in the Division IV playoff at Langley, won by the host team; Esquimalt came second in the Division V tourney at Pearkes Arena, won by New Westminster; Juan de Fuca was third in the Division VI battle at Nanaimo, won by Port Coquitlam; Saanich and Esquimalt were fourth and fifth, respectively, in the Division VIII tourney at Esquimalt Sports Centre, won by Langley; and Juan de Fuca placed fifth in the Division IX scramble at Port Moody, won by Port Coquitlam.

The first and second-place teams from the Tier I tourneys advance to the B.C. Tournament of Champions, Aug. 6-7 in New Westminster, where they will face each other for Divisional crowns.

Victoria won the Division I tournament with a 2-0 record and will face Norburns, who were 1-1, in the final.

Paul Pynn scored four goals while leading Victoria to a 10-8 win over Norburns on Saturday and Jim Lightbody scored four to lead Victoria to a 15-8 decision over Richmond on Sunday.

Four Saanich squads finished second in tourneys to gain berths in provincial finals.

Norburns will take on Saanich in the Division IV final, South Burnaby will go against Saanich for the Division V crown, Coquitlam will tackle Saanich for the Division VII laurels and Norburns will meet Saanich in the Division VIII final.

Other divisional finals will pit Norburns against New Westminster (Division II), Coquitlam against Surrey (Division III), Richmond against Coquitlam (Division VI) and New Westminster against Norburns (Division IX).

Juan de Fuca Whalers finished second to South Burnaby Kirby's Klippers in the junior women's championship, a five-team, round-robin affair, in White Rock.

STACY SURVIVES CHARGE TO CAPTURE OPEN CROWN

CHASKA, Minn. (AP)—Tenacious Hollis Stacy withstood an early charge by newly-turned professional Nancy Lopez to capture the 1977 U.S. Women's Open golf tournament Sunday.

The 23-year-old Stacy, who held the lead throughout four rounds at the 6,313-yard Hazeltine National Golf Club course, shot a final-round 74 to finish with a four-over-par 292, two strokes ahead of Lopez.

Playing in her first tournament as a pro, the 20-year-old Lopez moved into a share of the lead on the Sixth hole with a birdie after Stacy had bogeyed No. 5.

They remained tied until Lopez took a double-bogey six on the 12th hole when she hit a tree on her second shot, went over the green on the approach shot, chipped back on and then two putted.

Stacy, who had never finished higher than 13th in eight previous Open appearances, increased her season's earnings to over $45,000 on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour with Sunday's $1,000 winner's cheque.

Lopez, who finished in a three-way tie for second as an amateur at the Open in Atlantic City two years ago, pocketed $7,000.

The victory was Stacy's second during her four-year LPGA career.

Defending champion JoAnne Carner finished in third place, three strokes back, at 295 while Jan Stephenson, who began the final round just one shot off the lead, fell into a three-way tie for fourth at 298 following a disastrous 79.

Amy Alcott and Pat Bradley, who fired a 70 Sunday to match the best round of the tournament, finished at 298.

HOST PRO SHOWS THEM HOW IN CELEBRITY GOLF EVENT

A team captained by host professional Don Billsborough captured top honors in the third annual Celebrity golf tournament but the big winner appears to be the B.C. Heart Foundation.

Tournament chairman Bill Wakeham said Sunday's benefit tournament at Uplands is expected to realize "about $9,000".

He emphasized, however, it may be two or three days before a final figure will be available.

Billsborough, hockey star Dennis Maruk of Cleveland Barons, Gary Kelly, Bill Thomas and Dave Moffatt posted a net 44, 26 under par to tie another team captained by Vancouver professional Alvie Thompson.

Billsborough's team, however, won out on a countback.

Thompson's squad included Andre Boudrias of Quebec Nordiques, Al Davies, Bill Mayzes and Gord Ritchie.

Three teams captained by Mike Parker, Neil Murray and Lyle Crawford were next with net 74s. Colwood pro Bob Hogarth's team was sixth with a net 48 followed by entries headed by Jay Wilson of Jasper Park Lodge and Vancouver Canuck's Dennis Kearns.

Vancouver professionals Bob Cox and Richie Leisen topped the low gross scorers with one-under-par 69s, two strokes better than Billsborough, Doug Robb and Murray, Uplands assistant Bruce Rands followed with a 72 while Gorge Vale's Earl Davies was seventh low pro with a 74.

Pittsburgh Penguin goaltender Dunc Wilson and Vancouver's Rick Blight topped the hockey players with 79s. Montreal Canadien's Peter Mahovlich was next with an 81, followed by Ron Grahame, the one-time Victoria Cougar who recently was signed by Boston Bruins Grahame had an 82, one stroke better than Jerry Korab of Buffalo Sabres. Rick LaPointe, another Victoria native now playing with Philadelphia Flyers, was sixth with an 87.

Each of the 35 five-man teams was to have included a pro, a hockey star and three amateurs, each of whom paid an entry fee of $50.

Ten hockey players listed in the pre-tournament draw failed to show. They were Jack McIhargey, Don Murdoch, Wayne Bianchin, Brad Maxwell, Greg Boddy, Pierre Larouche, Gerry O'Flaherty, Tracy Pratt, Grant Mulvey and Kurt Brackenbury.

Tournament officials filled in with Uplands members.

Whitecaps Subdue Silvers In Overtime Soccer Duel

Midfielder Gary Ayre scored in sudden-death overtime to give Vancouver Whitecaps a 2-1 win over Las Vegas Quicksilvers in North American Soccer League action Sunday at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

While Vancouver had the edge in the tight game before 11,200 fans, hot weather kept play at a slower pace than usual.

Las Vegas defenceman Brian Joy took advantage of slow play early in the second half and moved quickly to open the scoring at 63 minutes. He was assisted by Axel Neumann and Jose Diamantino.

Vancouver tied the score four minutes later with a goal by forward Derek Possee on assists from Bob Lenarduzzi and Brian Bason.

Ayre broke the 1-1 tie at one minute, 21 seconds into the first sudden-death period.

Vancouver fired 25 shots on the Quicksilvers goal, compared to six for Las Vegas. Quicksilvers' goalie Peter Thomas made seven saves while Arnie Mausser turned back three for Vancouver.

Whitecaps earned eight points with the victory that keeps them in second place in the western division, 12 points back of the Minnesota Kicks and 11 ahead of third-place Seattle Sounders.

Both the Kicks and Sounders were shutout victims during weekend matches.

Fred Binney scored twice at St. Louis to lead the Stars to a 4-0 triumph over the Kicks on Sunday and the Sounders dropped a 3-0 decision to Fort Lauderdale on Saturday.

San Jose Earthquake clipped Chicago Sting 1-0 and Connecticut Bicentennials got a brilliant goaltending effort from Eugene Duchateau as they blanked Rochester Lancers 2-0 in other Sunday games.

Toronto Metros-Croatia was bounced 2-0 by Tampa Bay Rowdies in a Saturday contest.

Burnaby Cinches Top Junior Rung

BURNABY — There really wasn't much doubt but Burnaby Cablevision removed the final mathematical possibility about its order of finish in the Western Canada Major Junior Lacrosse League.

Now with a 23-1, won-lost record, Burnaby nailed down first place Sunday by clipping second-place New Westminster Salmonbellies 16-13 before about 1,100 fans.

The 'Bellies have 36 points and trail Burnaby by 10.

Dan Wilson, Eric Cowieson and Dan Perreault led Burnaby with three goals each, while Paul Dalmonte added two. Mat Aitken, John Purdon, Alan Kirk, Loyd Symons and Terry Bingley rounded out the Burnaby effort with singles.

Bob Zannusso, Ken Brown, Jack Fulton and Ivan Tuura paced New Westminster with two goals each. Mark Tuura, Mario Gavorchin, Bruce Turris, Bruce Shipley and Shane Spring tallied singles.

Jim Poelzer stopped 52 shots in New Westminster nets while Greg Pryde turned aside 55 shots.

NANAIMO GIRL FOURTH IN PENTATHLON TEST

WINNIPEG (CP) — Diane Jones-Konihowski won all five of her pentathlon events on the weekend at the Canadian inter-regional decathlon-pentathlon championships.

Jones-Konihowski was the best of 10 women competitors in the two-day meet with 4,361 points, well ahead of runner-up Ann Crump of Vancouver, who collected 3,718 points, and third-place Liz McBlain of Montreal who had 3,702 points. Laurie Hirst of Nanaimo finished fourth with 3,589 points.

In the decathlon, Zenon Smiechowski of Burnaby led 14 men competitors with 6,953 points. Alain Luzier of Montreal was second at 6,862 and Andy McGregor of Maple Ridge, was third at 6,520.

Too Expensive As an Amateur

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Canadian amateur golf is losing another of its fine performers to the pro ranks — Jim Nelford, the 22-year-old from Burnaby, B.C.

"It's too expensive to play amateur," said Nelford, Canadian amateur champion in 1975 and 1976. He'll compete in the Western amateur at Benton Harbor, Mich., and the Canadian amateur at Ancaster, Ont., in early August. He'll close out his amateur career in the British Columbia Open.

Matuszak Arrested

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Defensive tackle John Matuszak of Oakland Raiders was arrested Sunday on a one-year-old marijuana possession charge as he visited friends near his alma mater.

Matuszak, a former University of Tampa star, was released on $502 bond and planned to leave today for the Raiders National Football League training camp in Santa Rosa, Calif.

The six-foot, eight-inch 275-pounder was charged with possession of marijuana, a misdemeanor, after a traffic accident July 3, 1976 in Tampa. Police said they found four grams of marijuana in the trunk of his car.

A warrant was issued for his arrest Feb. 24 when he failed to appear at trial, but a prosecutor said the charge was not serious enough to extradite Matuszak, 26, from California.

No court date has been set.

Fine Effort By Kostiuk

COLUMBUS, Ohio (CP) — The Canadian national volleyball team was defeated 17-15, 12-15, 14-16, 9-15 by the United States national team in an exhibition match Saturday night.

The Canadian team, however, received outstanding performances from rookies Al Kostiuk of Victoria and Tom Jones of Mission, as well as veterans Garth Pischke and John Paulsen, both of Winnipeg.

The Canadian team's tour continues with a match tonight in Cincinnati.

Burnaby Angler Wins Sun Derby

Victoria Riflemen Reach Final Round

BISLEY, England (CP) — J. C. Roy of Montreal was the top-scoring Canadian in the semi-final stage of the Queen's Prize at the Bisley rifle matches Saturday and went into the final 100 with 146 to count out of a possible 150 at the short ranges.

Paul Mullin, the 16-year-old from Mississauga, Ont., who has been putting up top-class performances during the week, won himself one of the coveted Queen's 100 badges when he qualifiel for the final with the 145, and Bob Barwise from Charlottetown, got in with the same score.

Clive Cross, of Saanichton, got in with 144. So did one of the young cadets, Mark Alexander, of Windsor, Ont., also with 144.

Ian Whitehead of Victoria, another of the Canadian cadet team, got into the Queen's 100 final the hard way, after a tie shoot between 26 competitors with a 143 qualifying score to fill the last 21 places.

Juan de Fuca, Saanich Collect Crowns

Two teams from Greater Victoria captured British Columbia Tier II titles and five others earned berths in provincial Tier I championship finals during round-robin minor lacrosse tournament in various locations at the weekend.

Saanich Peninsula won the Division III, Tier II title with a better goals-for-and-against record after finishing in a three-way tie with Nanaimo and Burnaby Norburns with 3-2 records.

In the Division VII final at Coquitlam it took three overtime periods before a goal by Shawn Coutts gave Juan de Fuca the crown with a 6-5 win over second-place New Westminster. Juan de Fuca finished with a 4-1 record.

Saanich finished third in the Division I tourney at Port Coquitlam, which was won by Norburns; another Saanich squad placed fourth in the Division II tussle at Abbotsford, won by the host club; Juan de Fuca was fourth in the Division IV playoff at Langley, won by the host team; Esquimalt came second in the Division V tourney at Pearkes Arena, won by New Westminster; Juan de Fuca was third in the Division VI battle at Nanaimo, won by Port Coquitlam; Saanich and Esquimalt were fourth and fifth, respectively, in the Division VIII tourney at Esquimalt Sports Centre, won by Langley; and Juan de Fuca placed fifth in the Division IX scramble at Port Moody, won by Port Coquitlam.

The first and second-place teams from the Tier I tourneys advance to the B.C. Tournament of Champions, Aug. 6-7 in New Westminster, where they will face each other for Divisional crowns.

Victoria won the Division I tournament with a 2-0 record and will face Norburns, who were 1-1, in the final.

Paul Pynn scored four goals while leading Victoria to a 10-8 win over Norburns on Saturday and Jim Lightbody scored four to lead Victoria to a 15-8 decision over Richmond on Sunday.

Four Saanich squads finished second in tourneys to gain berths in provincial finals.

Norburns will take on Saanich in the Division IV final, South Burnaby will go against Saanich for the Division V crown, Coquitlam will tackle Saanich for the Division VII laurels and Norburns will meet Saanich in the Division VIII final.

Other divisional finals will pit Norburns against New Westminster (Division II), Coquitlam against Surrey (Division III), Richmond against Coquitlam (Division VI) and New Westminster against Norburns (Division IX).

Juan de Fuca Whalers finished second to South Burnaby Kirby's Klippers in the junior women's championship, a five-team, round-robin affair, in White Rock.

Lopes Gets Sign, Home Run Follows

By The Associated Press

"All I was looking for was a hole on the right side," said Dave Lopes.

He found it—in Bruce Boisclair's glove.

Lopes was given a second chance Sunday when the New York Mets right fielder dropped his foul fly in the ninth inning, and promptly took advantage of it with a three-run homer that gave Los Angeles Dodgers a 5-3 National League victory.

"It was an omen that Boisclair dropped that ball," said Lopes. "After that, I just knew I had to get a hit. All I was trying to do was find a way to get the tying run home. But what I did was make good contact and find the seats."

New York manager Joe Torre could only shake his head and throw his hands up in disbelief.

"It is ironic that Boisclair could go from one extreme to the other, first getting the winning RBI and then the error that led to the loss," said Torre, Boisclair went from hero to goat in the space of one inning. In the top of the ninth, he had sent the Mets ahead 3-2 with a pinch-hit sacrifice fly.

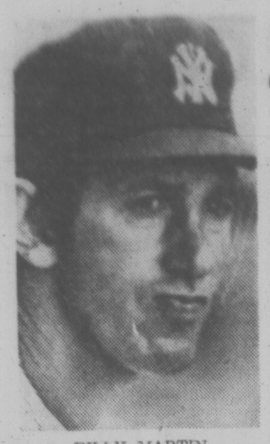
The victory stopped a three-game Dodger losing streak and improved their lead to 10½ games over Cincinnati Reds in the NL West. The slumping Reds dropped their sixth consecutive game Sunday, a 3-0 decision to St .Louis Cardinals.

In other National League action, San Francisco Giants beat Montreal Expos twice, 3-0 and 5-4 in 12 innings, Houston Astros took a doubleheader from Chicago Cubs, 10-6 and 6-4, Philadelphia Phillies tripped San Diego Padres 7-4 and Pittsburgh Pirates edged Atlanta Braves 7-6.

Steve Yeager opened the Dodger rally in the ninth with a two-out single off Mets starter Nino Espinosa. At this point, Bob Apodaca, 3-4, came into the game and gave up a single to pinch-hitter Manny Mota before he was victimized by Boisclair's error.

Lopes then sent the Dodger fans home happy with his three-run shot into the left-centre field seats, the sixth homer of the season for the Dodger second baseman.



BILLY MARTIN

MARTIN IS STILL WORRIED

NEW YORK (AP) — Gabe Paul, president of New York Yankees, met with manager Billy Martin before the start of Sunday's baseball game against Kansas City Royals, and when the meeting broke up Martin was still the manager of the American League team.

Paul told Martin to keep on handling the defending American League champions the way he has been doing, and not to worry about reports that he was to be fired.

Martin, however, wasn't completely reassured.

"I feel like I'm on death row," said Martin, referring to reports that said that the only thing holding up his firing was the Yankees' search for a replacement.

One report said coach Dick Howser was asked to succeed Martin but turned down the job. Howser said Sunday, however, that the managing position had not been offered to him.

Jauffret Sparks Upset by France

Times News Services

France completed its upset elimination of Romania to win the European A zone Davis Cup tennis competition in Paris on Sunday.

France's hero was 35-year-old veteran Francois Jauffret, who started his team on the road to victory on Friday with a five-set triumph over Ilie Nastase.

The Romanian, one of the world's leading players, was two sets ahead, but collapsed under an aggressive onslaught by Jauffret who went on to win in five sets.

The French took a 2-1 lead into Sunday's matches, and Jauffret got them the victory they needed by beating Dimitru Haradan 6-1, 6-4, 6-4. Nastase's final win, 6-4, 4-6, 8-6, 6-1, over Patrick Proisy didn't matter.

The French now await the winner of the European B zone, whom they will meet in an interzone semi-final. Italy, the defending champions, has reached the B final and will meet either Hungary or Spain, whose contest was suspended by darkness in Budapest on Sunday with the best-of-five series tied 2-2.

Manuel Orantes got Spain even Sunday by defeating Janos Benyik 11-9, 6-3, 6-2, then in the deciding contest Hungary's Balazs Taroczy was tied with Jose Higueras, 6-0, 6-8, 4-4, when play was stopped by bad light. It will be completed today.

The other interzone semi-final has Argentina, the winner of the American zone, against Australia, which won the Eastern zone.

Seaboard, Vicettes Advance

A Clearwater team captured one provincial softball title while Victoria's Seaboard Construction and CJVI Vicettes took a step in that direction at the weekend.

Clearwater defeated Cordova Bay 6-5 in Sunday's final to claim the British Columbia juvenile boys' title in a six-team, double-knockout tournament at Lochside Park.

Seaboard topped a four-team playoff at Central Park to earn the lower Island berth in the provincial senior "B" men's showdown while Vicettes, sparked by Nancy Beal's shutout pitching, qualified for the B.C. junior women's playoff.

Rebounding from a 3-2 loss that forced a playoff, Seaboard out-gunned Sooke Merchants 12-6 in a free-hitting finale between Stuffy McGinnis League teams.

Each tem connected for 15 hits but Seaboard limped their blows more effectively. Scott Sinclair drove in four runs with a single and homer while Wayne Forland knocked in three and scored two more while connecting for two doubles and a single.

Sooke reached the final by topping Ingraham Hotel 2-0. Ingraham had the bases loaded with none out in the seventh and final inning but reliever Glen Bullen struck out the next two batters and then got the final out on an infield popup.

Seaboard defeated Victoria Atheltics 5-3 and then advanced to the final by edging Ingraham 3-2. Sooke eliminated Athletics with a 1-0 victory but dropped into the losers bracket later Saturday when beaten 5-1 by Ingraham.

At Hyacinth Park, Wally Yeamans' Vicettes swept a best-of-three series from CRESC Angels as Miss Beale pitched 14 scoreless innings. She allowed only three hits in a 7-0 Saturday victory and gave up five in Sunday's 5-0 triumph.

Vicettes now will be the host team for the provincial playdowns to be held at Hyacinth Park next weekend.

Water Polo Win

ASHEVILLE, N.C. (CP) — The junior women's team from Ste. Foy, Que., crushed most of the opposition during the weekend to win the United States junior women's water polo championships at Asheville, N.C.

The team from Ste. Foy defeated Fort Lauderdale, Fla., 14-2, San Joseta, Tex., 10-1, Asheville, N.C., A team, 9-3 and Miami North 12-2 on the way to the final in which Ste. Foy scored a 9-5 victory over Asheville Varsity.

Umpires Provide Ejecting Action

Umpires came under additional fire in the heat of Heywood Men's Softball League action at the weekend.

They tossed the extra action into a six-game program by tossing out four players and figuring in a protest.

Tom Elwell of the pace-setting Castle Properties was the first to go. He was ejected Saturday night as Castle was upset 7-6 gy Taylor House Movers. The leaders bounced back to defeat Capital Builders 8-4 later Saturday and added a 6-4 victory over Ocean Express on Sunday.

Capitals lost three players during a Sunday doubleheader against Century Inn. Pitcher Dave Hughes and Roy Clemens got the heave-ho as Century tripped the second-place Builders 6-2.

Builders' Vic Gee than was "ejected" from the second game, about 20 minutes before it started. Although Builders won the game, 8-5, they failed to withdraw the protest "on principle."

In another Sunday game, Remco Office Systems blanked Webb and Trace 3-0 behind the four-hit pitching of Red Morrison.

Dwayne Robinson banged out two home runs and Jack Smith added a two-run shot to power Century Inn's victory over Builders.

Selection of a Defender Becoming More Difficult

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Sailmaker Ted Hood and his 12-meter yacht, Independence, gained a measure of revenge Sunday against Ted Turner and Courageous, trading victories in a pair of America's Cup observation trial races.

Hood's victory in the initial race was the first of the summer against Courageous, the 1974 Cup defender. However, he still has the worst over-all record aginst Courageous and Enterprise.

Against Courageous, Independence is 1-8 for the summer.

With the three American yachts becoming more evenly matched, the task of choosing a defender for September gets progressively more difficult for the New York Yacht Club's race committee.

In the first observation trial Sunday, Turner took the start by one second but Hood passed Courageous on the first windward leg of the triangular Olympic course, rounding the weather mark 23 seconds ahead.

From there, it was Independence all the way with Courageous closing to within 18 seconds of the leader at the gybe mark. At the finish, Independence was leading by 28 seconds.

Independence was ahead by one second at the start of the second race but Courageous came on strong going into the wind and turned at the first mark 35 seconds ahead.

Hood closed on Turner on the running leg of the windward-to-leeward course, but Courageous put Independence in her wake on the ensuing weather leg, rounding the mark a minute and four seconds ahead.

At the finish line, it was Courageous by 57 seconds.

Over all, Courageous has the best record for the June preliminary and July observation trials. She stands 13-7 against the other two yachts while Enterprise is 10-10 and Independence 6-12.

FRENCH RIDER CAPTURES BICYCLE TOUR

PARIS (AP) — Bernard Thevenet of France won the 64th Tour de France bicycling competition Sunday, although countryman Alain Meslet took the final stage, a 90-kilometer race through city streets that was watched by several hundred thousand people in rain.

Hennie Kuiper of the Netherlands was second over-all, 48 seconds behind Thevenet, after losing 12 seconds to the Frenchman in the Sunday morning time trial around the Champs Elysees course.

The wet streets caused one major fall involving Thevenet, Kuiper and 20 other riders during the final stage. Both leaders resumed the race and the fall did not affect the final result.

Race officials announced Sunday that four riders were penalized after tests for prohibited drugs came back positive. Among them was Portuguese rider Joaquim Agostinho, who lost a chance at finishing 10th over-all.

Only 54 of the 100 starters completed the three-week race, a large group having been eliminated in the gruelling Alpine stage ending at L'Alpe d'Huez that involved three major mountain climbs.

Canadian Field Hockey Squad Produces a Pleasant Surprise

If international field hockey observers are regarding Canada with greater respect today, it's for good reason.

A Canadian representative women's side climaxed a seven-game, cross-Canada tour Saturday by blanking a touring Scottish team 2-0 before a disappointing turnout of about 300 fans at Royal Athletic Park.

Victory gave Canada a surprising 5-1-1, won-tied-lost record against Scotland, ranked among the top 10 in the world. Canada finished 15th in the last world tournament.

Granted, both teams were not full-fledged national teams. Both, however, included several national team players and "other promising candidates."

Scotland defeated Canada 5-0 in a first-round meeting in the last world tournament.

Success against the Scottish gives hope that Canada's performance may again show improvement when the next world championships are held at the University of British Columbia in 1979.

The Canadians, getting both goals in the second period, definitely dominated play Saturday. Only the outstanding performance of substitute goalkeeper Sheena McDonald prevented the Canadians from scoring a more convincing victory.

Sandy Drever and Gaylene Berry, both of Calgary, scored the Canadian goals. The speedy Miss Drever, perhaps Canada's most dangerous forward throughout the match, scored at 3:20 of the second period and Berry added the second goal about 12 minutes later.

A third Canadian goal, scored by Victoria's Jan Crook, was nullified because of an offside.

Miss Crook was one of several players victimized by the goaltending of McDonald, a forward who filled in because of an injury to regular goalie Ellen Patterson.

Canada's goalkeeper, Kathy Didkowsky of Halifax, was afforded plenty of protection by an alert and hard-working defence but earned her shutout by making an outstanding save on Joyce Moodie about 25 minutes into the second half.

The Canadian lineup included three other Victorians as players — Di Whittingham, Mairi Anne Longmore and Lesley Williams — along with Jenny John, an assistant coach.

American Club Ousts Defending Champions

American League players packed most of their runs into the first inning and then held on to eliminate defending-champion Triangle 8-4 in a losers' bracket game of the Greater Victoria Little League baseball championship tournament Sunday at Sidney Park.

It was the second game in what will be a three-games-in-three-nights stint for the Americans, who stayed alive in the six-team, double-loss-elimination tourney with a 9-4, extra-inning decision over Esquimalt on Saturday.

They will play Hampton, which lost 5-4 to Gordon Head in a winners' bracket game Saturday, at 6:30 tonight.

American scored six runs in the first inning on three consecutive singles by Ian Lamplugh, Anthony Bertoia and Russell Courtnall, a two-run double by Glenn Leung, a two-run single by Randy Moss, a one-run single by Doug Malpass and another one-run single by Danny Manson.

Lamplugh was the over-all batting leader with three singles in four trips to the plate. Courtnall, who was two-for-four, picked up the pitching victory as he struck out eight batters and yielded six hits.

David Jamieson led Triangle hitters with two singles in four trips.

American outsted Esquimalt on Saturday by scoring five runs on four hits and an error in the seventh inning.

Leung threw a four-hitter for the win.

Gordon Head reached the final by beating Hampton with an error-free performance behind the seven-hit pitching of Jeff Mallett.

Daryn Lansdell cracked a three-run homer in the third inning to help the Gordon Head cause and clubmate Drew Ferrill added two hits.

Gary Layton topped Hampton batters with a two-run homer.

Farmers Split With Kubiceks

Farmer Construction and Kuicek A's traded decisions in Victoria Senior Amateur Baseball League play Sunday at Lambrick Park.

Kubiceks won the opening game 7-3 but Farmers bounced back to collect the second decision 9-8 in a double-header that featured plenty of hitting.

Farmers had 24 hits in the two games and Kubiceks had 21.

Dave Graas earned his first pitching victory of the season for Kubiceks in the opener while Ron Barnett had three hits and scored two runs. Jeff Owens, Dave Wallace and Duane Pack each added two Kubicek hits.

In the second game, Al Moir singled home the winning run for Farmers in the bottom of the seventh inning. Dave MacDonald led Farmer batters, cracking three hits in four trips to the plate to drive in two runs. Clubmate Ron Holmes was two-for-four, including a homer, to drive in three runs.

Owens (three-for-four) and Wallace (two-for-four) each drove in two runs for Kubiceks.

Saanich Earns Points for Draw

Castaways held front-running Alcos to a draw, batters enjoyed a big day at Shawgan Lake and bowlers stood out at Windsor Park but the notable achievement in the Victoria and District Cricket Association at the weekend was credited to Saanich.

Saanich earned its first points of the season by holding Nanaimo to a draw at Mt. Douglas Secondary.

With Ray Telford contributing 101 not out, Nanaimo scored 183 runs.

Defending stubbornly, Saanich had replied with 35 for the loss of six wickets when time ran out to earn the draw.

Incogs scored the only victory Saturday by defeating Oak Bay by 23 runs.

Incogs, who moved into third place, had to overcome some brilliant bowling by Eric Richards.

Richards took eight for 19 but Jim Wenman (31 runs) and Dave Gladders (26) helped Incogs to score 94 runs. Gladders then took five for 21 to help hold Oak Bay to 71 runs, including 23 by Peter Wheaton.

Batters were in top form at Shawnigan Lake. Brian Heeps scored 116 and Dick Beal added 98 as Albion reached 284 before declaring at five wickets.

Peter Downs took three for 41 for Cowichan.

The home team almost made it to victory, scoring 263 for six before time ran out. Howard Martin scored 117 runs for Cowichan and Malcolm Ringham added 64 not out.

Castaways scored 188 for eight and Alcos managed 116 for five before time ran out to force the draw at Beacon Hill Park.

CARDS GIVE METCALF NEW ONE-YEAR PACT

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Running back Terry Metcalf has signed a new one-year contract with St. Louis Cardinals of the National Football League, cancelling a multi-year pact signed after the 1975 season.

The new contract will allow Metcalf to become a free agent at the end of the current season.

Before signing the new contract, Metcalf was obligated to play for the Cards through the 1979 season. However, he had been asking to be traded.

Last season Metcalf refused to return punts and kickoffs for several games at the beginning of the season unless he got more money.

Corner Catches Largest Salmon

Clay Corner topped the Pedder-Bay-Sooke section of the four-weekend B.C. Salmon Derby with a 43-pound, eight-ounce chinook salmon landed Sunday.

But it isn't large enough to take the lead for the top prize of $25,000 in the derby.

That honor still belongs to Karl Emde of Delta, who landed a 37:08-pounder on the opening weekend July 16-17 from the Howe Sound area. With the 10-pound handicap assigned to the Howe Sound area, fishermen plying waters between William Head and Secretary Island would have had to beat 47:08 pounds to take over the lead.

Pedder Bay had no handicap.

The lead in the race for the top coho and the no-handicap prize of a boat, motor and trailer, however, switched hands.

Tom Bowie of Victoria landed an 8:02-pounder Saturday to take the front-running spot from Bob Bull of Sechelt, who boated a 7:09-pounder the previous weekend.

Finishing second through sixth in the chinook race were Ken Moyes (41:10), Clive Ramkeessoom (39:08), Neil Pearce (37:12), Elio Antongiovanni of Vacouver (35:08) and Doug Watson (33:08).

The fishfest continues next weekend at Cowichan Bay where there is a six-pound handicap, and concludes Aug. 6-7 with another go-round at the Howe Sound-Pender Harbour area, where the handicaps are 10 and 13 pounds, respectively.

MINSTREL TAKES DIAMOND STAKES

ASCOT, England (UPI) — The Minstrel, superbly ridden by Lester Piggott, Saturday edged Orange Bay by a head to win the $187,000 King George VI and Queen Elizabeth Diamond Stakes, Britain's richest horse race.

The Minstrel, winner of the English and Irish Derby classics, was rated 10th in the 11-horse field at the halfway mark in the 1½-mile race as Irish entry Mart Lane set a fast pace.

Piggott started moving Minstrel into a challenging position with two furlongs to go and guided the 7-4 favorite ahead of 20-1 chance Orange Bay in the final dash for the wire.

Orange Bay came back strongly in the closing strides but Piggott held on to win the race for the sixth time and earn the $150,200 winner's purse for owner Bob Sangster.

Adanacs Tie Record

COQUITLAM (CP) — Coquitlam Adanacs tied a Western Lacrosse Association record for the most goals in one game when they whipped the Nanimo Timbermen 28-16 in play Saturday before 1000 fans.

The Adanacs tied the record of the New Westminster Salmonbellies, which scored 28 goals in a July, 1973, game.

Coquitlam set another mark during the game when John Lewis the only WLA goalkeeper ever to score a goal, scored his second of the season.

Rhys Parsons led the Adanacs with five goals while Moe Jodoin scored four. Three goals each were scored by Mark Balastin, Randy Delmonico and Harry Powless, while Jim Aitchison and John Allen put two each into the Nanaimo net.

Singles were scored by Lewis, Kevin Parsons, Rick Ornar, Ray Durante, Frank Nielsen and Randy Bryan.

LEWIS SCORES AGAIN

Kevin Alexander and Rick Baker led the Timbermen with four goals each, while Mike Walsh picked up three. Two each were scored by Jim Lynch and Brian Evans, while Randy Noble got a single.

Ray Durante of Coquitlam and Nanaimo's Gord Racette were both ejected from the game for fighting. The Adanacs were given 31 minutes in penalties during the game and Nanaimo 25.

Gottfried in Final

WASHINGTON (AP) — No. 2 seed Brian Gottfried changed tactics midway through his match Sunday to defeat No. 6 Harold Solomon 4-6, 6-3, 6-1 and gain the finals of the $125,000 Washington Star international tennis championship.

Gottfriend meets the winner of the match between top-seeded Guillermo Vilas of Argentina and No. 5 Eddie Dibbs of Miami Beach, Fla., in tonight's final, which offers $20,000 to the winner and will be shown on national public television.

It was the first meeting of the year between Gottfried and Solomon, two of the top-ranked players in the world. In 1976, they met eight times, with Solomon winning five of the matches.

Big One in Barn, Bad 'n Big Takes Cinema Handicap

The big horse of the race, J. O. Tobin, remained in the barn with a temperature, leaving the gate open for Bad 'n Big to win the $163,700 Cinema Handicap at Hollywood Park in Inglewood, Calif., on Sunday.

J. O. Tobin, who defeated Seattle Slew in the Swaps Stakes at Hollywood Park on July 3, was an even-money choice on the morning line. But three hours before post time, trainer Johnny Adams declared his star three-year-old out of the Cinema.

There were groans of dismay from the 45,139 fans, thousands of whom had come to see, and bet on California's newest sophomore standout.

Jockey Laffit Pincay got Bad 'n Big in by 1¼-length in front of the fast-closing Iron Constitution, with Minnesota Gus, the longest shot on the board, finishing third in the field of eight three-year-olds.

The time for the 1⅛-mile grass course event was 1:48, near the course record of 1:47 that J. O. Tobin established June 25.

On Saturday, Great Contractor shot inside of Forego and Co Host with a little morte than a quarter-mile left and went on to win the $111,000 Brooklyn Handicap at Belmont Park in New York.

Forego, a three-time horse of the year, was spotting from 22 to 30 pounds to 12 rivals. He finished a distant second in losing his second straight race. However, the $24,420 second money made Forego only the second thoroughbred ever to win at least $1.8 million. His bankroll is $1,818,935.

The 1½-mile race was unusual in that Forego, top-weighted at 137 pounds, went for the lead witht about a mile left. The big seven-year-old gelding's usual style is to lay off the pace, then make a big run on the turn.

Apparently, the slow early pace forced Forego's rider, Bill Shoemaker, to change tactics. Whatever the reason, Forego had little left at the end as he finished 11½ lengths behind Great Contractor and a neck in front of American History.

It was the first victory in eight starts this year for Great Contractor.

Affirmed, the solid favorite, scored easily in the first division of the Hollywood Juvenile Championship and Noble Bronze captured the second division at Hollywood Park.

In the feature for two-year-olds, Affirmed, with Laffit Pincay aboard, finished seven lengths in front of He's Dewan, with Esops Foibles third in the fiell of eight in the $104,100 first division.

Remarkable Taste Achievement

"Gentled Tobacco" reaches a new smoking plateau where lightness actually improves flavour.

The age of taste without harshness is here. Fine, full-flavoured tobaccos, gentled and blended as never before, give Export 'A' Lights flavour-and-lightness levels never thought possible in one cigarette.

With the development of this breakthrough cigarette, the long-standing belief that harshness must accompany full taste has been shattered.

Until Export 'A' Lights you had to make a choice between flavour and lightness. Now both are yours in one cigarette. Full flavour with a light smoke.

It's the one cigarette that's just right.

'Can Go Faster,' Says Roy After Fourth Cup Victory

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

It's hard to imagine how Victoria's Roy Smith could improve on his performance in winning an unprecedented fourth Strawberry Cup race Saturday night, but that's his ambition.

Smith took the lead on lap 22 against a fine field of super modified cars from the Washington Racing Association and breezed to the checkered flag in the 14th annual event before a crowd of 2,134 at Western Speedway.

In winning, Roy broke a tie with his brother Al for most Strawberry triumphs. Each had three going into Saturday's 40-lap competition which drew 18 cars to the starting grid.

Both Roy and crew chief Ian Vantreight were pleased with the handling of the Daffodil Special Saturday.

"It was handling as well as we could ask for," Roy agreed, "but I know darn well we can go faster. By next season we should be able to get into the 14s."

By 14s, Smith was referring to the 14-second level in time trials. Saturday he broke his own lap record at Western by timing in at 15.401 seconds, eclipsing his old mark of 15.505 set in Strawberry Cup time trials in 1975.

By next month the Daffodil car, owned by Geoff Vantreight, should have a more powerful engine than the 450-horsepower mill now being used.

"We've got a new Fisher engine — 600 horsepower — coming from California," Smith revealed. "We expect to have it by the middle of August."

Al Smith, driving a car owned by Bob Vantreight of Victoria, failed to finish the main event after piling into Barry Chamberlain of Vancouver halfway through. Chamberlain, running second at the time, spun into Smith's path on turn four. Smith's car suffered a broken torsion bar and front end shocks and pitted for the night.

The mishap and resulting yellow flag enabled Roy Smith to close the gap on leader Doug Larsen of Quesnel and pass him for the lead two laps later. Larsen finished second with Doug James of Seattle third.

WRA points leader, Bob Cochran of Edmonds, Wash., missed the main event after a broken front axle in the "A" trophy dash did him in. Cliff Semens of Vanderhoof, who got into the dash because of Cochran's misfortune, won it.

Roy Smith nearly came to grief in a 15-lap Australian pursuit race, which cars must drop out when passed. Larsen won that one and Smith was the last of three finishers, but he stripped a rear-end gear at the end and had to replace it for the "A" main.

This was the first appearance of the season at Western for cars from the WRA, which split with the Canadian American Modified Racing Association over tires earlier this year. CAMRA cars, using harder compound tires than WRA in an effort to reduce costs, appeared for last month's Daffodil Cup. Several observers Saturday felt the softer WRA tires resulted in more passing and corner duelling.

WRA president Rebel Jackson of Seattle promised 20 cars for the Strawberry Cup and exactly 20 showed, although two were forced out by mechanical problems during warmup laps.

STRAWBERRY CUP (40 laps): 1. Roy Smith, Victoria; 2. Doug Larsen, Quesnel; 3. Doug James, Seattle; 4. Ross Fontes, Seattle.

FAST HEAT: 1. Larsen; 2. Fontes; 3. Roy Smith; 4. Al Smith, Victoria.

FIRST HEAT: 1. Cecil Walker Enumclaw, Wash.; 2. Ray Wearne, Lynwood, Wash.; 3. James; 4. Don McLeod, Tacoma.

"A" DASH: 1. Cliff Siemens, Vanderhoof; 2. Fontes; 3. Roy Smith; 4. Al Smith.

"B" DASH: 1. Wearne; 2. Al Lansdal, Seattle; 3. Gord Stewart, Lynwood; 4. McLeod.

Lake Hill Pair Tops Tray Event

Florence Carpenter and Hazel James of the Lake Hill club won the Silver Tray Scotch doubles lawn bowling competititon Saturday by topping the Burnside pair of Leona Peterson and Flora Martin 20-15 in the final at the Oak Bay greens.

Marie Stanley and Sadie McArthur of Victoria finished third while Elsie Young and Nora Wanstall of Oak Bay were fourth.

It took an extra end before Cec Sarles and Francine Linders of Lake Hill captured the 'B" title with a 17-16 nod over Ada Sylvester and Connie Baker of Canadian Pacific.

May Cummings and Ethel McFarlane of Lake Hill placed third and Betty Bentley and Mary Cowan of Oak Bay were fourth.

Meanwhile, Jim McGregor Jr., a 26 - year - old player from Victoria West, took a third strike Saturday in Vancouver.

Now he's out.

Jim made it to the provincial playdowns in men's singles, pairs and rinks but was unable to win a title and join his wife, Carol, on the British Columbia team.

Carol won the B.C. singles crown and joins the triples group of Jessie Kinneard, Flora Martin and Marie Sage as the Victoria players qualifying for the nationals.

Jim McGregor's last chance came at the weekend but the rink, skipped by Jim McGregor Sr. and including Bert Bennett and Dave Jenkins, was eliminated Saturday afternoon.

Alex Smith Captures Bike Rally

Alex Smith, riding a 750 Honda, estimated closer on a mileage check and beat out Gary Nordstrom in the 30th annual Century Run motorcycle road rally Sunday.

Smith and Nordstrom, who was riding a 250 Yamaha, finished in a tie for penalty points but the check-point guess on mileage to that point settled the deadlock in the Victoria Motorcycle Club competition.

Martin Spriggs, aboard another 250 Yamaha, placed third in the event, which covered approximately 110 miles from the Saanich Peninsula to Shawnigan Lake and attracted about 20 entries.

Diefenbaker Has Internal Bleeding

people

OTTAWA — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker was reported in stable condition in Civic Hospital Sunday after being admitted Saturday suffering from internal stomach bleeding. An aide said Diefenbaker, 81, had been given a blood transfusion and was being kept under observation.

It is believed to be a recurrence of a problem that has given him occasional difficulty since he was injured during army training in 1916 in England, ending his army service.

LONDON (Reuter) — The editor of a British coalminers' journal was arrested when he returned Sunday from East Berlin after abandong a request for political asylum in East Germany. Maurice Jones, 33, persuaded to change his mind about asylum by two officials of Britain's Mineworkers Union, flew back with his wife and two-year-old daughter. He was arrested soon after he stepped off the plane.

ORRILLIA Ont. — Newfoundland journalist Ray Guy was presented with the 1977 Leacock medal for humor during ceremonies on Saturday. Guy, a reporter from the St. John's Telegram, won the award for his book The Far Greater Bay.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Black Panter party leader Huey Newton was released from jail on bail Saturday while awaiting trial on murder and assault charges. Newton, 35, who jumped a $42,500 bail and fled to Cuba three years ago, was freed when his supporters posted the $80,000 bail.

TORONTO — Postal union leader Joe Davidson says relations between Canada Post and the union are the worst he's seen. "I sit at nights just absolutely frustrted that things keep getting worse when it seems a little common sense could solve them," Davidson said in a recent interview.

RALEIGH, N.C. — Joan Little, the black woman acquitted two years ago of killing her white jailer she said tried to rape her, is seeking to change her name. The 23-year-old woman, whose trial was a cause celebre of the feminist movement, applied to the clerk at Wake Superior Court to change her name to Hadiyah Joan Nadir, an Arabic name.

Pound Notes Lack Perfection

LONDON — Correctly-printed one-pound notes may soon become collectors' items unless the Bank of England gets cracking.

The bank acknowledged Sunday that many "error notes have passed through the checking system. They should not have."

Some of the notes, which are now worth $1.75, are printed with the queen's profile on the wrong side while others have double serial numbers. Some batches of notes have been printed with the same serial number.

"There has been some damned incompetence somewhere," Labor member of parliament Marcus Lipton said.

LETTERS BIG LOSERS

WASHINGTON — Senator William Proxmire is awarding his Golden Fleece award to the U.S. Postal Service, saying the mail agency spent more than $3.4 million on a Madison Avenue advertising campaign aimed at persuading U.S.citizens to write more letters.

"Spending public money trying to make Americans more prolific letter-writers is a dubious project at best," the Wisconsin Democrat said in a statement released today.

"People write letters for many reasons, but I doubt that a public-relations pitch from the federal government is one of them," Proxmire said. "In my view, this kind of hype just won't make Americans type."

Proxmire announces monthly Golden Fleece awards to what he feels is "the biggest, most-ridiculous or most-ironic example of wasting federal tax dollars."

In addition to the $3,475,600 paid to New York advertising agencies Young and Rubicam and Needham, Harper and Steers, the Postal Service also has spent $774,500 to run their advertisements in three test markets and evaluate the results.

Postal officials are considering whether to spend another $1 million for additional tests in 1978.

The type of "play" situation featured in today's deal is a recurring one, and is often mishandled by the less-skilled bridge player. The hand arose in a rubber-bridge game.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 NT	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	4 NT	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	6 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ace of ♡.

North's raise to four spades was a poor call, considering that his spade support was, at best, normal. He should have rebid three notrump. Had he done so, North-South would probably have arrived at a slam contract in notrump, at which contract 12 tricks would have been there for the taking: two spades, two hearts, four diamonds and four clubs.

After his heart ace had won the opening lead, West continued with a low heart, South's jack winning. A low trump was then led to dummy's ace. On this lead West dropped the queen.

Declarer now thought for a while, trying to decide whether West possessed the singleton queen, or whether he had falsecarded from the doubleton Q-J. When he next returned the spade five, and East followed with the four-spot. South inserted his ten, finessing against East's hoped-for jack. West's jack now took the setting trick. And, to sort of rub it is, West then led another heart, which East ruffed. So South went down two tricks.

It was, of course, quite conceivable that West's trump queen was a singleton. But declarer gave no thought to the extension of this possibility. If the queen were a singleton, then East had been dealt the J-7-4-2. And in this presumed setup, even if South's finesse of his ten against East's hoped-for jack had won the trick (in theory), then East would still have the doubleton J-7 remaining. Thus East would always make his trump jack, for the setting trick.

Therefore, as declarer should have viewed the situation, his sole hope of fulfilling the contract depended on West's queen being a false-card. Specifically, unless West had started with the doubleton Q-J, declarer was sunk. Hence on the second trump lead South should have put up his king — and everything would have been lovely.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Astrological forecast for Tuesday, July 26

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Avoid travel, if practical and possible. Directions could be confused — instructions are not clear. Relatives are in mood to argue. Key now is to bring objectives into focus. Take time. Realize that some persons, usually dependable, may now behave in unorthodox fashion. Protect interests.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Money, charges, credit cards occupy dominant position now in your personal scheme of things. Specifically, budget and expenditures affecting partner or mate grab spotlight. Be analytical. Utilize logic. Put two-and-two together — and come up with "four."

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Lie low — play waiting game. Become knowledgeable concerning legal rights, permissions. Accent on public relations, clashes with authorities. Wait, listen and observe. Refuse to be baited into hasty response. Message will become crystal-clear.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Obtain valid hint from Gemini message. Much that occurs is backstage, out of sight, somewhat shrouded in mystery. One in authority is interested in your suggestions, service work. Pisces, Gemini and Virgo figure promnently — so does the number "7."

LEO (July 23 - Aug. 22): Steer clear of extravagance. Display sense of responsibility. There is tomorrow — and you're getting stronger. Capricorn, Cancer persons are in picture. Accent on significant relationships, creative endeavors — and love.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 - Sept. 22): Expand horizons — and expectations. You can close deal, especially where home or property is concerned. Aries, Libra persons are in picture. Let go of losing proposition. You have right to step forward — free-and-clear.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 - Oct. 22): Highlight independence, originality — be selfish in sense that you do the best for yourself. Means be daring enough to be confident, direct, creative. Movement replaces lethargy. Relatives argue and may attempt to draw you into conflict.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Teach and learn — welcome one who "returns" from your past. Aquarian figures prominently. Money situation improves in ratio to your willingness to imprint personal style. Means look after your own interests, projects. Others, no matter how well-meaning, could make a mess of things.

SAGITTARIUS Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Romance, glamor figure prominently — cycle is such that creative juices flow. You're able to write, publish, to be versatile, to ask significant questions — and to obtain answers. Gemini plays role and so does another Sagittarian.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Relative may help remove mystery clouds — questions are answered, but situation will require more detailed study. Sagittarius, Aquarius and Scorpio figure prominently. In matters of speculation, stick too number "4."

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Accent on involvement, creativity, sensuality. Be ready for change, variety, travel. Gemini, Virgo figure in scenario. Young person stirs controversy — but a major desire is fulfilled. Plenty of action — you'll be stimulated and happy.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): You get excellent report as result of your special efforts, assignment. One at top takes note, is willing to make room for you at more elevated position. Taurus, Libra individuals figure prominent — so does number "6."

IF JULY 26th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, your forces have been scattered this year. You've made numerous inquiries, conducted many tests, have expanded social sphere, have traveled and gained weight. You are creative, stubborn, "sexy" capable of earning plenty but not so good when it comes to saving money. Cancer, Capricorn persons play important roles in your life. Be ready for travel, financial windfall in September.

FIGURES FUN WITH

Susan had waited there as her husband paid the bill. "Was it mush?" she asked.

"Amazingly cheap," Terry replied. "If the check had been 16 cents more my change would have been a third what it was, but if it had been half what it was my change would have been 33 cents more." How much had he handed the cashier when paying the bill?

Once Bitter Tribal Enemies, Comanches, Utes Sign Treaty

IGNACIO, Colo. (AP) — After two centuries of strife, the Utes and Comanches are brothers, united by their vow that the fighting has ended.

Two painted buckskin scrolls are all that remain from the four days of ceremony and celebration here on the Southern Ute Indian reservation in the rolling hills of southwestern Colorado.

The 40 Ute and Comanche leaders and elders signed their names on the scrolls Sunday, attesting that they took part in the sacred peace ceremony inside a teepee.

In the weeks before the two nations signed the treaty, leaders from both tribes said they believed the document would mean "a new era for all American Indians."

The two tribes once were bitter enemies, their warriors clashing over hunting rights on the southern plains.

As the buffalo were decimated and the white man advanced, the tribes met about 1870 to talk peace, only to be thwarted when someone fired a shot that sent them back into battle.

More than 100 years later, their lands reduced to reservations and with tribal chairmen instead of chiefs, they met again. Two years of planning attracted nearly 4,000 spectators to Sunday's footnote to history.

What does the much-heralded treaty mean to the Southern Ute young people?

John Williams, 20, says he looks forward to a life with an increasing awareness of his heritage. "It's been wonderful," he said.

His tribe numbers about 600, while the Ute Mountain Utes and Northern Utes have perhaps another 2,500 persons among them, he said. The Comanches number about 5,000.

"We are one, and it's a good feeling to know these are all my brothers and sisters now," he said. "I'm starting to learn all the things I should have learned or been taught long ago. Things like this help."

TELEVISION CAMERAS ALLOWED INSIDE CIA

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA opened its doors to television cameras Sunday for the first time — and revealed itself as a place where, according to director Stansfield Turner, "we do indecent things as decently as possible."

The campus-like agency in the Washington suburbs allowed the CBS program "60 Minutes" to film the entrance to a cafeteria, some hallways, a computer analysis room and combination locks on brightly-painted agency doors.

The program also showed CIA director Stansfield Turner on his hands and knees playing with a dog, and playing tennis in a "Superspook" T-shirt.

During the segment, President Carter praised the agency for "competence and professionalism" — a stance contrary to his views during the presidential campaign. "One of the great things about it is that when I need information in a hurry it's always there," said Carter.

The cameras caught workers in front of computer video display terminals and a worker searching out a bug in a telephone.

The program illustrated Turner's concern with economic intelligence by showing analysts studying prices of products such as oil, coffee or metals.

Between-wall foam-in INSULATION
Through-the-wall heat losses can be drastically reduced by the injection of a revolutionary foam insulation material into the wall cavities (between the studs) and this material is fire-retardant, odour-free, resists mould, fungus, insects and will not settle or break down with age.
SECONDARY WINDOW SYSTEM
Designed to be the most efficient insulation with an air gap of at least 1" between your existing window and the inside glass. This is called the secondary window system. Drafts are eliminated right around the window because the aluminum secondary inserts are weather stripped and fitted in the inside. Double glazed windows are also available.

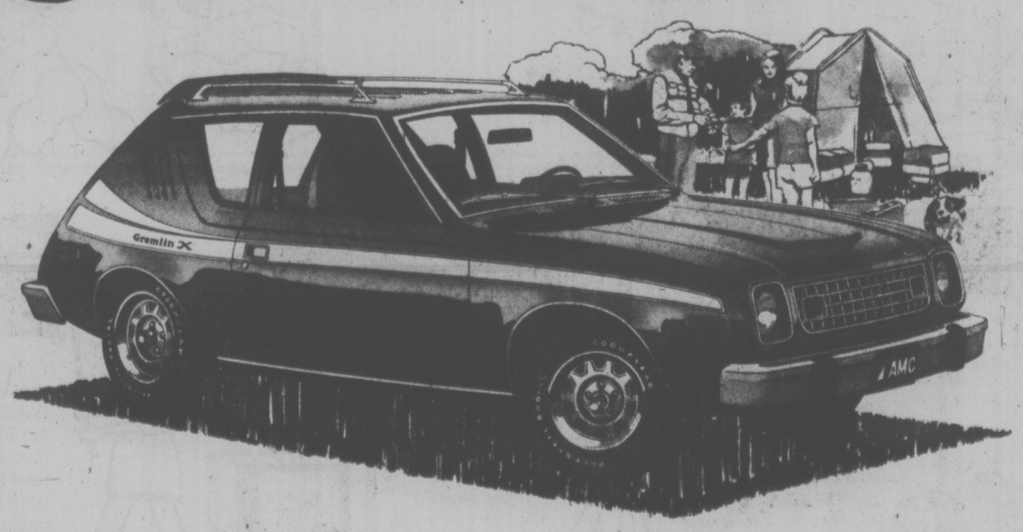
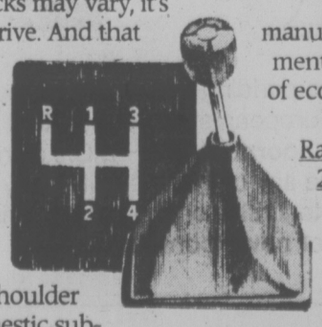
AMC Gremlin.
It's the car to own... if you think driving should be fun.



For some folks, it's the way Gremlin zips in and out of city traffic and cruises on the highway with ease. Still others just get a kick out of scooting around in a neat looking car, sitting on their optional Levi's styled seats.

While individual kicks may vary, it's just one heck of a car to drive. And that makes us feel good too, because we built Gremlin to be that way.



Gremlin is wider than most small cars—so it's unusually roomy inside. In fact, Gremlin has more front hip room and more front and rear shoulder room than any other domestic subcompact. And its wide track makes for a smooth, stable ride.

Gremlin comes standard equipped with a responsive 232 CID 6 cylinder engine. An optional 258 CID 6 cylinder engine is also available. But the exciting news this year is the new Gremlin Custom 2 Liter 4 cylinder. This new model with its perky 4 cylinder engine and 4 speed manual transmission as standard equipment, gives you a noteworthy blend of economy and performance.

Transport Canada Fuel Economy Ratings are 40.1 MPG Highway/ 25.5 MPG city. The fuel economy figures shown should be used for comparisons between various makes and models only. The fuel economy you obtain will vary depending upon such factors as the type of driving done, weight of the car, options fitted to the car, road and weather conditions, how well the vehicle is maintained and the driver's individual driving style.

The 1977 Gremlin is also backed by the exclusive AMC Buyer Protection Plan II which includes a 2 year/24,000 mile warranty on engine and drive train and a 1 year/12,000 mile warranty on all other parts of the car except tires; from the date of delivery or first use, whichever comes first.

So, if you're not driving a Gremlin don't miss out on the fun any longer. Head for your local American Motors Dealer today and test drive a Gremlin of your choice.

Certain items illustrated are optional at additional cost.

Island Group Provides Paradise for Canoeing

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Times Staff

Vancouver Island can't boast great rivers capable of taking canoeists many thrilling miles downstream, but it does have a fascinating little-known waterway for non-powered boats which would be hard to match anywhere in B.C.

The area known as the Broken Group Islands in Barkley Sound on the west coast of the Island as designated part of Pacific Rim National Park in 1971.

But the last parcel of private property in the group was purchased only last year. All the islands now are owned by Parks Canada.

Familiar to most Alberni Valley residents, the recreational area has yet to be "discovered" by Victorians who for the most part frequent the park's Long Beach and West Coast Trail between Port Renfrew and Bamfield.

The Broken Islands are a paradise for canoeists — a restful haven for anyone seeking to escape crowded highways, fowl air, noise, and that old nemesis, the telephone.

The park unit has nearly 100 islands, ranging from several hundred acres to rocky islets supporting only a few wind-stunted trees.

The largest in the group is Effingham, which has the only lake.

It's the home of eagles, seals, sea lions and numerous species of sea and shore birds. Native wildflowers abound.

In spring you can hear in the cedar forests the bell-like song of the varied thrush, or watch the spectacular plunge of an osprey after a salmon.

Park superintendent Frank Camp is anxious to maintain the islands in their natural state.

"We have only established six primitive campsite areas and people can camp only on these sites," he said. "Open fires are only permitted in designated camping areas or below the high tide mark."

Camp has established a warden headquarters on a float in a sheltered bay on Nettle Island. A warden resides there most of the year in the event of an emergency, and to supply information.

While the Broken Islands are open to power boats, they are expected to become a favorite camping area for canoe and kayak enthusiasts.

The safe water makes them particularly attractive. A storm can be raging outside the group but the inside channels are calm.

They are also easily accessible from Port Alberni where the 100-passenger vessel Lady Rose will pick up campers with canoes and drop them off on a wharf at one of the islands. Be sure to make arrangements for the return pickup.

Another access point is via Toquart Bay, near Ucluelet. From there boaters can paddle or row to the islands in fairly safe water.

But warden Brian Congdon warns small boaters to be cautious.

"Watch the weather," he said. "Don't try to reach the islands from the open channels surrounding the islands to the north, east and south."

Once on the islands, there are plenty of lagoons and beaches to explore.

Happy holidaying.

Another Music Festival Feast

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

The B.C. International Festival series of fine-artist concerts again proved a gourmet musical banquet at the McPherson Playhouse Sunday. Enthusiasm for the Italian ensemble, the Quartetto Beethoven di Roma, and for American pianist Grant Johannesen, brought a tidal wave of applause and shouted approval.

Playing the Schumann Intermezzi Op. 4, and two Debussy numbers, Masques, and L'Isle Joyeuse, Johannesen exhibited a superior and comprehensive technique that underlies the fluency and expressive freedom that has made him one of the world's top-ranking pianists.

Profound musical feeling dominates his playing and is reflected in the quality of his tone production which has depth and richness and is frequently translucent.

The Quartetto Beethoven — piano, violin, viola and cello — is critically acknowledged to be among the finest chamber ensembles in the world and no one who heard the performance Sunday could doubt the claim.

In this all-Schumann and Debussy program, the Quartetto chose to play the melodically lovely and musically sumptuous Schumann Quartet in E-flat Major, Op. 47. In every phase of this work — the sparkling scherzo, the lyricism of the andante, the vibrant finale — the performance was of a quality seldom equalled.

Each member of the group is clearly an artist in his own right, yet they combine in an ideally matched and balanced ensemble revealing impeccable precision and unanimity of concept.

The Quartetto Beethoven will be featured again on next Sunday's program.

The concert began with a Debussy Sonata for cello and piano performed by Hakuro Mori with Canadian pianist William Aide. Mori brought to the performance a very full, rich and warm tone and proved an extremely sensitive artist. The lovely pizzicato passages were marked by an unsual and effective vibrato.

At a previous concert at St. Michael's University School, an outstanding performance was given by another fine American pianist, Robin McCabe, playing the Northwest premiere of Guido Agosti's transcription of Stravinsky's L'oiseau de feu, in which she revealed herself as a virtuoso of superb qualities and precision.

She provided a perfect build-up from the delicate berceause to the powerful finale in this highly pianistic version of Stravinsky's ballet suite. Schubert-Liszt lieder transcriptions developed more aspects of her total artistry.

On the same program, Canadian mezzo soprano Phyllis Mailing's rich voice was heard in songs by Faure and Debussy. This is a voice in which the full range is warm and mellow in tone and used with the utmost artistry.

Violinist Yuri Mazurkevich was heard again delightfully in several numbers and double bassist Jean-Marc Rollez revealed velvety tone, a fine vibrato and clear double stopping in a performance that was masterly despite an obvious nervousness. William Aide brilliantly supported all the artists at the piano.

FEAR JOB LOSS

OTTAWA (FP) — The public service is becoming demoralized by the growing tendency of government departments to rely on outside consultants instead of their own staff, the Professional Institute of the Public Service has charged.

The PIPS, which has about 18,000 members across the country, said government employees at virtually every level in the federal bureaucracy are demoralized because they feel their job security is threatened by the use of consultants.

"The Professional Insitute has no quarrel with the principle of contracting out work in cases where the necessary expertise of manpower are not already available within the public service," said PIPS President Chesley Lockhart.

Beatrice's Crafts: A 'Fun Thing'

Beatrice Dickson with one of her oil paintings

elizabeth forbes

She will pick up a magazine, see a picture of woods, the sea, mountains or animal life she likes, then, adding a few original touches, she will re-create that picture in a colorful oil painting.

Give her a piece of native rock and it is quickly fashioned into a ring, a brooch or an ornament for a coffee table.

Go back further and you find Beatrice Dickson is well-known in Victoria for the fine ceramics she has created, the lessons she has given young people and adults in that art and for her basement kilns where hundreds of ceramic pieces made by those pupils, and by others over the years, have been carefully fired.

Actually she did not turn to oil painting and rockhound work until she and husband Jack moved from their last big home into a small condominium on Heywood Avenue, opposite Beacon Hill Park.

"No room there for molds, kilns, bags of powdered clay and all the other things needed in ceramic work," she tells you, "so I gave it all up and turned to other crafts."

Mrs. Dickson traces that love for creating ceramics back to her days as "a farm girl" in Manitoba, where she was born.

"There was lots of good clay in the cutbanks down there," she remembers, "and I was always working it, even as a child.

"I'd make beads and harden them in the oven of our kitchen stove and if we had a bonfire I'd be there with a bit of clay shaped into a figure of some sort, and trying to fire it."

Later, after she was married and moved with her husband to Regina, she discovered "there was good clay in Saskatchewan, too."

Also that Regina had a well-organized arts and crafts centre where she could not only work as a volunteer but where she could take lessons in ceramics.

"It was a grand set-up," she says. "I learned how to make plaster casts, pour slip (liquid clay), make my own molds and create ceramic pieces."

In 1953 her husband's health necessitated a move to the Pacific Coast — and to Victoria — where he soon recovered and became actively employed again.

Shortly after the family settled in Oak Bay, daughter Karen came home from Willows School with a questionnaire in which her mother was asked if she would volunteer for summer playground work and if so, what activity would she be interested in.

"Very hesitantly I put a cross opposite clay modelling," Bea Dickson remembers. And that was the start of 12 years association, in one way or another, with the Oak Bay playground program.

Isabel Craig, now an alderman, was then superintendent of playgrounds.

"She had me teaching as many as 10 or 15 youngsters in that first year."

As it happened the Dickson home was on Beach Drive near Willows Park. So, by the time the second summer parks program rolled around, Mrs. Dickson had a workroom ready and her kilns set up in the basement, and she taught the youngsters "in relays" there.

When the playground program ended that year, mothers of those youngsters and their friends, headed by Isabel Craig herself, insisted they wanted to take lessons during the winter months.

In that group were Dorothy Aylard and Jennie Bowering who now use the expertise they gained from Bea Dickson to teach ceramics to members of The Canadian Arthritic and Rheumatism Society (CARS).

"At first I used red clay—found in this area," this talented ceramics teacher remembers. "It wasn't very good so we eventually began importing the clay from Seattle in powder form."

Here she laughs and confesses that she mixed that powdered stuff "into a smooth creamy substance" in her washing machine.

"Took a bit of time to clean the machine afterward but it was an excellent way to get a smooth even mix."

Eventually the Dicksons moved away from Beach Drive. She gave up playground teaching but continued to fire the ceramics from summer programs in all three Oak Bay parks — Willows, Windsor and Carnarvon — work she continued until 1965.

At the height of her firing work Bea Dickson had two kilns going all the time.

"My husband helped. We'd set up a firing over-night, another in the morning, still another in the afternoon, right around the clock."

The kilns "were jumping and so were we", is the way she puts it.

Then she explains that the "long cooling periods needed between firings and before anything could be taken from a kiln, added to the time for the over-all work."

Classes for mothers were continued for some years.

"Indeed, I ended up teaching as many as 110 adults a week."

There was also a two-year stint (1967-68) when she taught senior citizens in St. Mary's Hall in Oak Bay.

Today her one contact with ceramics is china painting, in which she puts the finishing touches on pieces created at the CARS classes . . . a volunteer work she has done for almost 12 years.

Looking back Beatrice Dickson takes much pride and satisfaction in the fact that during all the years she was teaching and creating ceramics, she never let any part of it become commercialized.

"I never really charged full price for the actual teaching, only for materials," she says.

"I've never sold any of my own work, just given it away.

"I've always tried to keep it what you might call a fun thing . . . getting together, making friends, learning together.

"To me it's always been more or less a wonderful hobby."

JOIN FASHION, BEAUTY FOR A TOTAL LOOK

Ask Jennifer

Shaping up your body doesn't automatically mean the shape you get is the one you want! Everyone has limitations, and that's the time to combine beauty and fashion to produce a total look.

Work hard on the basics and then rely on fashion sense to get you to the "finish line" in a blaze of glory.

DEAR JENNIFER: I've lost 15 pounds by dieting and exercising. I'm disappointed with the results. I'm very small-chested and, instead of appearing more proportioned, I just look skinny. What can I do now to achieve a good figure? — Enid K., Seattle.

No one is ever quite satisfied, and you might be amazed to know that some well-endowed women would gladly change places with you. You, after all, are fashion's darling! Make the most of what you've got by wearing a seamless bra, fibre-filled for a little more curve. Choose cowls, shirty necklines and T-shirts for daytime. For evenings you can wear the sexiest clothes of all, plunging necklines, strapless tops or any of the "cut-out" dresses that demand a body that can go braless.

DEAR JENNIFER: I have an almost perfect figure, but my hips are too wide. I have exercised daily but it doesn't help. Is there a new method to slim the hips that I don't know about — Karen R.

Lets face it: There are some things you just can't change. The hip problem is one of the most common and, although you can make vast improvements, you might never be able to completely solve the problem. Let a little fashion artistry take over.

The softly gathered peasant skirts, accentuated by a waist-cinching belt, is a natural to cover up your problem. An almost perfect figure can wear pants, too, if you choose a top that is loose and blousy and just the right length. Even a bikini can work well if you choose one with a tiny flared skirt or draped sarong bottom.

Don't be tempted to drop your exercise routine, once you find out how successful "camouflaging" is. The hip area is your No. 1 figure fault, so keep it under control.

DEAR JENNIFER: Is there any way to reduce the size of breasts without surgery. I am very shy about my 34C bustline and have developed some bad posture habits to hide it. I could lose about 10 pounds. Would that help?—Jo Ann S.

This is more a question of mismanagement than a permanent problem. By all means, take off the excess weight and exercise away any underarm and back flabbiness. Join a dance class to improve your posture and "get in touch" with your body.

The next step is finding a good bra, perhaps with an underwire, to present a natural but controlled body line. Choose simple V-necks and uncluttered boat necklines for daytime, staying away from clinging jersey shirts or fussy accessories any time! When you gain the confidence you need, try deep, plunging necklines for evenings. Enjoy!

One Standard for Homes

BOSTON (AP) — Single women are not only eligible to purchase a home but are quite capable of doing so, says an executive of an organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

"That does not mean that every woman will receive credit whenever she applies for it, no more than every man automatically qualifies," said Jackson W. Goss, president of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co. "Both must still meet certain standards of those who grant credit or mortgages. But, at least, now it is a single standard."

Goss offers some basic guide-lines for borrowing:

—Steady employment — stability is the key word — is a sure sign of dependability and trustworthiness. Another is residence in the same geographical area for a reasonable length of time.

—Adequate income. A financial statement is important — showing income, debt structure and a projection of one's future financial position.

—If self-employed, prove staying power.

—The first step in proving credit-worthiness is to establish financial identity by opening chequing and savings accounts.

—Have enough in your account with a potential lender to cover at least a 10-per-cent down-payment on a home.

—When getting a mortgage loan, remember that the monthly payment should not exceed 25 per cent of gross monthly income.

"Mortgage shoppers should come laden with evidence of their fiscal good health," Goss said. "Detail everything relating to income, assets and expenditures."

Another tip: shop for a lender and a home at the same time. A lender is more apt to give preferential treatment to a depostor, Goss said.

dear abby

Bounce Two-Timer

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a friend who is married with two small babies. This man brings his girlfriends over to our house. We are good friends with both him and his wife.

I feel that by allowing this man to bring his girlfriend here, we are condoning his actions.

Should we just tell him bluntly that he can do as he pleases, but not in our house? My husband says his wife knows what's going on, and as long as she doesn't care, why should we?

Should I find out if his wife really knows? And if she knows and doesn't care, should it matter?

I still don't like the idea of a married man breaking his marriage vows on our sofa. What do you think? — A FRIEND TO BOTH

DEAR FRIEND: If he's breaking his marriage vows on your sofa, whether his wife knows or not is beside the point. Since your disapprove of his conduct, don't make it any easier for him by providing him with a place to rendezvous.

DEAR ABBY: I was recently wed to a wonderful man in all respects except one. He insists on keeping the pictures of alf his previous girlfriends, and he has had quite a few.

He has them all neatly mounted in a large picture album, which he insists on leaving on our coffee table, along with our wedding album.

When we have friends over, to be sure the don't miss it, he starts going through the albums, bragging about all the chicks he's had.

I voluntarily destroyed all the pictures I had of myself and previous acquaintances, and I think he should do the same.

He knows how I feel beause I've mentioned it several times. He says I am being childish—that there is nothing wrong with recalling a few memories.

His keeping and showing that ablum hurts me deeply. How can I get him to stop, Abby? Should I destroy them myself and put an end to it? — HURT

DEAR HURT: No, but tell him that his recalling those memories hurts you deeply and to please put them out of sight. A married man who needs to brag about the "chicks" he's had is an insecure little boy whose "manhood" needs constant reassuring. He also has a touch of cruelty.

Supply Sunglasses for Your Home

By A. J. HAND

A lot of the heat inside your home on a summer day comes from sunlight shining in the windows. You can make your home cooler and cut cooling costs by intercepting this sunlight before it gets in. Awnings are one way to get the job done. So are carefully located trees or shrubs. But window shades and draperies aren't much help. Once the sun gets through the glass, the battle has been lost.

One of the newest ways to keep out excess sunlight is the use of light-control film. This is a thin sheet of plastic, coated with a microscopically thin layer of aluminum. When you apply this light-control film to your windows, the aluminum acts as a partial mirror, reflecting away some of the sunlight shining on the window, allowing some to pass.

As a result, you cut down on the amount of sun coming through the window, yet enough light does get in to provide good inside illumination. From outside your windows will look like mirrors. But from the inside you can see out with no problem.

Surprisingly, the film not only cuts down the heat getting into your home during the summer, but it can actually cut heating costs during the winter. This is because the film cuts down on the heat radiating out through your windows, and it does so 24 hours a day. In most cases, this more than makes up for the fact that the film also reduces the amount of heat coming in through the windows on a sunny winter day.

There are two ways to go about getting light-control film on your windows. Franchised installers can do the job for you, or you can do it yourself.

Installing it yourself is no problem. The stuff goes on the inside surface of the glass, so you can work easily and safely without climbing ladders. The only trick to installation is to avoid getting specks of dirt or lint between the film and the glass.

You start by cleaning the glass with ammonia. Then dry with a squeegee: rags and paper towels produce lint. Next, cut a sheet of film about a half-inch oversize. Spray the film and the glass with clean water. A plant mister or an old pump-spray bottle will do the job nicely.

Then lay the film in place on the glass. Smooth it carefully, removing wrinkles and air pockets. Then peel off the protective backing sheet. The film will probably still have a few wrinkles or air bubbles in it. To remove these, spray the back of the sheet with water and use your squeegee to smooth everything out.

Now use a razor blade or sharp knife to trim away the excess film around the edge of the glass. Use a straightedge to guide your cuts, and leave a margin of uncovered glass about 1-16 inch all the way around the perimeter.

Find a speck of dirt or lint under the film? Just peel back the film, starting from the nearest corner. Remove the speck, rewet the film, and squeegee it back into place.

Finally, rewet and squeegee the whole sheet and dry the works off with a clean soft rag folded over the squeegee blade. At this point, moisture behind the film may make the window look hazy. Don't worry. The water will eventually evaporate via the gap you left around the edges of the film. In a week or so the window will clear up.

Karate Chop for Rude Males

TOKYO (Reuter) — Male members of Japan's upper house have been warned that they may be in danger of getting a karate chop from female members if they present bills unfavorable to women or make "humiliating remarks" about them.

Japan's new Women's Party is fielding about 10 candidates for elections to the 252-seat house.

The party's founder, demure Misako Enoki, has said all candidates will learn karate to deal with "unsympathetic" parliamentarians of the opposite sex and will be fully prepared to inflict karate chops on recalcitrant male legislators.

Mrs. Enoki said Japanese male chauvinism is ending after 5,000 years. Since founding her party in March, she has led her feminist shock troops, nicknamed the "pink helmets," into the offices of errant husbands to force them to pay alimony.

The Diet (parliament) at present has 10 women in the 511-seat lower house and 18 in the upper house, 10 of whom face re-election.

Mrs. Enoki, who will not run in the election so she can supervise the campaign, said elected Pink Helmets may forcibly occupy the house president's seat when necessary.

She said her party's ultimate objective is to achieve women's supremacy in Japan by the end of this century.

"Our first task is to get parliamentary seats to revise the civil code to the advantage of women. We'll eventually grab a majority and take over power, then we'll extend our helping hands to other male-dominated countries.

"In industrialized society, the power of muscles is no longer a merit. Women have more tenacity and adaptability than men."

Mrs. Enoki persuaded her reluctant doctor husband to borrow 17 million yen ($56,000) from a bank, using their houses as collateral.

Announcing the party's creation last March, she said her husband had agreed to borrow the money on condition that if the debt was not paid by the end of July she would divorce either him or women's liberation.

"If we successfully revise male-oriented laws, a woman will be eligible to accede to the imperial throne, all government employees will be women, with men doing part-time jobs, and firms whose presidents and executives are women will be exempt from corporate taxes.

"Working women will form an all-woman labor organization. Women will be able to enter the defence academy so that military officers will eventually all be women."

Mrs. Enoki, who studied biochemistry at college, formed a pressure group in 1972 calling for the liberalization of abortion laws and the sale of contraceptives.

Abortion, legal in Japan since 1948 under stringent conditions, now is allowed for economic reasons as well as for mental and other physical conditions, while the once-banned pill is available on doctor's prescriptions.

Mrs. Enoki formed an organization to help destitute wives two years ago.

She said: "I don't deny peaceful coexistence of both sexes. But shock treatment is necessary in a transitional period."

indoor gardens

By LYNN and JOEL RAPP

DEAR LYNN AND JOEL: Are all aloes usuable for medicinal purposes, or is it just the aloe vera? — H. P.

DEAR H.P.: All aloes share the same miraculous healing properties. Just the other day Jeremiah (3 years old) fell from his bike and cut his nose. After kissing it to make it better and washing the wound, we smeared on the mush of our aloe vera. Jeremiah helped, too, removing the leaf from the plant and pushing the buttons on the blender, while we were mixing the magic potion. The stinging of the cut ceased immediately, and by the very next day it was completely healed.

No home should be without an aloe vera. They will live indoors, in good strong light and the soil must be kept on the dry side. It's a succulent — so don't mist. Outdoors, they grow quickly and prolifically, producing many babies. You can share them with your friends and turn them on to the wonders of the incredible aloe vera. They will also produce beautiful exotic flowers in season.

Common ¢ents

By KATE MacQUEEN

If there's one item you shouldn't scrimp on it has to be a door lock. All too often what you think is a good brass lock is nothing more than brass-plated pot metal, which breaks easily. So, a lock bargain really isn't one unless you are buying from someone who is qualified to say that the lock will hold up well for the protection you need.

A blister in the veneer on a table top should disappear if you use a sharp razor blade to split it down the middle (with the grain of the wood). Carefully lift each side and spread liquid glue underneath. Press down the veneer on the spot and cover it with paper and a heavy book or bowl. Let the glue dry a day or so. If paper sticks to the glued spot, carefully scrape it away then sand lightly with very fine sandpaper.

If you like old brass objects and look for them at flea markets and thrift stores, carry a small magnet in your pocket. It won't stick to brass, but it will stick to steel (brass-plated) boxes, candlesticks, etc. And if your real-brass bargain needs a good cleaning, try vinegar on a soft cloth. If the brass isn't lacquered, a vinegar rub and buffing will give it a warm glow.

'CANOPY-LOOK' BEDS

Creative people find the challenge of furnishing a home exhilarating. Not only is working out good furniture arrangements interesting, but coming up with ideas for furniture has its own special breed of excitement. Not all people are creative, however, the same individualistic approach can be made by cliping ideas from newspapers and magazines and adapting them to one's own circumstances.

As a case in point, look at the beds shown here. At first glance they give the impression of two canopy beds, but without the attendant fabrics and bulk. Canopy beds evolved because of necessity, before central heating was invented. The overhead canopy and the side draperies helped to keep drafts from the bed's occupants. Symbolic of an earlier era, they evoke romantic images. And today they look fine, if that is one's taste, in large bedrooms. But they crowd an average size room. A suggestion, however, brings forth a whole image, and that is what was done here.

Side panels, of cane, travel upwards on each side at the beds' heads. Only two, you see, instead of four that would be regulation for the traditional canopy. Carrying the image further, openwork rattan panels at ceiling height extend two feet over the bed, for a clean, tailored look, but hinting at canopy nonetheless. The idea could be duplicated in other materials, and the result would be the same.

wheels

By MICHAEL LAMM

Dear Mike: During the gas pinch of 1974, some friends and I were talking about taking four pistons and rods out of a V8 engine to save fuel. Does this work?—BLACK DIAMOND

Dear Diamond: Poorly. People used to do it occasionally during the Second World War. They'd also saw off the intake valve stems in the four cyclinders affected. They found, though, that besides making the engine run awfully rough, gas mileage didn't improve that much because of the big drop in power.

Dear Mike: My Triumph TR-6 is starting to burn oil. How can I check to see whether it's due to bad rings or worn value guides? — SMOKEY

Dear Smoke: Pull all your sparkplugs and check compression with a compression gauge. Now squirt 3-4 healthy shots of 30WE motor oil into each plug hole. Check compression again. If readings are considerably higher the second time around, you've got bad rings. The oil temporarily seals the rings. But if your readings are about the same the second time, it indicates worn valve guides, which don't seal with oil in the cylinders.

Dear Mike: I have a 1973 Dodge van with the 318 V-8, and I've been considering installing dual exchausts to get better performance and mileage. But I've heard so many opinions, pro and con, that I need a couple of questions answered. First, do dual exhausts really increase performance and gas mileage? Second, is it also a good idea to install exhaust headers? Do you advise one, the other, or both? — VEXED

Dear Vexed: I've covered this a couple of times before, but in my opinion, neither twin exhuasts nor headers are worth their cost. You'll notice virtually no difference in gas economy nor in performance.

Dear Mike: As my 1972 Dart Demon starts to warm up, it begins to idle roughly. When it reaches full operating temperature, the engine misses and chugs as I accelerate. I've replaced the carburetor, ignition wires, plugs, and coil. What's the problem? — CHUG-A-LUG

Dear Chug: Could be a vacuum leak that opens up when your intake manifold gets hot. Or a weak fuel pump. But those are only the more likely of about 20 possibilities.

SALES OF SWEETS RISING IN U.S.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The five-cent cup of coffee has been killed off by inflation and now the commerce department says the nickel candy bar is "an endangered species."

Despite the rising cost of chocolate bars, caramels, peanut brittle, licorice and the like, the department said Friday Americans in 1976 increased their consumption of sweets for the first time since 1968.

Each man, woman and child ate an average of 16.7 pounds of candy last year, the first time per capita consumption has gone up in eight years, the report said.

The peak year for candy eating was 1968 when per capita consumption averaged 20.3 pounds. Sales had been sagging until last year.

Of the total, just 1.2 million pounds were candy bars that sold for a nickel, compared with 16.7 million pounds in 1971.

The report said 78 per cent of all candy bars now sold cost the consumer between 11 and 15 cents each.

"The nickel candy bar is an endangered species," the report observed.

STERILIZATION CATCHING ON

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian couples who have all the children they want are turning more toward sterilization as a method of birth control, says a member of a committee that studied birth control in Canada.

Dr. Marion Powell, head of the population unit at the University of Toronto and a member of the committee, said in an interview that the study "showed a much higher rate of sterilization than I'd ever have expected."

The study was carried out by the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion. It was based on more than 4,128 quesitonnaires filled out across the country.

Dr. Powell said the study found that women in the 30-to-40 age group said they and their spouses preferred sterilization to other forms of birth control.

Hedge Pruning Deadline Reached

This week should be the deadline for a last cutting, trimming or pruning of hedges.

There is a reason for this limit. In our coastal climate, new growth is made abundantly whenever trimming of shrubs is done. Hedges are shrubs, responding with new growth in August and throughout our long mild fall weather.

The warm sun of August followed by the gradual cooling of September and fewer hours of daylight combine in the process of toughening the late new growth sufficiently to withstand frosts and winter winds. If pruned or trimmed later than July the new growth will be harmed by the first light frost of late September.

Nearly all hedges in this climate zone belong in the evergreen group, either coniferous or broadleaved. They are not grown for their flowers although capable of producing them if left unpruned.

If you have the coniferous evergreen Thuya pyramidalis, it can now be clipped up the sides and along the top. Even though you want more height on your thuyas, give them a light cut on the top. The shrubs will remain denser and more columnar instead of thinning out weakly at the tops.

A privet hedge needs several trimmings during spring and summer to keep it shapely, and the final one this week. The gold privet I find less hardy in colder gardens, and I do not advise this late July trim for it; trim only in April.

Lonicera nitida has a tiny evergreen leaf, dark green and shining. It makes a pleasant tight hedge around four-and-a-half feet high. Very suitable for a hedge within the graden, or beside a path which has ground sloping away from one side. It provides a sense of security while walking on the path at night yet does not obstruct the distant view for which the property may have been bought.

Lonicera is the Honeysuckle Family. This one is not a climber but an evergreen bushy species. Tiny flowers occur on old wood but are not a feature. They are interesting when occasionally they are noticed.

Lower growing still is dwarf Box, Buxus sempervirens. This too has small evergreen leaves, making a dense little hedge or border between 12 and 15 inches high. As a low border beside a stone path, backed by grey foliaged shrubby plants a little taller, this can be very effective.

Trim each shrub all around if separate from one another, or the tops and sides if grown together.

A laurel hedge will soon get out of reach for pruning the top side if neglected for even one year. It is scarcely the kind of hedge for a one-lot garden.

If planted on the property line with a neighbor on the other side, an arrangement must be made for frequent pruning on the neighbor's side.

Laurel grows out as well as up. It is a soil robber when well-established so that few cultivated plants survive within reach of its roots. Keep the pruners going from April to July without spoiling its lustrous beauty. But control laurel or it will take over the whole lot.

A surface mulch of well-rotted compost spread loosely over the root area now, and again in April is beneficial to all young hedges. They will be beautiful all year, especially in winter if well-cared for now.

HELP!
Here I sit — a devilishly good-looking yellow and black Monza Towne Coupe (1976!), I have nearly everything I need, such as V-8, 4-speed, alloy wheels, radials, stereo-tape, tilt steering, handling package, power steering, and power brakes, but what I REALLY need is a new owner. My present owner loves me, but loves his business, too! One of us had to go. Please call 478-2250 (evenings) P.S. I'm lonely.

309 IN MEMORIAM

DICK—Allen J. Deceased July 23 1975. Two long years have passed since you left us, but we try to live each day by this message.
For my sake and in my name
Live on an do all things the same.
Feed not your loneliness on empty days,
But fill each waking hour in useful ways.
Reach out your hand in comfort and in cheer
And I in turn will comfort you, and hold you near,
And never be afraid to die,
For I am waiting for you in the sky.
"We will always love you dear,"
—Terry and the Family.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD, AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEAR'S CONDEMN, AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING, WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS

India President Takes the Oath

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — Neelam Sanjiva Reddy, a veteran Indian nationalist who spent five years in jail during the independence struggle against British rule, was sworn in Monday as president of India. Reddy, 64, was the candidate of all major political parties for this largely ceremonial office. His election as India's sixth president followed the death of President Fakhruddin Ali Ahmed last February.

Magician's Magic Fails

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Roge the magician, riding a crest of publicity for an apparent ability to predict headlines, has gone awry at the hands of an Oregon newspaper editor.

Roge drew nationwide attention when he was credited with predicting the New York power blackout. His fame began when he walked into the office of a Seattle newspaper July 12 and offered to predict the July 14 morning headline.

He left an envelope sealed inside four other envelopes. When the white-haired 55-year-old magician returned, he pulled out a slip that said: "Massive power blackout hits New York City area."

Roge arrived at the Oregon Statesman Wednesday, offering to duplicate the coup by predicting Friday's headline.

The envelope supposedly containing the prediction was handed over to the magician Friday under the watchful eyes of two reporters and a photographer.

Roge produced a letter opener from his coat pocket and began to open the envelopes one by one.

When he reached the last envelope, instead of allowing a newsman to open it as he had promised, Roge inserted the letter opener into a corner of the envelope.

"Wait a minute," said managing editor Van Eisenhut, "can't we open that one?"

"Oh, do you want to open it?" the magician asked. "Sure thing."

But instead of handing it over, he began to make strong pushing motions with his thumb as he began to shake both the opener and the envelope up and down as though he were trying to dislodge something from the letter opener.

Finally, Roge was reduced to scraping the blade of the opener against the inside of the envelope, trying apparently to scrape something off the blade.

By then Eisenhut was no longer interested.

"I saw how you did it," Eisenhut said as Roge handed the paritially opened envelope to a reporter.

Inside was a small scrap of paper that had been folded and refolded until it was less than an inch long and about a quarter-inch wide.

Written on it were the words: "I predict banner headline of Oregon Stateman of 7-22 will be 'Earnings Scrutiny is First for Oregon Officials,' " exactly the headline that appeared earlier Friday morning.

But the fun was gone for everyone as Roge and the reporters filed silently from the room.

"Don't do me too much damage," said Roge, who is scheduled to try the same predicting stunt next week in the office of the National Enquirer.

BANNED ANTHEM REVIVED IN JAPAN

TOKYO (AP) — Kimigayo, an anicent anthem banned under the post-war United States occupation, has been revived officially, stirring a debate over the place of nationalism and the emperor in the new democratic Japan.

The education ministry, acting on its own, in effect legitimized the song during the weekend by referring to it as Japan's national anthem in new curriculum guidelines.

Kimigayo or The Reign of Our Lord, a 1,000-year-old poem put to music 84 years ago, was played and sung extensively during the Second World War and is closely associated with the Japanese emperor.

The song, which reminds many Japanese of the hardships endured during the war, was suppressed by the post-war U.S. military government of Gen. Douglas MacArthur. In the intervening years it has survived mainly as a theme played at sumo wrestling tournaments.

In 1974, then-Premier Kakuei Tanaka told the Diet, Japan's parliament, that Kimigayo should be made the national anthem but it was not until the education ministry acted that it received official status.

Peace and religious groups and the left-leaning Nikkyoso, the country's largest teachers' union, denounced the ministry's move as incompatible with the Japan's post-war democratic constitution.

They protested that the government should not encourage the resurrection of the kind of emperor worship that existed in the pre-war years. And they said that the ministry acted illegally since the Diet has not passed a law recognizing the song.

The words to Kimigayo, played slowly in the Japanese pentatonic scale, are: "May Your Majesty reign as long as it takes pebbles to turn into stones, and for moss to grow on them."

The ministry's decision came under Moral Purpose No. 27 of its new guidelines for primary schools, which are to be put into effect next year in some areas.

No. 27 instructs teachers to exhort their pupils to "love their country and serve the progress of the state as Japanese aware of their identity."

To the Japanese intelligentsia, such guidelines are reminiscent of the 1920s and 1930s, when a powerful, nationalistic patriotism was stressed in the schools.

Motofumi Makieda, chairman of the teachers' union, said the guidelines and the revival of the old feudalistic anthem run contrary to the current popular demand for democratic education.

ALBANIA WANTS CHINESE TO GO

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — The Albanian government, long the lone Chinese ally in Eastern Europe, has asked China to withdraw its technical advisers from that tiny Balkan country, diplomatic sources here said today.

The sources said the request was made through the Chinese embassy in Tirana, the Albanian capital.

Between 700 and 2,000 Chinese technical experts are in Albania, the sources estimated.

A worsening of relations between the two countries became apparent earlier this month when the Albanian Communist party daily newspaper Zeri i Popullit (Voice of the People) sharply attacked Peking.

Without mentioning China by name, the newspaper denounced it for its rapproache-policies and for its rapprochement with the United States.

South Africans Train in U.S.?

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — U.S. and West German officials have declined comment on a Johannesburg newspaper report that agents of the South African Bureau of State Security (BOSS) have been trained in the United States and West Germany.

The Sunday Times quoted BOSS Deputy Director Alexander Van Wyk in an interview that shed light on bureau activities not previously acknowledged.

"They (BOSS agents) are highly trained—in America and West Germany—and have been working abroad for more than five years," the newspaper said. The article indicated training was continuing but gave no additional details.

In Washington, a U.S. state department spokesman said he had no comment on the report, and a spokesman for the West German government in Bonn said he was aware of the story but would have no immediate comment.

Observers said South African and U.S. intelligence agencies have long traded information, as do many other intelligence services.

Van Wyk, who was not immediately available for confirmation and amplification on the Times report, was quoted as saying his agents work in many countries, including the United States, Britain and France.

"Most Western countries have undercover agents here," Van Wyk said. "Every now and then we get together and discuss our mutual interests."

A knowledgable West German source said, "It could be that there is an exchange of experiences (with BOSS) which one has with every state. It could be that they received some sort of training on equipment (bought in West Germany)."

Van Wyk denied his agents ever break into homes or offices abroad to collect information, a reference to claims by former British Prime Minister Harold Wilson that BOSS had burglarized his London home and those of his staff about 10 times while he was prime minister.

"We would never commit a criminal act to get hold of documents," Van Wyk said. He called Wilson's charge "ridiculous."

Wilson said last year that BOSS was behind a plot to overthrow Britain's Labor government.

"Britain is thousands of miles away," Van Wyk said. "Each intelligence network must have priorities. Ours is the security of South Africa, not bringing down the British government . . . whether we like this one or not."

TOM SAWYER TRICK AT U.S. AIR BASE?

ANCHORAGE (AP) — The Air Force says it is investigating allegations that a contractor used Tom Sawyer tactics to dupe job applicants into painting part of an Elmendorf air force base building.

An Anchorage woman, who declined to be identified, said the company advertised for painters. She said applicants were tested by having them paint small sections of the building and then they were all rejected.

"The air force labor adviser stated that the air force is aware of the allegations against Empire Painting Co., and the matter is being investigated," said Maj. Ken Barker of the Elmendorf information office.

Company representatives have been unavailable for comment.

In the book Tom Sawyer, the hero avoids the task of painting a fence by telling his friends that the job is too difficult for them. Because they are told they cannot do the work, they vie with each other to do it.

SMALL-SCALE FORCE—LEVESQUE

Que. Wants Own Army

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Rene Levesque says an independent Quebec would need "at least a small-scale armed force" to deal with such emergencies as police strikes and to take part in United Nations peacekeeping work.

The one dangerous thing for any independent country to have is police forces without any counterbalance, he said in an interview Sunday on CFCF radio.

"If you have a police strike or anything else that goes on, where else can you turn."

The government of an independent Quebec would not throw Canadian Armed Force personnel currently at bases in Bagotville and Valcartier out of jobs for the sake of pacifist ideals.

"A more positive pacifist outlook" would be to ask to participate in U.N. peacekeeping work, he added, noting "small countries can be very useful with very small, very modest armed forces."

Levesque also said Sunday one of the lynchpins of his government's proposed association between an independent Quebec and the rest of Canada would be the protection of minority language rights.

He denied that his Parti Quebecois government would use language rights as a lever to persuade the other provinces to negotiate economic links with an independent Quebec "but I think it would be, eventually part of . . . any healthy association if and when it comes."

"Economics are basic, some political give and take, joint ventures and things like that would be basic also," he said in an interview of CFCF radio.

"But one of the most basic of all things is the respect for each other's identity and that requires . . . equitable treatment of minorities on both sides."

The premier was discussing an offer he made last week to his nine provincial counterparts to modity a language bill to allow Canadian coming from other provinces to send their children to English-language schools, in exchange for similar guarantees for French-speaking Quebecers moving to English Canada.

CONTROLLERS STAGE VOTE ON STRIKING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Commercial flights in Canada could be grounded by Thursday following a vote by air traffic controllers.

The control tower men in Canada's airports are conducting a strike vote today and tomorrow and executives of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association expect an overwhelming mandate to back contract demands.

Controllers are seeking an improved retirement program, reclassification of jobs and the maximum eight per cent pay increase allowable under federal guidelines, according to a spokesman.

All-Canada Mail Strike 'Speculation'

HALIFAX (CP) — Any talk of a wildcat strike which started in Ottawa spreading across the country "is merely speculation at this stage," Joe Davidson, president of the Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said today.

Davidson said the Ottawa strike will likely be discussed in the union's five-day convention, which opened today.

Postal clerks and mail sorters in the Ottawa local walked off their jobs Thursday night to protest the use of casual, non-union labor.

The post office said today it will ask the Federal Court for an injunction to end the walkout.

David Carter, an eastern Ontario post office spokesman, said some mail is being delivered today but some post offices around the city are closed.

Meanwhile, the CUPW convention in Halifax delivered a blistering attack today on leaders of the Canadian Labor congress (CLC) for their participation in economic talks with the federal government and business representatives.

But Davidson said the militant postal union must continue to operate within the CLC despite its violent opposition to some congress policies.

The postal union must guard against becoming isolated from the rest of the labor movement. Instead, it must take every opportunity to explain its position against three way consultation to other unions "and to convince them that only strong and militant unions can represent their members and fight for their rights and needs."

Robert Andstein, president of the Halifax local of CUPW, said CLC president Joe Morris "is nothing but a traitor to the labor movement."

"Morris doesn't have any faith in the labor movement, he believes in selling out," Andstein said at the opening of the union's five day national policy convention.

The executive board of the 22,000 member union said in its report to delegates that increased union consultation with government and business amounts to "a betrayal of the principles of the trade union movement."

CLC leaders say labor should have a greater role in drafting federal decisions that affect workers.

NAKED KIDS FROLICKED AT GUNPOINT

PARKSVILLE (CP) — RCMP are seeking a man with a large nose who Saturday forced four children to undress and frolic at gunpoint while he took photoographs.

The four boys and girls, aged 12 to 14, were playing in the Englishman River when the man, armed with a sawed-off rifle and camera, emerged from the bushes and approached them.

Police said the children described the man, who wore a flowered pillowcase over his head during part of the incident, as 5'10" tall, slim, with dark skin, brown hair and a large nose.

After the incident, the man fled back into the bushes.

Korean Bulk Carriers Collide

JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI) — Two big Korean freighters collided in the North Pacific Sunday with one receiving a 15-foot wide gash on its side.

The U.S. Coast Guard said no one was injured in the accident which occorred 650 miles west of Victoria and neither bulk carrier was in danger of sinking.

The 378-foot Coast Guard cutter Rush reached both vessels and sent a boarding party aboard the more seriously damaged ship, the Yoneun, to assess the damage.

The 551-foot Yoneun and the 554-foot Atlas Challenger began to head under their on power for Victoria after the Rush's arrival. A Coast Guard spokesman in San Francisco said the ships were travelling at 4 knots and were expected to reach the Strait of Juan de Fuca coast in three days.

The Yoneun received the gash on the port side of the No. 1 hold. It stretched from the main deck to five feet below the waterline, but the crew was managing to prevent dangerous flooding, the Coast Guard said.

The Atlas Challenger suffered minor damage to a forepeak tank.

The Yoneun, laden with wheat, had left Portland, Ore., en route to Inchon, Korea.

The Atlas Challenger had been headed for Vancouver.

The Coast Guard said its cargo was not identified.

The Rush had been headed for its home port in San Francisco after patrol duty in the Gulf of Alaska when it was diverted to the crash site.

Egypt, Libya Declare Truce

Times News Services

CAIRO — Egypt and Libya have accepted a ceasefire in the bloody border conflict which erupted six days ago, a spokesman for Palestinian leader Yasser Arafat said today.

He said the agreement contained three points, but declined to disclose the details.

Palestinian sources said earlier that Arafat was proposing a temporary ceasefire, an end to the long-time propaganda warfare between the two North African Arab neighbors and negotiations aimed at achieving a permanent halt to the conflict.

Algerian President Houari Boumedienne helped in negotiations, holding talks Sunday with Arafat and Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy. Boumedienne then flew to Alexandria to consult Egyptian President Anwar Sadat.

There was no immediate independent confirmation that hostilities had ended in the embattled border region, which has been off limits to reporters.

But Sadat had ordered a cease-fire Sunday night, after a day of heavy Egyptian bombing of military installations inside Libya.

If the Egyptian accounts of the day's events are correct, it appears that Sadat first sent his air force to destroy Libyan installations that posed a threat to Egypt, then called a halt to the bombing.

A communique from Egypt's military spokesman said Egyptian bombers struck Kufra airfield in southeastern Libya, because Libya had sent planes there that might endanger Egypt if "the Libyan regime used the base in committing one of its follies."

The communique acknowledged "our forces took the initiative in attacking the airport" and said that the runways and some buildings had been destroyed.

Earlier, the Egyptians claimed to have virtually destroyed the Libyan air base at Adem, near Tobruk. In that action two of Egypt's Soviet-built Sukhoi bombers were shot down by the Libyans, the first losses acknowledged by Egypt since the outbreak of bombing and shelling along the border four days ago.

Egypt also claimed to have destroyed two radar installations in eastern Libya.

Second Suspect Freed

Times News Services

VANCOUVER — A second suspect in the week-old slaying of two teenagers as they sat with friends beside the Fraser River was picked up Sunday in a Vancouver park but later released when his alibi checked out.

Vancouver police released a Calgary man who had been picked up because he resembled an artist's sketch of the wanted man, the sketch being based on observations of the lone young person who escaped when the rifleman opened fire on them. Two other teenagers are still missing.

A police spokesman said the man, 19, had apparently been travelling between Calgary and Vancouver about the time of the killings. A North Vancouver man apprehended Wednesday was released the following day.

On Sunday, police were flying over the river in a helicopter in the continuing search for John Den Hertog and Leola Guliker. Police sear divers have been unable to search the river since Friday because of high water levels.

"Most of it now is leg-work interviews and so forth—nothing dramatic," said an RCMP spokesman.

The two victims, Evert Den Hertog and Bert Menger, were buried Saturday after 500 mourners packed Chilliwack's Netherlands Reformed Church for the funeral.

Bill Menger, father of one of the boys, thanked the hundreds of friends he said had extended sympathy to the family. "We've only been in Canada a few years, but have already learned here the meaning of real friendship," he said.

The burial took place under the watchful eye of at least a dozen RCMP officers at the services and in a nearby surveillance truck.

Laetrile Harmful to Patients—Doctors

WASHINGTON (AP) — Georgetown University cancer specialists say they watched two cancer patients develop adverse reactions from using Laetrile and that the controversial substance might be dangerous.

Dr. Philip Schein, chief of the Georgetown's medical oncology division, said Sunday that he and three colleagues seem to have found the first reported incidents of harmful effects to cancer patients who used Laetrile, a fruit derivative which some hail as a cure for cancer.

The Georgetown physicians have submitted a report on their findings to the Journal of the American Medical Association.

In their report, the Georgetown University doctors said: "It cannot be assumed that Laetrile is non-toxic or that this compound has not already contributed to the death of patients with malignant diseases."

Dr. Schein said the doctors based their findings against Laetrile on this finding: When patients used the substance they experienced reactions. When they stopped, the reactions disappeared.

One patient was a woman suffering from lymphoma—a tumor of the lymph nodes that usually responds to chemotherapy, Dr. Schein said. The patient was treated with Laetrile in Mexico and later came to the Georgetown University Medical Centre with fever, a skin rash and abdominal pain. The symptoms cleared up after she was taken off Laetrile, Dr. Schein said.

The doctor said the woman then left the hospital, decided to begin taking Laetril again and returned with the same ailments. She returned to Georgetown a second time with the same symptoms, Dr. Schein said.

The second patient, a man, has lung cancer that spread to his brain. He was receiving conventional cancer treatment at Georgetown while also taking Laetrile without the doctors' knowledge, Dr. Schein said.

He developed difficulty with eye movements and a weakness in his arm and leg muscles. After doctors learned he was taking Laetrile and persuaded him to stop, the ailments disappeared, Dr. Schein said.

Cablevision Pirating On Increase

By DEREK SIDENIUS
Times Staff

Devices used for illegally hooking up TVs and radios to cablevision are selling briskly in Victoria despite a law that could make both buyers and sellers liable to criminal prosecution and a two-year jail term.

The devices include splitters (units that split electronic signals into two or more equal parts), transformers, and coaxial cables of the kind used by cablevision companies. All are standard items carried at almost any TV or electronics store.

Cablevision companies are concerned because they contend buyers are using the devices to make covert additional connections to their cablevision.

And as far as Len Charlish, general manager of Victoria Cablevision is concerned, that's theft, no different from shoplifting.

Pirating signals for additional outlets is nothing new. It's been going on for years, but the practice seems to be growing.

One electronics store owner said demand for the devices is well up over last year while another said splitters are one of his best-selling items.

"They're going like hotcakes . . . we can't get enough in stock," he said.

The cablevision companies have no way of knowing how many of their customers are using illegal connections.

Gerry Davis, co-owner of Urban Cablevision which serves the western communities, says that while technically it might be possible to develop a method of monitoring signals to detect illegal hookups, the cost of such a system would be prohibitive.

For years, the only protection the companies have had is a section of the Criminal Code (287) covering theft of telecommunication.

Only a handful of people have been charged under this law, none locally. The only case law — and there are very few examples — comes from Eastern Canada.

Davis explains his reluctance to take criminal action against a subscriber: "It's simple. It's bad public relations."

The industry has long felt the only effective way of tackling the problem is to control the devices that make illegal hookups possible.

Parliament obviously agreed with this line of reasoning, passing an amendment last year to the criminal code that makes it an offence to manufacture, possess or sell devices used for illegal hookups.

Few people seem to be aware of the law which is contained in section 287 of the code. None of the electronics store owners the Times ontacted knew of the law's existence, nor did the cablevision company spokesmen.

The law reads: Every one, who without lawful excuse, the proof of which lies upon him, manufacturers, possesses, sells or offers for sale or distributes any instrument or device or any component thereof, the design of which renders it primarily useful of obtaining any telecommunication facility or service, under circumstances that give rise to a reasonable inference that the device has been used or is or was intended to be used to obtain the use of any telecommunication service or facility without payment of a lawful charge therefor, is guilty of an indictabe offence and liable to imprisonment for two years.

Regional crown counsel Wally Anderson says the law could have far-reaching implications if it was enforced, but knows of no instance where it has been.

Ken Salt of the provincial attorney-general's ministry says he believes the law was made fore as result of lobbying by telephone companies than by the cablevision industry and the toughness of the law is directed more to infractions against the former.

In any event, both Salt and Anderson agree the law applies equally to cablevision and they note that certain features of it are uncommon to criminal law.

The first is the onus on the accused to prove he has a lawful excuse to own one of the devices. Normally, the onus of proof rests with the Crown.

The second is that the law only requires there be a "reasonable inference" that the devices will be used for an illegal purpose. Normally, the law requires evidence beyond any shadow of doubt.

Local electronic store owners say until the amended law has been tested in court, they will continue to sell the devices.

"How do we know the buyer's going to use these things for an illegal purpose?" said one store owner, who asked not to be identified. "He may need them for his own antenna system or may be an apartment owner putting in a system. We don't know and we don't ask."

It's unlikely the cablevision companies will press for action.

"I wouldn't do it," Davis says. "And I doubt any other operator would, either. It's too serious a penalty.

"I feel there has to be a deterrant but I think it's too severe for someone making a second outlet. I mean sending a person to jail for two years for trying to get out of paying a $60 rental charge. That's ridiculous.

"But if a person steals a drop by climbing a pole and running a line to his home, well, that's another thing.

"Then I think he should get just what he deserves."

Appeal Planned

One of the groups opposed to the construction of a 1,200-foot outfall off Esquimalt Lagoon has filed notice of its intention to appeal the issuance of a permit by the Pollution Control Branch, a branch spokesman confirmed today.

The organization in question is the so-called Concerned Citizens of B.C. whose president, Frank Heinrich, lives at 3504 Happy Valley Road.

Today was the final day for notifying the branch of intention to appeal, and the would-be appellants now have another 30 days in which to submit the appeal itself to the Pollution Control Board.

Heinrich could not be reached for comment. In the past he has declined to give any details of the organization's membership.

Sharp controversy has surrounded the proposed outfall since last September, when the Capital Region Board decided that it was the solution to the problem of leaking sewage from a 76-lot subdivision overlooking Esquimalt Lagoon.,

Prison Reform Pressure Urged

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Reforms at William Head and other federal prisons will come about only through public pressure, says Sharon MacBain, penitentiary reform committee chairman of the Victoria Justice Council.

She said Vancouver MP Art Lee made it clear at a weekend meeting that the federal government will not act on prison reform unless it is pushed.

Lee attended a meeting in Vancouver of groups interested in getting action on a Parliamentary committee report on prison reforms. The report was handed down in the spring but has not been acted on.

The meeting was called by the Victoria Justice Council.

MacBain said the meeting was informed that federal Solicitor-General Francis Fox will make his first statement to the Commons on the report within a week, but it is not clear whether any legislation is planned. Lee is parliamentary secretary to Fox.

MacBain said Lee made it clear that Ottawa was in no hurry to get into the controversial questions raised by the report. It was not regarded as a vote-getting document and action could only be expected if community groups continued to put pressure on the government.

Although the Victoria Justice Council does not agree with all recommendations in the report, it believes action is needed on at least some of the issues raised, she said.

"The report says there is a crisis situation in our prisons that needs to be dealt with immediately," she said. "Despite this urgent statement, nothing has been done so far."

The only decision taken by Fox has been to reject a suggestion by the parliamentary committee that it continue its existence to help get the report implemented, MacBain said.

The meeting, called by MacBain, was attended by the Vancouver Prisoners' Right Group, Native Court Workers Association and the Lower Mainland Justice Council.

Leaking Fumes In Boat Cabin Hospitalize Six

Six persons were taken to hospital in Sidney Sunday night after deadly carbon monoxide gas fumes filled the cabin of a 24-foot pleasure craft.

Sidney RCMP said the six had been on a day excursion and were returning to Bosun's Marina at about 8:50 p.m. when some of them became dizzy and one passed out.

A police spokesman said the skipper of the boat, William Dewhurst, 52, of 2603 Prior, managed to dock the boat in the marina and call out for help.

Dewhurst, his wife Patricia, 32; Edward Dewhurst, 78, his father; Thomas Dewhurst, 80, an uncle, and family friends Elvinas Margalikas, 49, and Norma Joyce Margalikas, 45, were taken to Resthaven Hospital for treatment and kept overnight for observation. They were expected to be discharged today.

Police said a check of the boat, a 24-foot Fairliner, showed nothing mechanically wrong.

It is believed, however, the cabin had been closed which cut off cross-ventilation and allowed fumes from the engine to slowly build up to a dangerously high level.

FIRE DOUSED FROM AIR ON GALIANO

Air tankers and a helicopter fitted with a "monsoon bucket" were needed to bring a forest fire on Galiano Island under control this morning.

The fire burned about three acres on the southern end of the island. No private property was endangered by the blaze.

An A-26 converted Second World War fighter-bomber carrying 850 gallons of fire retardent made six runs over the fire.

The helicopter was brought in later to clear up some hot spots. It carries a 110-gallon bucket that picks up sea water and releases it through a trap door.

Between 20 and 30 men, including the Galiano volunteer fire department, battled the fire on the ground.

Robbery Nets $810

A brazen daylight robbery of a city gas station Sunday netted a bandit $810.

Victoria police said the man, described as in his early 20s with dark, frizzy hair entered the Imperial Esso station at Hillside and Shelbourne at 3 p.m. and approached attendant Douglas James Schuman, 19.

Schuman, alone at the time, told police the robber said only "the money" and opened the left side of his jacket to reveal a black revolver.

IT WAS HOT BUT NO RECORD

Sunday was the hottest day of the year in Victoria.

But it wasn't a record, the weather office said today.

Temperature reached 26.7 degrees Sunday. This compared with the previous high for the year of 25.2 degrees, set June 7.

The record temperature for July 24 was set in 1965 — 28.3 degrees.

The outlook, meanwhile, is for more of the same for the next few days — hot and dry.

Wallace, Will Ye No Come Back Again?

ALTHOUGH SCOTT WALlace may believe that he is saying goodbye to politics, I hope that politics isn't through with him. Not because British Columbia's Tory chieftain and lone Progressive-Conservative legislator is a good politician. He isn't, which is precisely why the House can ill afford to lose him.

Good politicians abound. Our Legislature can boast its quota of them — wily strategists effective in debate, strictly governed by their party lines and capable of charming the voter off his perch when campaign time rolls around.

The political process demands them. Without them, the complex business of steering a province or a country under the free election multi-party system would be impossible.

But a healthy diet calls for roughage along with the bland, and Dr. Wallace supplies that ingredient in faithful measure. He has proved himself to be one of God's rarest creatures, an honest man in a kinky world. Politics in general and the Progressive-Conservatives in particular would be poorer without him.

For some years past, the B.C. Tory has placed high on the endangered species list. I suspect that he might even have joined the great auk and the passenger pigeon in extinction by now, if Wallace hadn't flown over the Social Credit fence on the wings of his strong convictions.

His shift to the Progressive Conservative camp may have been viewed with misgivings by some of its ol dgrey heads, but it has kept the party represented in the House. How long, I wonder, will that representation continue if Wallace can't be persuaded to change his mind?

Admittedly, that could call for a very powerful brand of persuasion, if it's possible at all.

In spite of his legislative score as Oak Bay MLA — first as Social Credit member, then Independent and finally Progressive Conservative — the outspoken doctor is no weathervane. It is abundantly plain from the record that he is motivated by his beliefs rather than by party, as witness his early and politically naive attempts to reform Social Credit from within the W. A. C. Bennett ranks.

The Scottish-born are stubborn beyond the ordinary run, and Scott Wallace impresses me as an extra-obstinate representative of his race. He is also a rocker of boats and a disturber of hornets' nests, for which more power to his elbow.

He was embattled when I first met him. British Columbia was about to move into state medicine, the doctors were in an uproar, and Scott Wallace was not willing to see government intrude on the strictly medical aspects of his profession without a fight.

A doctor, he maintained, was not to be turned into a civil servant. Armed with convictions arrived at in the United Kingdom, he hammered to drive his point home. He was vocal, stubborn and undaunted, and if our Medicare has largely escaped the errors and excesses that might have crippled it, he deserves a solid share of the credit.

In politics, he has displayed a complete disregard for where the chips may fall. If he sees the approach to a problem as wrong, he has at it. In an Assembly that has seen good men as well as rascals, he has been much more than a minority party leader in opposition. He has been the conscience of the House.

Far be it from me to disagree with his estimate of himself as a misfit in politics! What the man apparently fails to realize is that his value as a legislator lies in that very three-corneredness which he deprecates.

The Scott who has wi' Wallace bled to arrive at what must surely have been a painful decision has amply earned the right to return to private life.

But I trust for the sake of decency in politics that he will reconsider . . . and I'm certain that more British Columbians than the dour nondiplomat dreams of will back that sentiment with a loud Amen.

Esquimalt Holds Library Meeting

Esquimalt aldermen were to meet in special session at 5 p.m. today to consider a revised long-term lease proposal for Greater Victoria Public Library.

The meeting was called in order to secure a quorum of council, which could not otherwise be expected until the next regular meeting in August.

Three of the four core municipities turned down an earlier rental scheme proposed by B.C. Building Corp. for premises being built on Broughton.

A revised proposal would provide for a longer term — 10 years — with option to expand the space required, and for a reduced rental per square foot to $8.25 a month, of which the provincial library commission will pay $2.

COMPARE

BEFORE YOU MAKE YOUR NEXT HOME FURNISHINGS PURCHASE
WE ASK YOU TO COMPARE THE FOLLOWING

SELECTION:

We carefully select all the lines we carry so as to provide the widest possible variety in style and price on Vancouver Island, thus making it easy for you to find the item that best suits your needs. There is no need for you to go to the mainland or buy from pictures or samples. In stock for your immediate use, we carry a million dollar inventory for you to choose from.

SERVICE:

We offer "Before Sale" and "After Sale" service second to none. Our salespeople are knowledgeable on the full range of home furnishings and they are interested in helping you make a purchase you will be happy with. Professional Interior Decorating Service is also offered. All merchandise we sell is guaranteed for one year; some items even much longer. If less, then we will for sure tell you. We will do everything within reason to ensure complete satisfaction with every purchase. A satisfied customer is our best advertisement.

DELIVERY:

There is no such thing as free delivery, (last year it cost us over $50,000 to keep our trucks on the road) not even counting the investment involved. The reason we own our own trucks is so that we can offer you professional delivery service as we promise it to you; on time and at reasonable rates. We do not have to depend on someone else to let you down. Don't be misled with Free Delivery. You are paying dearly for it. If you have a truck, station wagon, roof racks or a friend who will move your purchase for nothing . . . you will save the most. If you require Professional Delivery Service at a sensible price . . . we will do it better than most . . . and we do deliver seven days a week . . . just to serve you better.

PRICING:

Not the last or least important thing to consider. But after you take the above mentioned items into consideration — you cannot be sure if the price truly reflects the value. We offer you our goods and services at the lowest possible Selling Price. Because of our large turnover in goods we can buy in large quantities and in most cases at much lower prices direct from the factories all over the world. This is why we can offer Victorians better quality and better styled merchandise for Less Money. Shop and compare.

WE WANT YOU TO KNOW WHERE WE STAND
SO YOU CAN BETTER DETERMINE WHERE YOU STAND

- SAFETY LID LOCK SWITCH. Locks lid during spin cycles releasing only when tub decelerates.
- OZONE ULTRA VIOLET LAMP. Adds the touch of outdoor freshness to each load you dry.
- LAUNDRY INSTRUCTIONS. Clear and concise on the inside of washer lid.
- END OF CYCLE BUZZER. Automatic indication when drying cycle completed. Adjustable to "soft", "loud" or "off".

The attractive and durable controls provide for virtually every laundry and drying requirement. Heavy blankets and towels, denims, light and synthetic fabrics receive special attention from the gentle double-scrub washing action of Admiral's tub rotation coupled with the counter-rotating agitator.

The perfect dryer mate makes the choice of drying options easy and excellent for special and everyday drying requirements. Settings can be made at any point between maximum and minimum dry using Admiral's auto-dry system which brings fabrics to the state of readiness you want, regardless of the type of load.

Admiral JUST FOR YOU

Twin units matched together in size, appearance, colour and designed to place related laundry operations right alongside each other. A large tub in the washer brings big load laundry under fingertip control ready for quick, convenient exchange to the matching automatic dryer.

Admiral JUST FOR YOU

A must in any kitchen — a timesaver day after day, meal after meal. Built-in dishwasher with eight push button cycles, all intended to save labour and energy on many different types of operation — from large or small loads — lightly or heavily soiled dishes. The powerful cleansing action of the two level power wash jet sprays hot water to both upper and lower racks so that every load becomes clean, sanitized and ready to use. Colour matched door panels for coordinated kitchen decor allow you to simply slide in the colour you want. 34½"H, 24"W, 25"D.

Model DU2468

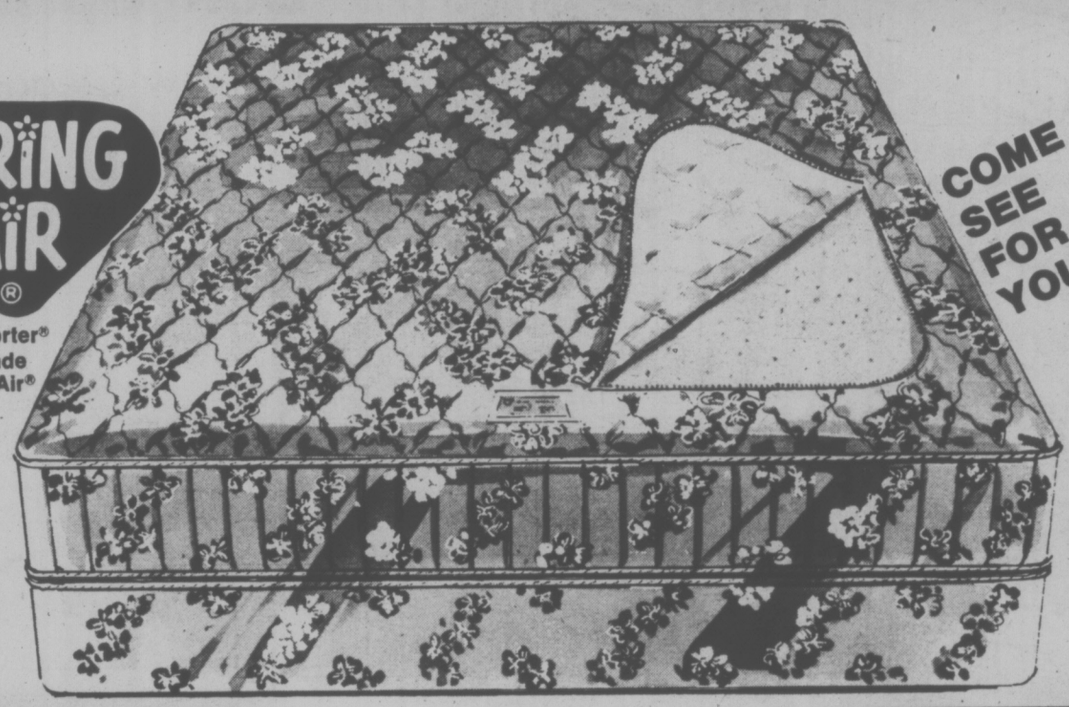
SPRING AIR 50 YEARS

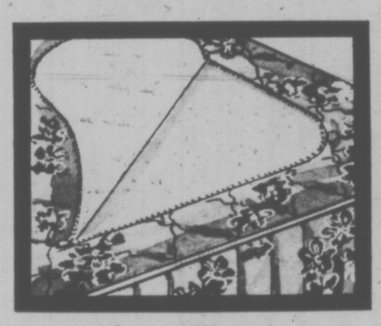
SPRING AIR®

The Back Supporter® Mattress is made only by Spring Air®



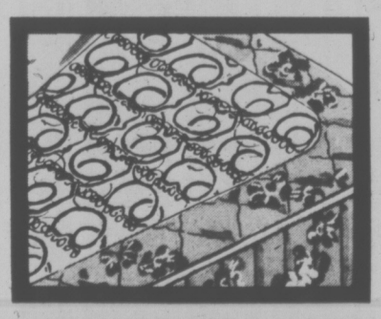
COME SEE FOR YOURSELF!

The luxurious multi-needle damask cover quilted to urethane foam means long lasting comfort and quality.

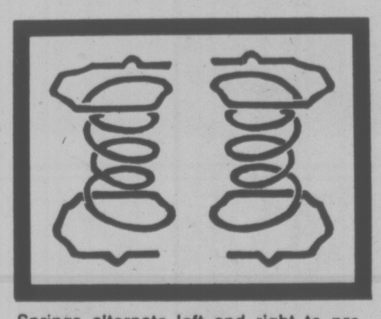


Deep layers of urethane foam give luxurious cushioning.

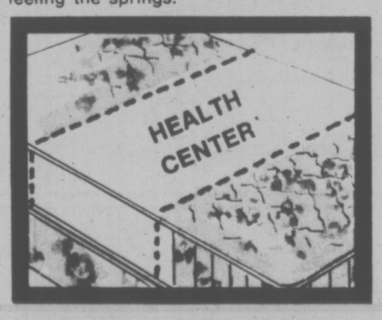
Next come carefully planned layers of prime upholstery and superb insulation including a Protector Screen to add firmness and completely protect you from feeling the springs.



Exclusive Karr® Adapta-Flex springs give gentle surface comfort with graduated inner firmness. Each spring is coiled 5½ times for maximum resilience and reserve support. Special heavy duty edge springs eliminate collapsing edges.



Springs alternate left and right to prevent people of different weights from rolling together. Unique pivot hinges allow each spring to function independently, giving just the right support to every inch of you. Baked enamel finish on springs adds resilience, prevents rust and squeaks.



The Health Center® gives extra support in the shoulder-to-knee area where 70% of your body weight lies.

Scotchgard
FABRIC PROTECTOR

To give your furniture longer-lasting beauty

What is Scotchgard fabric protector?

"SCOTCHGARD" Fabric Protector is a fluorochemical textile finish which resists hundreds of everyday staining materials — even oily ones! (It's the first textile finish with resistance to oil-borne stains!) It also retards soil.

Furniture treated with "SCOTCHGARD" Fabric Protector stays new looking longer because of its excellent stain resistance. However, after a time, cleaning may be necessary.—The suggestions here will be helpful in daily or "general housekeeping" care.

FABRIC PROTECTOR

• FURNITURE CARE

Your furniture represents a big investment. Give it proper care by: Vacuuming regularly, rotating cushions weekly, blotting up spills immediately. Should your furniture appear to be losing some of its stain repellency, this is a sign that it is time to have the furniture professionally cleaned. The protective properties of "SCOTCHGARD" Fabric Protector will be even better after professional cleaning when soil which was covering the fabric has been removed.

Important Note: This information is provided only as a service and should not be interpreted as a warranty, implied or otherwise. Spot removing and cleaning results may vary, depending on fabric content, individual care by owner and many other factors.

Scotchgard Factory Representative will be on hand during selected periods to answer your Scotchgard questions.

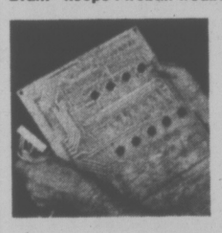
Bally makes the games people play . . . now at The TRADERS

Imagine a full size, commercial quality pinball game in your family room. What an attraction! What a way to liven up a party!

Pinball is the one game everyone in your family can enjoy. Everyone knows how to play. Everyone loves to play.

The Bally Fireball will give your family years of enjoyment. Because every part is of the same commercial quality of the games you find in your favorite amusement center. And it's made by Bally, the same company that makes more coin operated amusement games than anyone else in the world.

Diagnostic check test and plug-in Bally "Game Brain" keeps Fireball trouble-free.



Fireball is designed to keep the good times rolling—without service problems spoiling the fun.

The diagnostic check switch lets you periodically test every vital function. And the "Game Brain" circuit boards can be easily replaced should mechanical difficulties arise.

That's all there is to it! No complex diagrams to figure out, no costly, bothersome service calls.

Only Bally builds a home pinball game as good as this.

- Exclusive Bally "Game Brain" tallies your score and remembers what others have scored, so you know who's champ.
- Four fascinating tones and seven delightful tunes add to the fun throughout the game.
- Four can play at once in a thrilling pinball tournament.
- Large, easy-to-read modern LED scoring read-out.
- Volume sound control.
- How good can you get? Aim for the special targets to build up to a bonus score. Or win an extra ball as a bonus.
- Commercial size (22" x 42") real wood playfield with all the color, action and excitement . . . flippers, bumpers, thumpers, flashing lights and bells.
- Safe, shatterproof tempered glass on playfield.
- Sturdy wood composite cabinet.
- Strong steel legs with levelers.
- Ball flipper buttons just 34" from floor. Even small fry can get in on the fun.
- Automatic ball return keeps the tempo of the game going.
- Push a button and you're ready to play again.
